KILL TWO THIEVES IN PISTOL BATTLE IN DARK MANSION

Major Alden L. McMurtry and Addison Bacon Attack Looters in Greenwich Home.

BOTH STRUCK BY BULLETS

Bacon Seriously Wounded and McMurtry Slightly Before Second Burglar Is Killed.

SHOTS GUIDED BY FLASHES

Men Grapple with One Looter, Despite Injuries, and Slay Him After Hard Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 15.—A Major on the General Staff, who fretted at his desk in Washington throughout the war because he could not get into action in France, went into the dark cellar of the empty Morris mansion here at 1 o'clock this morning, and, firing at pistol flashes in the dark, killed two burglars who were waiting there to slay him. He and an unarmed companion were wounded.

The Major, who insists that his exploit is "merely part of the routine of life," is Alden L. McMurtry and a brother of Major George G. McMurtry of the 77th Division, whose name rang over the country as one of the heroic leaders of the "Lost Battalion" of the Argonne Forest and who won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Just before 1 o'clock this morning Major McMurtry was leaving a meeting of the Volunteer Firemen's Battalion of Sound Beach when Mrs. C. W. Dreyer telephoned that she had heard the tinkle of falling glass from a broken window in the home of Mrs. Eliza G. Morris, and she believed burglars were looting the place. She said she did not believe any members of the Morris family were at home, and she suggested that any one who went to the mansion should exercise the utmost caution and should go heavily armed, because she thought that a "motor truck load of men had entered the place."

One Pistol for Two Men.

All the other members of the Fire Battalion had left the fire house except Major McMurtry and Addison Bacon, who drives the fire truck when the battalion is called out. They were able to find only one automatic pistol and a small "billy" in the quarters, but they jumped into McMurtry's automobile and raced for the Morris home, which is perched high on the knolls of Rocky Point at Sound Beach.

Leaving their car at the foot of the knoll so that the burglars would not be able to hear them approaching, McMurtry and Bacon crept through the hedges and bushes until they were so close to the house that they could see its outlines looming up in the darkness of the night. Near the back door they ran into a motor truck piled high with plunder that had been carried from the building.

Laying out their campaign for the capture of a burglar gang that seemed to be composed of more than two men, McMurtry and Bacon agreed that they ought to go into the house and fight the burglars, where they might be able to see them in the glare of electric lights. McMurtry clutched the automatic pistol in his right hand and a flashlight in his left. Bacon seized the little "billy" in his right hand and clinched his left.

After they had found the window on the first floor which the burglars had been awkward enough to break with a loud noise, the two men slipped through quietly. There was not a light to be seen nor a sound to be heard, although the men were sure the burglars were there.

While Bacon stood guard in the darkness at the foot of the big staircase that leads from the hall to the upper floors, McMurtry, flashing the feeble rays of the electric torch in his path, searched every dark nook in the upper part of the house. It was agreed that at the first sound of conflict Bacon was to rush up the stairs to aid his comrade.

When Major McMurtry had made his careful way back down the stairs they decided that the burglars were hiding in the dark cellar and that they could be captured only in a dangerous hand-to-hand fight, perhaps against heavy odds. The flashlight had failed, and there was delay while McMurtry got it back into working order.

Down Into Dark Cellar.

There was no way for the two men to descend the creaky stairs without giving warning of their approach, and McMurtry said that he saw visions of an army of men standing in belligerent attitudes with poised axes and clubs and leveled pistols with their hammers

Marshall Lays Out a Party Program; Takes Stand for Old-Time Democracy

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Vice President Marshall has written to E. G. Hoffman of Fort Wayne, Ind., Democratic National Committeeman for that State, a letter in which he indicates his desire to become a delegate-at-large from Indiana to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco, and stating the substance of what he thinks "the Democratic party should stand for," after pointing out that "thus far the President, who is the chief of our party, has not deemed it expedient to express his opinion as to what the issues will be."

Here is the letter:

"Washington, Jan. 29, 1920.

"My Dear Mr. Hoffman:

"Another Presidential campaign impends. Thus far the President, who is the chief of our party, has not deemed it expedient to express his opinion as to what the issues will be. As I am desirous of being a delegate-at-large from the State of Indiana, I wish, in consonance with what I hope has been my entire public career, to state the substance of what I think the Democratic party should stand for. I would not want to go under any misapprehension as to my views upon the part of the unfaltering Democrats of Indiana.

"We were in the war from the very moment of its European beginning because it affected our internal affairs. All of the methods and measures adopted for the preservation of the peace of our country and the winning of the war met with my approval, and I am ready to defend them. The war is now over and the rehabilitation of America as well as the rest of the world is taking place. It is not possible to accomplish our rehabilitation other than through the instrumentalities of political parties. How shall the Democratic party propose to rehabilitate the political system of America if entrusted with powers is the question.

"I have watched in other countries the effects of so-called unbridled democracy, and I have seen its menace in this country, until I am quite convinced that peace, prosperity and perpetuity of the American republic must rest finally upon a few ancient and time-honored Democratic doctrines.

"No one, save God, can remove the individual as the unit of good Government. Legislative efforts to produce justice and good order in society by listening and acceding to the demands of persons and classes will in the hour of peace produce failure. The only sure foundation for a stable republic must rest upon the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal and exact justice to all men and special privileges to none. In no other way can the individual exercise his inalienable right to life, to liberty and to the pursuit of happiness.

"The Democratic Party should stand for this and pledge itself to rebuild the American political structure along this line by clearly dividing its citizens into the law-abiding and the law-breaking; making its laws rest equally upon all men; permitting the individual citizen who is honest to succeed by honest methods; giving to no citizen legislative advantage; speedily punishing any one who unjustly obtains success by crooked and dishonest means; recognizing that this is still a Federation of States; demanding that the States discharge the duties of local self-government; resisting the usurpations of the general Government; removing corrupt and biased Judges, but standing always for obedience to the decrees of court and to constituted authority; insisting that the legislative branch of the Government shall be responsible for the discharge of its duty, and serving notice upon it that it cannot skulk behind an alleged interference upon the part of the executive branch; electing an executive pledged to discharge the countless officials and innumerable agents made necessary by the war and administer public affairs along economic lines, even to the point of the veto of every bill carrying not only unnecessary and ill-advised appropriations, but appropriations for the benefit of a few citizens rather than for the common good; regulating strictly every public utility; and by punishing all those seeking to profiteer, either personally or through aggregated combinations of men or money; in short, the presentation to the people for their suffrage of a man upon an old-time Democratic platform, under the principles of which the Republic for so many years was contented, prosperous and invincible.

"If a faith of this kind appeals to the Democrats of Indiana, I desire to go as a delegate at large to the convention at San Francisco to advocate this kind of a platform and to ascertain whether everything that made the Republic great was right or wrong. Cordially yours,

"THOMAS R. MARSHALL."

Charles MacVeagh, Jr., Son of Steel Corporation's Counsel, Lost on Mt. Monadnock.

DROPS EXHAUSTED IN SNOW

Companion Tried to Protect Him and Is Himself in a Serious Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

DUBLIN, N. H., Feb. 15.—Charles MacVeagh, Jr., of New York, son of the counsel of the United States Steel Corporation, and a graduate at Princeton, died of exposure at 4 o'clock this morning on the slopes of Mt. Monadnock after spending the night in a blizzard. He and Charlton Reynders, also of New York, were attempting to reach the summit on snowshoes when they were caught in the snow storm and lost their way. Reynders is in a critical condition.

The weather was fair and mild on yesterday afternoon when MacVeagh and Reynders, who had been spending several days here at the MacVeagh home enjoying the Winter sports, started out. They did not wear heavy coats, hats or gloves, as they expected to make a quick trip and believed the exercise would be sufficient to keep them warm.

When about a half mile from the summit of Mount Monadnock they were caught in a snowstorm, which quickly developed into a wild mountain blizzard. In attempting to make their way home they lost their bearings in the growing darkness, and apparently wandered in circles about the slopes and ravines, forcing their way through huge snow drifts and thick undergrowth in desperate efforts to find their way back to the village.

MacVeagh soon became exhausted and stumbled several times, but was helped onward by his companion. Finally, shortly after 9 o'clock, he fell unconscious. Reynders did all that was possible to shield his chum from the snow and cold, but the exposure to the elements proved too much for MacVeagh, who died at about 4 o'clock in the morning.

Dead When Relief Came.

The young man had been dead for some hours when Frederick Nettleton, caretaker of the MacVeagh estate, succeeded in reaching the spot far up the mountain where the boys had halted. When darkness set in and the boys did not return home, Nettleton became

TERRORISTS CAUGHT IN PATERSON RAIDS

Twenty-nine Anarchists of Italian Group Who Represent Bomb Advocates Arrested.

I. W. W. LEADER ALSO TAKEN

Their Records Seized—Pistols, Knives and Other Weapons Confiscated by Detectives.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 15.—The Federal Department of Justice, in sudden raids here last night and this morning, made a new onslaught on one of the world's most notorious group of terrorists.

Almost all the twenty-nine men taken were Italians, who, according to a statement by the Department of Justice, "are not like the Russian workers or Communists. They are anarchists of the worst type, not philosophical anarchists, such as the Ferrer colony at Stelton, nor the so-called constructive anarchists, but these are the "terrorists," to be compared with the Nihilists of Russia. They are enemies of all Government, whether it be so-called capital type or of Communists. They seek their ends not through parliamentary action, as the Socialists, nor through seizure of industry, as the I. W. W., nor through dictatorship of the proletariat, as the Communists, but rather through the use of bombs and other engines of destruction to create terror and fear. They are disciples of Prudhon, Kropotkin and later Bakunin, who exemplified this tactic by the destruction of mines with terrible loss of life in Marseilles, France, during the strike there."

Hundred Agents Conduct Raids.

Just as official vigilance seemed to be relaxing and a feeling of new security was stealing over the Reds, a hundred picked agents stole into this city and plucked, one after another, almost the whole of the L'Era Nuova devotees of direct action anarchists.

This is the cult founded twenty-five years ago by Enrico Malatesta, who forsook the Italian nobility when he became a convert to merciless warfare against all forms of government. Its most notorious graduate was Bresci, assassin of King Humbert of Italy. Its present leader is Ludivico M. Caminetta, editor of Il Bulletino de L'Era Nuova, once published in New York, where it was suppressed by President Roosevelt, and lately flourishing here as the organ of the select little society of bomb ad-

WILSON IN CONTROL AGAIN

TAKES UP SHIPS FIRST

R. T. Lincoln, Then War Secretary, Says Cabinet Never Met During President's Disability.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—President Wilson's action in forcing Robert Lansing, his Secretary of State, out of his Cabinet after having accused the latter of attempting to usurp executive authority in calling informal meetings of the Cabinet during the President's serious illness, is to be followed up by other important developments in which the President will play an active rôle.

The President has been advised of the action taken by the Senate yesterday when it adopted the Brandegee resolution calling on him to advise the Senate whether any, and if so, what "agreement or understanding exists between him and officials of Great Britain" concerning the disposition by the United States Government of the German ships which the United States Shipping Board is proposing to sell, or which were acquired by the United States after the termination of hostilities.

The President will reply to the Brandegee resolution. His reply is now being prepared and will be sent to the Senate inside of the next few days. So far as the ships which the Shipping Board is proposing to sell are concerned, it is believed that the President will not only deny, but will probably resent, the imputation that he had a secret agreement with the British Government concerning their disposition and will deal rather vigorously with the implication that there had been any agreement.

Besides answering the Brandegee resolution the President will probably preside over a meeting of his Cabinet during the present week. No call has yet been issued for a meeting but it was learned tonight that the President intended to have a Cabinet meeting soon over which he would preside, and the information was obtained in an authoritative quarter that such a Cabinet meeting might be held as early as Tuesday. It was asserted in the same quarter that the President was again strong enough to sit at the head of the Cabinet table.

Except for the informal sessions of the Cabinet which were held during the illness of President Wilson under the call of Secretary Lansing, no meetings between the President and his Cabinet have been held since just before the President left Washington early last September for his speaking tour in advocacy of the Peace Treaty.

President Ready to Take Charge.

There is every indication tonight that President Wilson has regained his fighting fettle, and that he contemplates in the immediate future taking such an active part in the conduct of executive duties that there will be no doubt as to his ability to act vigorously as President of the United States. Close friends of the President regard his action in the case of Secretary Lansing as the first step in the plans of the Executive for again taking hold of the affairs of his office. The next step in that direction was the personal conference which the President held on the White House lawn on Friday, the day of Secretary Lansing's resignation, with the railroad

Polk Confirms News of President's Action

Confirmation of the news from Paris that the British and French Foreign Offices had been notified that President Wilson could not approve of their plan for the settlement of the Adriatic question was obtained last night from Frank L. Polk, Acting Secretary of State, at the home of his mother, Mrs. William Polk, 310 Fifth Avenue.

"The dispatch is true," said Mr. Polk. "It was known at the time in Washington, and so reported in the newspapers, that the President was opposed to the proposed settlement."

ADRIATIC ISSUE IMPERILS TREATY

Literal Interpretation of President's Threat Suggests That It May Be Pigeonholed.

BACKING UP JUGOSLAVS

Effect of President's Action Likely to be to Stiffen Their Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—President Wilson's attitude on the Adriatic question, as set forth in his identical memorandum to the British and French Governments, in which he has warned them that, unless they yield to him in the effort to settle this problem the United States will find it impossible to continue to concern itself with European affairs, may have an important bearing on the status of the Treaty of Versailles, now pending before the American Senate.

Whether it means that unless the Allies yield to President Wilson on the Adriatic question there will be no Treaty of Versailles, so far as the United States Government is concerned, could not be definitely determined tonight, in view of the refusal of the White House to authorize any comment whatever on the crisis that had developed as a result of President Wilson's threat to the Allies in the matter of their proposed plan for an Adriatic settlement.

A literal construction of President Wilson's declaration that the United States would find it impossible to continue to concern itself with European affairs unless the Allies yield on the Adriatic issue, would mean the refusal of President Wilson to deposit the American ratification of the Treaty of Versailles in Paris even if the treaty were ratified by the Senate, with or without reservations.

The pending Treaty of Versailles would compel the United States to concern itself in European affairs, under the terms of the treaty, once American ratification were deposited in Paris, and President Wilson would not be able to give full effect to his warning that America would not continue to concern herself in European affairs if the Adriatic problem were settled out of accord with his views unless he should also refuse to continue to concern himself in European affairs under the terms of the treaty.

Although the treaty of Versailles has been signed by the United States, it has not been ratified, and treaties are never effective until after the actual exchange of ratifications. It has frequently been pointed out during the long fight in the Senate over the Lodge reservations and the League of Nations covenant, that President Wilson could refuse to accept an unsatisfactory ratification of the Senate and pigeonhole the treaty.

After the ratifications have been once deposited and the treaty has come into force as a completed compact between the United States and those Governments with which it has exchanged ratifications, the United States would be in honor bound to live up to the treaty in the form in which it had ratified it, provided those ratifications were accepted by the others. But until this has been accomplished the treaty is not a

Sultan to Stay in Constantinople; But Allies Will Control Dardanelles

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Agreement has been reached by the Supreme Allied Council to permit the Sultan to maintain his court in Constantinople, but Turkey must give guarantees, especially relative to the Dardanelles, and must not have an army, according to London advices quoting a statement by Premier Millerand.

Further advices from London, confirmatory of the above, are to the effect that the Allies will maintain vigorous military and naval control over the Straits of the Dardanelles.

The experts tomorrow will begin the discussion of the methods of control. Marshal Foch will represent France.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—On the day of Premier Millerand's return from the first session of the London conferences the French press estimates honors about even between him and Premier Lloyd George. The latter won on the question of the German culprits, and the former prevailed on that of leaving the Sultan in Constantinople.

British and French Premiers Reject Wilson's Stand

PARIS, Monday, Feb. 16.—Premiers Millerand and Lloyd George have sent a reply to President Wilson's note relative to the Adriatic compromise and hold to their position expressed in the note sent to the Jugoslav Government on Jan. 20, giving that Government a choice between the compromise or the execution of the Treaty of London, according to "Pertinax," in the Echo de Paris this morning.

Mr. Wilson's charges against Italy are rejected by the two Premiers, it is said by the newspaper, which declares they asserted in their reply that Italy threw all her weight into the struggle and fought for high ideals. The number of Italian dead is recalled in one section of the reply.

While thus replying to Mr. Wilson, Mr. Lloyd George, acting as President of the Conference, wrote M. Trumbitch, Jugoslav Foreign Minister, informing him that England and France maintained their original viewpoint, namely, that Jugoslavia must accept the compromise agreement or face the execution of the Treaty of London.

Premier Millerand has called a Cabinet meeting for Tuesday to hear his account of the London negotiations. He will also make a statement on the diplomatic situation to the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs.

WILSON WARNS THE ALLIES

President Serves Identical Notice on London, Paris and Rome.

Pertinax Denounces Wilson as an Autocrat—Liberte Taunts Him with Failure of Treaty.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—President Wilson has notified the British, French and Italian Governments that if they settle the Adriatic problem without the concurrence of Washington the United States will not concern itself further in the settlement of pending European questions. He declares that neither of the proposed solutions is compatible with the American attitude.

This notification was contained in a note handed to the French Foreign Office late yesterday by Ambassador Wallace, and at the same time handed to the British Government in London and the Italian Government in Rome.

It reached the allied Governments the day after Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand in London had promised Premier Nitti that before he left the British capital either the compromise plan of Jan. 20 or the Treaty of London would be put in force.

French Diplomats Excited.

French diplomats are greatly excited over President Wilson's action. They say that the American Government will not take part in the discussion of the Council of Premiers, to which it is invited, yet at the same time exacts that the Premiers' decisions must be shaped in accordance with Washington's wishes.

The French press tonight takes up the question in sensational style, and its comment is bitter.

Wilson's Criticism of British Plan.

The Temps publishes the following semi-official note:

"The Ambassador of the United States yesterday handed to the Minister of Foreign Affairs a memorandum by which the Government of the United States expresses its opinion on the Adriatic problem. The same memorandum was handed yesterday to the British Government in London.

"The Government of the United States criticised the Lloyd George proposal which was communicated to the Jugoslavs by the Supreme Council Jan. 20. Mr. Wilson has examined this project, but he declares that he cannot approve the terms of it. He objects particularly to the idea of giving the Jugoslavs the choice between this project and the application pure and simple of the Treaty of London. Besides, the President of the United States finds that the Lloyd George project differs too much from the memorandum framed in London last December by Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau with the collaboration of the American representative.

"President Wilson declares that if the allied powers settle the Adriatic problem without consulting the Government of the United States, the latter will find it impossible to continue to concern itself with European affairs.

"The American memorandum was quickly examined by the allied chiefs before M. Millerand left London this morning.

"It is known that the chiefs of the allied Governments had previously handed M. Trumbitch, the Jugoslav Foreign Minister in London, a note asking him to request his Government to reply categorically as quickly as possible to the last note by which the Premiers of England and France notified the Treaty of London to the Belgrade Government and called on it to subscribe to the Lloyd George project with the alternative of having the Treaty of London enforced."

Resented as Interference.

Paris got its first news of President Wilson's move in a London dispatch from Pertinax, the political editor of the Echo de Paris, in which he said:

"Not content with having dismissed Lansing, his Secretary of State, in a tone that no Russian despot ever employed toward his most faulty Minister, Wilson has mixed in the business of the London conference. In a note addressed to the Governments of France, England and Italy he declares that on the question of the Adriatic he holds to the point of view expressed in the documents handed Italy last December by the United States, England and France. If his advice is not taken, he threatens to retire from the conference of Paris.

"If France and England, Jugoslavia having rejected a compromise, authorize Italy to proceed with the execution of the Treaty of London, they will find themselves facing a stubborn and threatening Wilson. Lloyd George and Millerand have just promised Nitti that before he leaves London the compromise plan or the Treaty of London will prevail. I do not know what they will do, but if they allow Wilson to contradict all their decisions it is evident that the best thing they can do is to end their conference and go play in the snow.

Calls Wilson an Autocrat.

"It is inadmissible that Wilson—an autocrat, truly, but an autocrat who is about to fall—should be allowed to impose his political conceptions upon us when within a year Republicans will rule at the White House, and in all probability will immediately denounce all his conceptions."

The Intransigeant tonight says:

"Wilson threatens the conference with his withdrawal from its bosom if it adopts any other than his solution for the Adriatic problem; and, inasmuch as the United States possesses a great mass of pounds sterling, francs and lire, the diplomats in London probably will not wish to unchain the thunderbolts of the American King."

La Liberte says:

"Once more the personal wishes of a statesman who is combated in his own country, and who has not been able to obtain the ratification of the treaty, comes to counteract the efforts of the great European powers to remedy the present confusion.

America 'Can Help by Keeping Out.'

"Lloyd George and Millerand have just given formal promise to Nitti that before the London conference ends the Adriatic affair will be settled by the acceptance of a compromise or by the enforcement of the Treaty of London. To this promise Mr. Wilson puts his veto. Closed in his proud isolation, irritated by his malady, without contact with the allied Cabinets or with his own Ministers, the unreasonable President of the United States pretends to direct from the White House affairs of Europe of which he has not the slightest conception. Does he know the real situation at Rome or Belgrade? Does he know what concessions Italy has already made?

"There is one thing not to be forgotten, and that is that the financial reconstitution of Europe, for which America gives us its advice, but not its assistance, is possible only if we settle our political problems. In this work the United States can help us by keeping out."

Calls Treatment of Lansing Brutal.

The French newspapers give the greatest prominence today to the resignation of Secretary Lansing. The dispatches dealing with the differences between him and President Wilson receive more attention than even the conferences in London.

It is difficult for Paris editors to take a side in the quarrel; for, while they have lost most of their love for Mr. Wilson, they never had any for Mr. Lansing, because when the Secretary was here he was very outspoken in his opinions of certain diplomatic methods of European statesmen, and that made him few friends.

However, while not taking Lansing's part in any decided fashion, the French press in its discussion of the situation is distinctly hostile to the President and generally refers to his treatment of Mr. Lansing as "brutal." For the most part the editors leave comment to their American correspondents and for the moment reserve the expression of formal opinions. Those who do comment themselves find new proof that Mr. Wilson is an autocrat.

St. Brice in the Journal says that only the façade of the American Administration is democratic. He recalls that it was from the day on which Lansing succeeded Bryan that America became the fast friend of the Allies. He believes that Lansing's resignation at this time means only the delayed explosion of a mine, and that Lansing and Wilson would have sooner come to the parting of the ways if Wilson had not been ill.

The Figaro predicts further upheavals in the Wilson Cabinet.

The comment of the Washington correspondents of the Paris papers is distinctly favorable to Lansing's side of the case.

Asks Allies To Be Conciliatory.

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 16.—The Times comments at some length on Mr. Wilson's note on the Adriatic question, the tenor of which, it thinks, cannot be regarded as affected by Mr. Lansing's resignation.

It believes the American position in this matter is substantially right, and thinks it comprehensible that the note should have caused some perturbation among members of the Supreme Allied Council, "whose recent proceedings have not always appeared inspired by right and fidelity to principle."

The Council is urged to draft its reply carefully, for "the allied peoples would scarcely forgive them were they guided by aught but the most mature conciliatory wisdom."

The "No Treaty" Implication.

Remarking upon the implication in the note that unless the Allies meet President Wilson's views he may be unable to seek ratification of the Peace Treaty or further interest himself in the European settlement, The Times adds:

"We do not consider participation by the United States in the outstanding problems of peace as the absolute sine qua non of the restoration of order in the Old World, but are persuaded that in the highest interests of Europe, the United States and humanity, continued cooperation by America is desirable as an infusion of the great force of American idealism into the affairs of the world.

"Therefore, we earnestly trust the council will give the note the ripest and most generous consideration, and ask itself whether the advice it contains may not support a policy sounder than that reflected in the somewhat immoral expedients by which it recently sought to attain an end which was common to them and President Wilson."

Paris Views of the Crisis.

PARIS, Monday, Feb. 16.—Commenting upon President Wilson's note to the Supreme Allied Council relative to the compromise agreement on the Adriatic question, the Journal says it was "a large paving stone in the conference pond."

This aptly sums up the trend of French opinion. There is no attempt to disguise the fact that the incident creates a serious situation. England and France, according to the newspapers here, are "placed between the devil and the deep sea."

Although Mr. Wilson's attitude is viewed as excessive in the light of the "discredit thrown upon his policy by the resistance of the Senate, yet the fact remains Mr. Wilson is absolute master until the Spring of 1921, and that the Allies are obliged to take him into account," says The Journal.

"President Wilson's abrupt intervention," the newspaper continues, "was less to be expected since the President himself has been exhorting the nations of Europe to put an end at the earliest possible moment to political stagnation, which has been the principal cause of economic stagnation."

"President Wilson," remarks the Petit Parisien, "does not seem to have taken any account of what has been done during the last two months, as if that period were negligible. He harks back brusquely by publishing a document the object of which is to call everything into question at a moment when the goal appeared to be in sight."

Most of the other newspapers comment on the situation, but their views are expressed in the same strain as those given.

Complaint of Wilson's Delay.

ROME, Feb. 15.—Reports from Paris relative to the note President Wilson has sent to the Supreme Allied Council, in which he enters objections to the compromise reached by the Allies regarding the Adriatic question, are printed in the Messaggero, which comments unfavorably upon this "sudden and new intervention by President Wilson." The newspaper observes that he might have expressed his point of view before the Italian-Jugoslav question reached its present status.

Compares Wilson and Louis XIV.

PARIS, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—Although all Paris newspapers gave prominence to Washington dispatches telling of the resignation of Secretary of State Lansing and his correspondence with President Wilson, but few have commented editorially on the incident.

"President Wilson," the Journal says, "returns after his mysterious illness, and comes to the conclusion that Secretary Lansing, during his absence, has been ruling as Lansing wished, and dismisses him. National representation and popular sentiment are not even consulted in reaching a decision in which Louis XIV. would have used more formality."

In its editorial article on the incident, the Libre Parole remarks:

"President Wilson, who has governed his country seven years without the least regard for national representation, who threw America into the war after winning the election on a peace program, and who domineered over the peace negotiations, returns from a mysterious illness to accuse his Foreign Minister of governing autocratically during his absence. Isn't that laughable? Mr. Wilson has given the impression for some days that he is preparing to 'change his coat.' Isn't Mr. Lansing's disgrace the first step?"

Jugoslav Cabinet Out.

BELGRADE, Feb. 14.—The Cabinet, headed by Premier Liouba Davidovitch, resigned today owing to the refusal of Prince Regent Alexander to dissolve the present provisional National Assembly and order elections for a National Constituent Assembly.

The Davidovitch Ministry was formed on Aug. 16, 1919.

An official communication with regard to the resignation of the Cabinet says:

"The Prince Regent not having deigned to accept the proposition of the Royal Government to dissolve the Provisional Assembly, and ordain elections for a National Permanent Assembly, the Davidovitch Cabinet has tendered its resignation."

completed compact and not binding on the United States.

Wilson's Attitude to Senate Recalled.

The warning which the President has now served on the Allies that he will refuse to play in the European game unless they play with him his way on the Adriatic question is not unlike his attitude toward the opponents of the treaty in the Senate, who have considered his position to be that unless the treaty were ratified to his satisfaction he would refuse to accept the work of the Senate.

Whether President Wilson is willing to go the extent of the threat implied in his warning and actually withdraw the treaty from the Senate, or refuse to complete the act of ratification after the Senate does act, or only intends to withdraw the United States from concern with European affairs in the settlements yet to be made respecting the Turkish question, Constantinople, Asia Minor, and in the pending Hungarian settlement, can be clearly learned only when President Wilson himself is willing to interpret the construction he himself places upon the warning to the Allies that it may become impossible for him to concern himself longer with European affairs.

At this particular moment the President is declared by some of his closest friends to be in the finest fighting fettle, and the manner in which he has served his warning on the British and French Governments, just as they were most hopeful of bringing Jugoslavia around to an acceptance of the plan of settlement which Italy was willing to adopt, can leave no doubt that he is determined in delivering his threat to the Allies.

Possibility of a Separate Peace.

Should the President go to the extent of throwing the treaty over rather than have the American Government concern itself with European affairs after the Allies' refusal to consult the United States in the settlement of the Adriatic problem, it would bring the treaty fight in the Senate to an easy solution, but would develop a very serious situation in American foreign relations. The refusal of the President to go ahead with the treaty would leave the United States without any treaty of peace with Germany, and the war powers that have been given to the President would remain in effect until changed or taken away from him by future legislation. Such legislation could not be enacted, however, except over the President's veto, by a two-thirds vote.

One of the stories which have been going around Washington ever since the treaty fight began was that if the Republicans should succeed in defeating the treaty in the Senate the President would then undertake the negotiation of a new and independent separate treaty of peace with Germany, and that he would ask Senators Lodge and Knox to go to Berlin as American commissioners to negotiate peace.

Should the President carry out his warning to the allied powers to the extent of actually throwing the Treaty of Versailles overboard, it would be possible for him, should he so determine, to attempt to negotiate a separate peace with Germany. The ultimate effect of such action by the President is a matter for very serious speculation, but it is conceivable that the carrying out of such a threat, involving a refusal of the United States to ratify the treaty, and its absence from the League of Nations, might bring about a revision by the European powers of the Treaty of Versailles to suit themselves.

It was suggested in one quarter tonight, in the event that the refusal of the American Government further to concern itself in European affairs was intended as meaning that there would be no Versailles Treaty, so far as the United States was concerned, that it would be very easy for the Presiden to ask the Senate to send the treaty back to him, and in withdrawing it the President could attempt to place upon the Allies the blame for the failure to obtain a treaty.

The President might argue that when he entered into this treaty he felt that the Allies were willing to settle the Adriatic and other pending questions along the lines of certain principles satisfactory to himself, and that since the remaining international settlements were not satisfactory it would be useless to go ahead with the first series of treaties made in Paris.

Wilson's Dislike for London Treaty.

The President has never been favorable to the secret Treaty of London. It is understood to have been regarded by him as being violative of the principle of "open covenants, openly arrived at," and it is not surprising that he objected to it as an alternative. What France and England did was to submit the proposed Adriatic settlement to Jugoslavia, and then to submit to Jugoslavia the terms of the Treaty of London, with the statement that if Jugoslavia did not promptly accept the proposed Adriatic compromise it would be compelled to take the treaty of London.

This alternative was presented to Jugoslavia by France and England in the hope that it would force Jugoslavia into acceptance as between the alternatives Jugoslavia would prefer the proposed Adriatic settlement to the Treaty of London. Under the Treaty of London Jugoslavia would be much worse off than under the plans proposed by the Allies for settlement of the Adriatic issues. But for the stand taken by President Wilson the Jugoslavs would probably have no other resort than to yield.

On the other hand, the position of the Italians has been that they have made great sacrifices in their willingness to accept the Lloyd George plan; and it was the conciliatory attitude of Nitti in making these concessions that so impressed Lloyd George and Millerand that they were willing to put the Treaty of London into effect if Jugoslavia refused to meet the Italian concessions.

Italy had agreed to the Lloyd George-Clemenceau plan with the understanding that if Jugoslavia should refuse its assent to the proposed settlement France and England would carry out the terms of the Treaty of London as a last resort. Jugoslavia at the end of January sent a reply to the Allies which amounted to a virtual refusal of the compromise offered by the Italians, and the Allies have since been trying to win Jugoslavia over to acceptance of the plan of settlement.

The probable effect of President Wilson's attitude will be to stiffen the opposition of the Jugoslavs against the proposed settlement and bring on a new crisis in the Adriatic situation unless the Allies, Italy and Jugoslavia are prepared to enter into the settlement despite the protest that President Wilson has sent to London and Paris.

President Wilson's refusal to assent to the Adriatic decision, which contemplated the making of a free city out of Fiume, is understood to have been forwarded from Washington on Friday afternoon in the form of identical memoranda from President Wilson to the French and British Foreign Offices, which were delivered at Paris and London yesterday afternoon. In these memoranda the President is understood not only to have refused to accept the Lloyd George plan of settlement, but to have served a warning also that the United States would find it impossible to continue in conference if the Allies should settle the Adriatic question without consulting the United States.

Cipher Dispatch from Wallace.

Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador at Paris, who was permitted by President Wilson to be present at the conference of the new Supreme Council which met at Paris in January, but who was not allowed by the President to speak or serve except as an observer in these conferences, sent a long cipher dispatch to President Wilson about the middle of January, explaining the provisions of the proposed plan for the settlement of the Adriatic problem. This plan of settlement was embraced in a memorandum which had been agreed upon between Lloyd George and Clemenceau on Jan. 5. It was submitted to Nitti, the Italian Premier, and accepted by him on Jan. 7. There remained only the acceptance of the plan by Jugoslavia and its approval by President Wilson.

Compromise Made Fiume Free City.

The plan is understood to have provided for the erection of Fiume into a free city under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations, for the continuance of the Italian form of Government and the protection of Italian rights; for the cession to Italy of a narrow strip of land along the coast connecting Trieste with Fiume; for the exercise of the right of free disposition upon the citizens of the Island of Zara and contiguous territory and for the cession of Albania to Jugoslavia. The plan dealt with the disposition to be made of Fiume, Volosca and Zara and the Dalmatian Islands, Dussin, Unia, Lissa, Pelagosta and Legoeta and the Albanian port of Avlona and its strategic environs.

The compromise plan did not conform to the point of view of President Wilson, who has been more favorable to the position taken by the Jugoslavs than to that of the Italians: but it had the full indorsement of Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Nitti, and the Allies in submitting it to Jugoslavia had urged that Jugoslavia accept it promptly. The compromise did not represent what the Italians wanted, but it did represent the limit to which Nitti and his Government were willing to go in an effort to bring about a settlement. Premier Nitti, in his recent speeches in the Italian Parliament, has indicated that he thought Italy was going a very long way in yielding in favor of this proposed plan of settlement, and it is also asserted that in thus tentatively accepting the Lloyd George plan of settlement Nitti, speaking for Italy, did so on the express condition that if Jugoslavia did not accept the proposed settlement then England and France should carry out the terms of the Treaty of London.

Before the proposed plan of settlement was submitted to Jugoslavia an explanation of its terms was sent to President Wilson in conformity with a pressing request from the British, French and Italian Premiers that its terms should be explained to the American President. It is understood that they did not care to go ahead with the plan of settlement without consulting President Wilson, but that they were confronted by the embarrassment growing out of the fact that the American State Department, inasmuch as the American Senate had not ratified the treaty, took the position that the United States was unable to have any formal connection with anything that had been done under the Treaty of Versailles or under the other proposed treaties.

SENATE TO DEBATE PEACE TREATY TODAY

Discussion to Be Held Within Reasonable Bounds While Compromise Parley Goes On.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The Peace Treaty fight will pass into another and perhaps decisive stage tomorrow with the best opinion in official and political circles here divided, as to whether the outcome will be ratification or rejection.

Under a plan agreed on a week ago the treaty is to be called formally before the Senate with the Republican reservations adopted at the last session of Congress. A brief season of general debate is expected while negotiations for a compromise are proceeding, but it is the intention of the leaders to hold the discussion within reasonable bounds and to begin within a few days actual Senate consideration of the changes proposed in the reservations.

Solution of most of the collateral issues is expected to be reached with little difficulty along the lines laid down by the recently dissolved bi-partisan conference, but the disagreement over Article X., which is the crux of the whole controversy, remained in a state tonight which seemed to menace seriously the chances of ratification.

Many Senators on both sides of the Chamber are known to be pressing their party leaders to accede to some compromise that will insure ratification, while pressure also is being brought to bear by influential men outside of the Senate in both political parties.

At the same time the differences over Article X. have drawn each side to commit itself in such positive terms that it would be exceedingly difficult, the leaders say, for either to materially change its position. In this situation the best prediction that could be made tonight by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, was that the treaty would be ratified "if we can get sixty-four Senators to agree on it." The Democratic leader, Senator Hitchcock, said he was hopeful that there might be ratification, though he could not foresee on what terms it could be secured.

The first set speech in the reopened treaty debate will be made tomorrow by Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois. Some other discussion is also expected during the day, although no other Senators have given notice formally of their intention to speak. On Tuesday Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado, will speak on the treaty's economic features. Both Senators McCormick and Thomas are members of the group irreconcilably opposed to ratification.

CANADA WARNS SENATE ON TREATY

Will Reject It if Lenroot Reservation Is Adopted, Acting State Secretary Rowell Says.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—N. W. Rowell, acting Secretary of State for External Affairs, declared emphatically tonight that Canada would never consent to ratification of the Peace Treaty by the United States if the Lenroot reservation was adopted in its original form or with the proposed amendment.

Mr. Rowell, who is also President of the Privy Council, outlined Canada's position in a speech delivered before a mass meeting of war veterans. The Lenroot reservation would deprive Canada of her independent voting power in the League of Nations.

"If the United States Senate should adopt the Lenroot reservation," the Secretary said, "either in its original form or amended as now suggested, and should also adopt the preamble as proposed, Canada, as one of the nations of the British Empire and a party to the treaty, would be called upon to decide what action she should take under these conditions.

"There can be no possible doubt what Canada's decision will be. She cannot and will not consent to any impairment of her status and voting rights under the treaty. Therefore, when final action of the treaty is taken by the Government of the United States, if the ratification can only become effective on Canada's assent thereto, the ratification cannot go into effect so far as Canada is concerned, as Canada will not give that assent.

"Canada has made her position perfectly clear to the proper authorities in London, and she has asked them to make her position clear to the authorities in Washington. We have done this in the interests of good understanding between the United States and Canada," Mr. Rowell continued.

SWISS TO DEBATE LEAGUE.

Entry Under Special Provisions to be Discussed in Chamber.

BERNE, Feb. 14.—Discussion of Switzerland's entry into the League of Nations will begin in the Federal Chamber on Feb. 25. The Federal Council will on that date bring before the Chamber proposals calling for adherence to the League, on the ground that the Allies have recognized the special position of this country and have agreed that passage of troops or preparation for war on Swiss territory will not be permitted.

Sections of the legislative enactment known as the "American clauses," which would make Switzerland's adherence to the League dependent upon similar action by the United States will be abandoned.

TELLS HOW 'TIGER' WON GUARANTEES

Tardieu Recalls Incidents of Six Months' Fight in Council of Four.

LEVER OF RHINE OCCUPATION

French See in It the Strongest Instrument to Insure Execution of the Treaty.

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—That provision of the Peace Treaty to which France for the moment attaches the greatest importance is the clause indicating the occupation of the Rhineland. France believes that the strongest guarantee for the execution of the treaty is the presence of allied troops on the German river. And so there is special interest in André Tardieu's recital in today's L'Illustration of how Premier Clemenceau fought six months against Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson to obtain the provision for the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine. Incidentally, M. Tardieu seizes the occasion to praise the work of M. Clemenceau and to answer the latter's critics.

M. Tardieu, former French High Commissioner to the United States, is generally credited with having written that part of the treaty referred to, and few knew more about how it came to be written than he.

He begins his article with this paragraph: "Germany does not execute the treaty. Our coal does not arrive. She does not wish to give up the culprits whose extradition Hermann Muller, still Minister of Foreign Affairs, pledged by his signature last June. It is time to put into play the means of action which the treaty assures us as guarantees of its execution." Then, going to the kernel of the situation, he writes: "The right to occupy for fifteen years the left bank of the Rhine, to prolong this occupation at the expiration of fifteen years and, finally, the right to renew it after evacuation, was obtained for France by M. Clemenceau at the price of a continuous effort of six months. The occupation of the left bank of the Rhine and of the bridgeheads as guarantees was a necessary protection for France against an invasion such as that which has occurred twice in fifty years. For others, associated heart and body with our dangers of yesterday and of tomorrow, the occupation seemed, under their conception of history, differently interpreted, unjustifiable, useless and dangerous."

French Demanded Security.

"The thesis of the French delegation has been one great principle. In the first conversations, as in the last, we asked for occupation, for two purposes—as security against a Germany of greater population than France, which will have for years millions of men trained for war, since they have made war, and also as a guarantee for the execution of the treaty by a Germany which has given us so many reasons to doubt her good faith."

M. Tardieu then tells how, before Mr. Wilson reached Paris, M. Clemenceau began a discussion with Colonel House. On Jan. 8 the French case was summarized in a memorial, in which was advocated the making of an independent territory in the Rhineland. In common with Foch, the French delegation advocated making the Rhine the westward boundary of Germany and forming an independent State in the Rhineland under the League of Nations, thus making the famous river the "frontier of civilization." On Feb. 6 the French memorial was submitted to the allied delegations, and the objections began. Lloyd George made his famous declaration against forming a second Alsace-Lorraine.

Then, on Feb. 25, France presented another memorial, setting forth that neither the League of Nations, without an armed force, nor the proposed disarmament of Germany gave France sufficient protection. As a result, a committee, on which were a Frenchman, an Englishman and an American, was named to reach an accord.

The situation then, as M. Tardieu outlines it, was that England and America questioned the wisdom of occupying for a long time a territory peopled by 7,000,000 Germans. But they laid still more emphasis upon the objections to cutting these Germans off from Germany as a violation of the principle of self-determination. He said the French reply was that the people of the Rhineland were not Prussians, and that there was nothing imperialistic in the French demand, inasmuch as the proposed independent state would not be under the domination of France, but of the League of Nations. And always France demanded protection. The committee was not able to agree, and so the matter was refrered back to the chiefs of the Governments.

First Offer of An Alliance.

It was then, M. Tardieu says, that President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George proposed to give France the protection of treaties in exchange for the guarantees she asked on the Rhine. M. Tardieu tells how Mr. Wilson returned March 14, and how M. Clemenceau at once pressed the French case, arguing that the League was not sufficient protection, since it would have no armed force, and asking for an independent state along the Rhine.

"At once," M. Tardieu writes, "the same objections arose. But to the great Frenchman who maintained his stand so stoutly, a new and different offer was made. Great Britain, proudly protected by her splendid isolation, the United States 'too proud to fight,' separated from the rest of the world by the testament of Washington and the Monroe Doctrine, proposed to France a real treaty of alliance, their immediate military guarantee against any unprovoked attack by Germany, a proposition without precedent, of immense importance, which would conserve in peace the means of solidarity by which we had won the war.

"M. Clemenceau, who had not asked this—as he recalled later with pride before the Senate—declared quickly the very high value he attached to this offer, but he made known his desire not to answer at once. He wished to reflect and confer. On the 15th and 16th of March three meetings were held at the Ministry of War, where orally and by three notes the different aspects of the problem were presented and discussed.

"From this examination two conclusions came, equally luminous and for the moment contradictory. The first was that the French Government, receiving such an offer under such conditions, would be criminal to let it escape. The second was that a government which would be content with the bare offer would be equally criminal. For in the conversations of March 14 Messrs. Lloyd George and Wilson clearly indicated that they offered a military guarantee in exchange for the occupation and independence of the left bank of the Rhine. It was to avoid the latter, which they did not wish, that they proposed the former, the value of which seemed to them at least as vital and, in the just pride they felt in the power of their countries, perhaps superior. They recognized as incontestable the right of France to guarantees; but, avoiding the means we suggested, they suggested another. The left bank of the Rhine should remain German. The left bank should be occupied neither by an interallied force nor by a French force. On the other hand, Great Britain and the United States would give to France in case of peril the solemn promise of their immediate military aid.

French Insisted on Occupation.

"The decision of M. Clemenceau was taken on the evening of the 16th and put into a note which was sent on the morning of the 17th to the chiefs of the allied Governments. A proposition had been made to us which replaced one guarantee by another. We refused the substitution. We recognized with the most sincere appreciation of its value the engagement offered us, and we desired to assure ourselves of it, on condition that there be joined to it part of the other guarantees asked by us, and, above all, that of occupation."

M. Tardieu goes on to say that this note marked the beginning of conversations twice a day until April 22, in which France sought to get guarantees from England and America, but at the same time the certainty of occupation of the Rhineland. He writes:

"In vain on the 21st M. Clemenceau called before the Supreme Council Marshal Foch, the Commander in Chief of the allied armies. The Marshal set forth the plan for this occupation. The allied Generals were silent.

"On April 4 a Continental country whose interests were involved with ours let it be known that it was opposed to an extended occupation. We were alone, and the situation was strained. Journals across the water became aggressive; certain French journals were no less so. In two days Mr. Lloyd George gave out two disturbing interviews. The report was put in circulation, despite the efforts of Colonel House, that the steamship George Washington had been urgently called to Brest.

"Immovable, M. Clemenceau supported his cause. We multiplied our notes. We showed that, whatever was the importance of the results obtained, it was still impossible to secure otherwise a guarantee for the execution of the treaty. France must have physical protection against Germany, which would have for years to come, because of the war, millions of trained soldiers. We showed that the double need could be met only by occupation. Days passed. Finally the unshakable obstinacy of Clemenceau obtained his object. Light appeared. Prudently, slowly, patiently he enlarged the opening, and on April 20, at 6 o'clock, he obtained the first assent, that of President Wilson, to the terms of Chaper 14. On the morning of April 22 Mr. Lloyd George gave his consent. In spite of differences of opinion, the relations of these three men during these forty days had not ceased to be sincere, calm and affectionate. Their fellow-countrymen should never forget that."

Now Invoked Against Germany.

M. Tardieu recalls that it is Chapter 14 which M. Millerand now intends to invoke against Germany.

"The interallied occupation of the left bank and bridgeheads," he says, "is fixed at fifteen years. The zones will be evacuated by periods of five years, but on one condition—that Germany faithfully carries out the treaty. If she does not there will be no evacuation in five-year periods. Even at the end of fifteen years we will have our safeguard: if the Allies judge the securities insufficient against unprovoked German aggression there will be no evacuation. Even if after evacuation Germany fails to live up to her obligations of payments, we will reoccupy the territory—each and all of the Allies together, and not France alone.

M. Tardieu says that only one feature of the French program failed of acceptance, and that was the plan for the creation of an independent Rhineland. He regrets this, but thinks that France has a settlement on which she can congratulate herself.

Then M. Tardieu reviews Germany's formal objections to the occupation and tells how for six weeks Clemenceau had to fight for or against the arguments of Germany, from time to time supported by some allied statesmen.

"One by one," he says, "with infinite tact, but with unshakable determination, Clemenceau refuted these arguments. For fifteen days he defended his work. As for the occupation, he would not give way; he could not give way. If he was not heeded he would resign. Some one succeeding him might find a way, but he never.

"On June 13 Clemenceau obtained satisfaction. Chapter 14 was retained without the change of a word."

In conclusion M. Tardieu pays this tribute to the "Tiger":

"Here is something that should be said, and said now. One day last year Clemenceau was accused of not having represented France at the Peace Conference. We replied: 'When you know what took place you will regret your words.' Justice comes late, but it comes always. History will record that the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine and the bridgeheads with our Allies, who did not wish it, with guarantees of the treaty, disarmament, neutralization for fifty kilometers on the right bank and the right of investigation in Germany—all that is the work of Georges Clemenceau."

TO VOTE BY PUSH-BUTTON.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Votes on motions and resolutions in the Chamber of Deputies would be recorded by an electrical device under the previsions of a bill now before that body. Proposals have been asked from manufacturers so that the best system may be installed, by which the old, cumbersome method of collecting votes in urns will be eliminated.

Plans for the new system contemplate the installation of push buttons on each desk, which will enable a Deputy to cast his ballot quickly and record and tabulate the total vote cast.

Dish Washer Wanted

The shortage of domestic servants creates a wonderful opportunity for the sale of mechanical dish washers.

There are several already on the market; more in process of introduction with perhaps a deluge to follow.

The first years should be golden in results; it was for the first vacuum cleaners.

Later will come the usual failures, the reorganizations, the consolidations, and then a few stable, successful competing manufacturers.

Of course, these varying machines will be advertised.

For those that succeed, advertising will be claimed as the all-powerful aid.

For the failures, it is inevitable that advertising will be blamed.

A good machine with a good organization behind it would eventually succeed without advertising.

A poor one cannot be long bolstered into success even with spectacularly fine advertising.

Sound advertising is an aid in selling. Its cost is absorbed by the economies it effects in distribution.

BALTIC LANDWEHR OUTFOUGHT REDS

PERFORMED AMAZING DEEDS

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Just what the Bolshevist Army is really worth may be judged by the amazing exploits of the Baltic Landwehr under the English Colonel Alexander in the Lettish campaigns, which in three weeks from Jan. 8 cleared the Reds wholly from Letgalen Province.

The Landwehr are Letvian citizens of Teutonic origin—the majority descendants of the famous Knights of the Sword and their retainers who conquered the Baltic Provinces 700 years ago. Originally formed as a White Guard against the Reds, whom they expelled from Riga last Summer, they have been raised by Colonel Alexander to the level of first class western troops.

At the beginning of January they were holding a front thirty miles long on the eastern bank of the River Dvina north of Dvinsk, and had some 2,000 men in line for the campaign about to begin. But in view of the shortage of supplies and transport difficulties—everything had to be moved by peasant sleds over two narrow tracks that were the only available routes across a frozen morass stretching twelve miles deep before them—Alexander decided that better results could be obtained by a small force fully supplied and transported than a less mobile larger one.

"In Russia God is on the side of the small battalions, not the big ones," he told me the day before I left Riga. "That is, if they have the right spirit and are properly trained. I believe that if Napoleon had had 50,000 men instead of 500,000 the retreat from Moscow would never have occurred."

Landwehr Picked Men.

The Landwehr are picked men. They know from A to Z the game of reducing machine-gun posts, which is the thing most needed in war against the Bolsheviki, and they have one of the finest leaders in Europe. No better material could have been found for what looked to be a dangerously rash experiment. For Alexander chose 600 and no more to open the attack on his thirty-mile front.

He divided his little army into three columns, each a division in miniature, commanding the central body personally with a small staff. Each force had about 100 infantry and some thirty-five horsemen as a scouting screen before it. There was one battery of three-inch field guns with about twenty-five gunners for the whole army, but each division had two minerwerfer with ten men as crews and four heavy machine guns with three servants apiece. Machine guns were plentiful, nearly a score to each division, with two men to every one. The rest of the infantry had rifles only.

Not the least important was the signal corps—the Colonel's staff kept touch by wireless with the Landwehr Headquarters at Lievenhof, which relayed to Lettish Headquarters, and there was also regular telephonic communication between the central section and the two bodies to right and left.

The system adopted as far as possible was to advance two days and one night, then halt and rest for two nights and one day. Invariably telephonic communication was established within two hours of arrival at a resting point, and to this precaution a good part of the success is attributable. For the success was so great it was almost miraculous.

By evening of the first day the enemy's front, held by upward of 5,000 men, was pierced at three chief points of resistance and the victorious 600 had driven the Bolsheviki ten miles back beyond it.

Owing to the small numbers and disproportionate width of the front it was impossible to keep in direct touch with the Poles on the right and the left division on the left, but Alexander learned their positions by wireless and took care not to let his army get dangerously far ahead of them.

The form of attack was always the same—what the French called "infiltration" during the German drives of the Spring of 1918; that is, no frontal attacks but rapid advance of flanking parties utilizing all cover possible whenever resistance was met.

Machine Guns Quickly Reduced.

"The average time taken to reduce a machine gun was eighteen minutes," said Alexander. "Once we got around them and began firing from the flanks and rear the crew generally threw up the sponge, but if they happened to be Communists who stuck it out our accurate fire soon put the gun out of action. Once you know how to tackle them, machine guns are not dangerous unless arranged to cover each other like the links of a chain. If you can flank 'em you've got 'em."

In less than two weeks the six hundred had advanced over fifty miles, taken two score villages and 500 prisoners and killed and wounded many more. Their own casualties were trifling. Not a small factor of success was the invariable fair treatment of the inhabitants. When a village was occupied inquiries were immediately made as to how the Communists in charge had behaved. If the inhabitants brought proof of grave misconduct the Communists, if prisoners, as was frequently the case, were executed. If the people said they had behaved decently their lives were spared, and in one case where the Communist leader had evidently done his genuine best for the people under him, a pass back to the Red lines was given him. This and the absence of all pillaging or disorder created the most favorable impression.

It had been said in Riga that the Letgalen people were the worst type of Red Letts, firm supporters of the Bolshevist régime, and that there was bound to be trouble in rear of the advancing forces. Not only did Alexander have nothing of the kind, such as the cutting of telephone wires or interference with transport columns, but the peasants used actually to push ahead scouting for him during the rests and bring back information from other villages still in Bolshevist hands. Only on one occasion did information so given prove erroneous.

Owing to the smallness of numbers it was possible to move forward the infantry on sleds when not actually fighting, thus greatly conserving their strength. As soon as resistance was encountered the men left the sleds and began outflanking movements in small groups deployed in skirmishing order.

Very little Red artillery was encountered until the assailants got near the Letgalen capital, Regziza, where the Bolsheviki had two batteries and an armored train whose fire was very inaccurate. At this point the six hundred were joined by a thousand men from the main body. Retaining the formation of three divisions, each some 500 strong, they instituted a flank attack against the town from the south. It was invested by the Letts from due west, who were held up by old trenches and barbed wire garrisoned by 3,000 or 4,000 men. The total force of defenders was about 10,000, some 4,000 facing the Landswehr in the south and the remainder opposing a flank movement similar to theirs by the Letts from the north.

Here was the only hard battle in which the Landwehr engaged. Their right wing attacked east-southeast to cover the flank of the main drive at Regziza. This body advanced twelve miles in the course of the day and performed its mission admirably without meeting heavy resistance. The central force marched forward south of the town in a northeasterly direction so as, if possible, to cut the railroad at a point about eight miles east of Regziza.

Forced Back by Armored Train.

Though the resistance was fairly severe their vanguard reached the railroad and tore up some of the rails but were unable to destroy the line properly through lack of dynamite. A few minutes later the retrating Bolsheviki' armored train forced them to withdraw and the Reds were able to repair the damage, which allowed more than half the defenders to escape with a good deal of rolling stock and material.

The left wing, containing the best troops, drove due north at Regziza. All morning they had very heavy fighting against greatly superior numbers, supported by the guns of the armored train and a field battery. Their own battery put two guns of the foe's battery and one gun of the train out of action.

Shortly before noon their cavalry began to filter through on the right. The infantry followed, and the Reds' outflanked and outfought, sought safety in flight. More than 300 prisoners were taken, with two guns, and a large number of the enemy were killed and wounded. By 4 P. M. the Landswehr had occupied Regziza, four hours before the first Lettish troops arrived. Three locomotives, much rolling stock and considerable supplies were also captured.

Among the dead were four Communist women—"Flintenweiber" (riflewomen), as Riga calls them—who fought to the bitter end. With short-cropped hair and savage faces, their only sign of feminity was a short skirt reaching to the knees over the regulation baggy Russian breeches. There was also a considerable number of Chinamen, who fought without much skill but desperately, as they neither give nor receive quarter.

After the occupation of Regziza the advance continued a few days longer, to the Letgalen frontier, some twenty miles eastward. When the campaign terminated the Landwehr had advanced some eighty miles, taken nearly 1,000 prisoners, and certainly accounted for twice as many more of the enemy in killed and wounded. Consistently the enemy had outnumbered them five, six and eight to one. Their total casualties were eighteen wounded and four killed.

There was never a day when the men failed to get supplies of munitions and the regular food ration, which was generally hot, even while they were advancing, and always so while resting.

Surely the whole performance justifies the comment of a high British officer in the Baltic: "This young Alexander seems to intend to live up to his name."

RED TROOPS MASSING ON POLISH FRONTIER

Lithuania Gives Terms on Which She Will Form Alliance with Poland.

WARSAW, Feb. 14.—A heavy concentration of Bolshevist troops is reported at three points along the Polish frontier and discussion of the Soviet operations is overshadowing the peace talk, especially among the Polish military authorities. Nevertheless discussions looking to the opening of peace negotiations, possibly in March, are continuing in Warsaw and Moscow. At the same time Lithuania has made known the conditions under which she would be willing to conclude peace with Poland.

In shaping the conditions to be presented to the Soviet Government of Russia Poland is assuming an attitude somewhat similar to that taken by the Allies toward Germany previous to the armistice, Poland contending that it is she who has been wronged and that her war has been a defensive one from the beginning. The framers of the conditions maintain that the burden in every particular should be placed upon the Bolsheviki, who have waged a war of terror and aggression against Poland's just rights.

According to members of the Diet, the military authorities have been consulted and they insist upon the most severe guarantees, both territorial and otherwise, designed to secure Poland in the future against any possible encroachment on the part of the Bolsheviki.

PLAN FOR CHARLES TO ENTER HUNGARY

More Details Learned of the Plot to Restore Hapsburg to the Throne.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 14.—Additional details of the alleged plot for the return of former Emperor Charles to Hungary, given to the allied mission here, state that he was to have crossed the Swiss border into Liechtenstein by boat across the Rhine. From Leichtenstein it was planned for him to walk into Austria and then proceed by automobile to West Hungary.

It is alleged that the Officers' League learned that Minister of the Interior Benitcky was attempting to obtain four passports from the Swiss Consul here without the men for whom they were intended appearing personally. It was intended to send to Charles in Switzerland a passport in the name of Kaspar Kovacs and bearing the former Emperor's photograph, with the other three passports for his companions. Charles, it is said, was to go to Szombathely, in West Hungary, where he would call upon the soldiers to rally to his standard.

"Election of a King is the only solution of the political and economic problems pending in Hungary,' said Count Somsich, President of the Royalist Party, to the Associated Press correspondent yesterday.

union leaders who had come to Washington in connection with the threatened strike of several hundred thousand railroad employes. The President made a proposal to the union leaders to which they tentatively agreed, and have called off the strike at the President's request.

Members of the President's Cabinet now in office, continued today to maintain a discreet silence when asked to comment on the latest rift in the President's official family. The only men who have thus far been willing to state their opinions are Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, who has resigned to take effect on March 1, and William C. Redfield, who resigned as Secretary of the Department of Commerce some time ago. Both Secretary Lane and former Secretary Redfield have assumed full responsibility with Secretary Lansing in the matter of the holding of the informal Cabinet meetings.

While Secretary Lansing called these meetings of the Cabinet, it was learned tonight that the sessions were not held in response to any written call from the former Secretary of State. When the meetings were to be held the members of the Cabinet were notified by telephone as to the day and hour for the sessions.

The statement has been given rather wide circulation that a precedent for the holding of this kind of Cabinet meeting, during the illness of a President, had been found by Secretary Lansing to have been established during the long illness of former President Garfield, which followed the attempt to assassinate Mr. Garfield in the railway station on July 2, 1881, when he was about to leave Washington. Whether Secretary Lansing undertook to ascertain if there were any precedents for calling the Cabinet together for informal sessions while Mr. Wilson was ill has not been verified from the lips of Mr. Lansing, who since his resignation has consistently refused to receive newspaper men or make any comment on the breach between himself and President Wilson.

No Meeting During Garfield's Illness.

Effort was made by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today to ascertain the facts with respect to what was done when President Garfield was ill, and to learn this from the lips of a man, now living in Washington, who was a member of the Cabinet of President Garfield during that trying period. It was learned from him that no Cabinet meetings were called between the time President Garfield was shot on July 2, 1881, and the date of his death the following September at Elberon, N. J.—a period of eighty days, during which the Government's affairs were conducted without President Garfield being able to exercise the functions of his office.

This member of President Garfield's Cabinet is Robert Todd Lincoln, the eldest son of President Abraham Lincoln, and now a resident of Washington. Mr. Lincoln was Secretary of War from 1881 to 1885. He was appointed by President Garfield, served until the death of President Garfield, and, in common with the other members of the Garfield Cabinet, offered his resignation to Vice President Arthur when the latter became President. President Arthur retained the services of Mr. Lincoln as Secretary of War until the end of his Administration. After that, Mr. Lincoln was American Minister to England from 1889 to 1893.

When Mr. Lincoln was asked this afternoon whether there was any precedent established during President Garfield's illness for calling meetings of the Cabinet, he replied: "Nothing was done in that direction whatever."

In reply to a question as to just what was done, Mr. Lincoln said:

"President Garfield was shot on July 2, 1881. Congress was not then in session. It was midsummer and very warm in Washington, as well as vacation time. After President Garfield was taken to his home in the White House the uppermost consideration in the minds of his Cabinet members was one of the deepest personal concern over his physical condition. I remember very well what happened during that period.

"The members of President Garfield's Cabinet, accompanied by their wives, went to the White House every night to be in close touch with the family and to learn how the President had spent the day. We generally assembled in the Cabinet room during these evening calls, but they were social visits in no way official. No official business was considered or transacted. The members of the Cabinet would, during these meetings, talk with the attending physicians, and wives of members of the Cabinet sometimes went into another room to see Mrs. Garfield. The members of the Cabinet each presided over his own department and saw that its affairs were properly conducted, but there was at no time a called Cabinet meeting, and the Cabinet did not undertake in any way to function for the President."

In response to a question, Mr. Lincoln said that during the period that President Garfield was ill, no subject arose on which the President alone could act, and that therefore the question of how to deal with such matters did not present itself.

"One of the most interesting questions that arose in the minds of members of President Garfield's Cabinet," said Mr. Lincoln, "was whether his illness constituted a disability in the sense of the Constitution, and as to what would happen in the case of his complete inability to act in some crisis. There was no formal consideration of this question, but it was quite natural that they devoted some thought to this phase of the matter."

Mr. Lincoln said that the trend of opinion in the Cabinet was that if the Vice President once was called upon to act there was grave doubt whether the Vice President would not have to be retained in office.

Successor May Be Named This Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—Official intimation was given tonight that Mr. Lansing's successor might be appointed before the end of the week, even though it was said there was "no hurry about it," as Mr. Polk can serve as Secretary ad interim for a period of thirty days.

The Lansing affair is expected probably to come up in Congress again tomorrow. Mr. Lansing meanwhile has denied himself to all callers. It is understood that he may spend a short vacation in Florida before going to his home in Watertown, N. Y.

LONDON DEPLORES BREAK WITH LANSING

Press Fears Adverse Effect on America's Influence in World Affairs.

WILSON AS PERSONAL RULER

Daily Telegraph Says His Power Exceeds Conception of the Fathers of the Constitution.

LONDON, Monday, Feb. 16.—The resignation of Secretary of State Lansing is given great prominence in the London morning papers and, in view of the circumstances, is treated as a first-class sensation. Most of the newspapers editorially express the fear that the incident will have an adverse effect on the progress of America's influence in world affairs.

The Daily Telegraph, describing it as "an amazing and profound surprise," says:

"The affair reveals to the world clearer than any event in recent times how nearly the position of the President approaches absolute personal sovereignty. The ordinary Briton has often heard that this is so, but the attitude adopted and the language employed by President Wilson in these letters will be something of a revelation to him."

After remarking on the historic growth of the powers of the Presidency, "until it stands in a position today of which the fathers of the Constitution could have had no idea," The Telegraph recalls that the only condition laid down for the President is that he act in accordance with the national will, and adds:

"Upon that ground he has been challenged by the Senate regarding the most momentous act in his political career. With the question of the League of Nations still unsettled he has now again issued what must be regarded as a challenge to public opinion, and the outcome is awaited with deep interest and solicitude by all who realize the place held today by America in ordering the affairs of mankind."

The Daily News regards the affair as a rather manufactured quarrel resulting from the clash of two distinct and irreconcilable ideals.

"The upshot is disastrous enough," it says. "The tragic figure of the sick President fighting alone the battle against foes, who seem steadily to multiply as the struggle proceeds, may seem to typify the wreck of the world's hope in America as the founder of a new era. It is not really so. The idea to which President Wilson gave form and shape lives on in the minds of the great mass of the American people.

"We may reasonably deplore the fact that its fruition, so far as America is concerned, is not yet. The delay is an unmeasured mischief, but to doubt its ultimate victory is not merely to misunderstand and slander the American people, it is to make victory longer and harder and more uncertain."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"The separation of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing is bound to increase for the time the world's uncertainty regarding America's future action and the inability of the United States to take full part in international affairs. This will be generally regretted by Englishmen, who would like to see that part augmented, not diminished."

The Times hopes "the manifest return of President Wilson to active control of American affairs may be taken as welcome proof of his complete restoration in health, and although all allied statesmen and diplomatists who have worked with Secretary Lansing will keenly regret his resignation, they will feel it is primarily, if not entirely, an American domestic concern."

Declaring it is unbecoming for an English paper to discuss the personal aspects of differences between Mr. Wilson and Secretary Lansing, The Graphic says:

"But we may be forgiven if we say there is great need for the elucidation of American aims and policy. It was not long ago that similar complaints were made on the other side regarding our aims. It is now our turn to be perplexed and we would welcome any clear pronouncement of the American policy."

Wendell Seeks State Controllership.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 15.—James A. Wendell, Deputy State Controller, announced tonight that he would conduct an active campaign for the Republican nomination for State Controller. He has been endorsed by his Congressional and Senatorial districts, comprising the counties of Montgomery, Schenectady, Schoharie, Otsego and Fulton. His campaign committee is organized, and headquarters will be opened soon.

BRYAN OUTLINES PLATFORM HOPES

Puts Prohibition, Suffrage and Opposition to Universal Service at the Top.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15.—The Plain Dealer publishes from its Miami, Fla., correspondent an interview with William Jennings Bryan, who outlines the principal planks he hopes to see incorporated in the Democratic national platform at the San Francisco convention. He places the more important planks in the following order:

1. Indorsement of the Administration of President Wilson.
2. National prohibition.
3. Woman suffrage.
4. Opposition to enforced military training.
5. Opposition to profiteering.
6. Taxation.
7. Labor problems.
8. Political ownership.

Mr. Bryan said:

"I have no disposition to suggest in advance planks on which the Democratic Convention might be divided, but there are certain planks which will be in the platform as a matter of course.

"The platform will contain a plank in favor of prohibition as the permanent policy of the country, and our candidate will be pledged to the strict enforcement of the law in letter and spirit. This statement is based on the fact that three-fourths of the Democratic Senators and two-thirds of the Democratic members of the House voted for submission of the prohibition amendment. Every State controlled by the Democrats has ratified the National Prohibition Amendment."

"There will be a plank in opposition to enforced military training. The action of the Democratic caucus in the House last Monday made it certain the party will be opposed to the military measure. A vote of 106 to 17, more than 6 to 1, is quite decisive. A Democratic convention scarcely would enter the campaign rebuking its Representatives in Congress.

"Our platform will strongly declare for woman suffrage if the amendment has not already been adopted. If, as is probable, the amendment is in effect, we will congratulate the country upon woman's entrance into the arena of politics and point with pride to the fact that the majority of the Democratic Senators and Congressmen voted for submission of the amendment.

"The profiteer will not be overlooked. The beneficiaries of profiteering are so few in number in comparison with its victims that it will have no open defenders in the convention, although it may be represented by some bush-wackers. The convention may be expected to propose effective remedies, national, State, and local, for profiteering and his old brother, the trust.

"I think it safe to say the party will declare against a return to a protective tariff, and will indorse the income tax. This plank probably will be accompanied by a declaration against a reduction of the tax on big incomes without a corresponding reduction in small incomes."

"Labor questions will occupy a large place in our platform. I have no doubt the party will defend the right to organize and peacefully to persuade; declare in favor of an eight hour day and in favor of the right of collective bargaining. I also hope the Democratic party will declare in favor of the creation of machinery for the investigation of all disputes between employer and employe similar to our peace machinery that differences may be settled before they reach the strike or lock out stage."

MARSHALL TELLS A JOKE.

It Was on Himself, and Vice President Uses It to Illustrate a Point.

Special to The New York Times.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 15.—When Vice President Marshall, who came here last night with Mrs. Marshall to address the Fayette County Bar Association, was questioned about the Wilson-Lansing incident, he replied:

"I haven't anything in particular to say about that."

He added:

"I guess I can explain my relation to this incident best by telling you about something that happened on the train while Mrs. Marshall and I were en route to Uniontown. A couple sitting immediately in front of us had been reading this latest news from Washington and they were discussing it very earnestly. The man seemed to believe President Wilson had acted for the best, but his companion heatedly expressed the view that Secretary Lansing could have followed no other course than he had throughout.

"'Why, what else could Mr. Lansing have done?' the woman asked with some asperity. 'Here the President was sick. A lot of big questions had to be talked over and there was the Vice President, who doesn't amount to anything. The only thing Mr. Lansing could do, I tell you, was to call these Cabinet meetings, and I think he did just the right thing.'

"There you have it in a nutshell," Mr. Marshall concluded, as he joined in the laugh that followed his story. "The woman was right. I don't amount to anything."

BOLSHEVIKI TO WORK FROM HOLLAND BASE

SPRING ATTACK EXPECTED

Conference of Radicals in Amsterdam Discusses Possibilities of a Soviet Sweep.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 15.—It is considered a somewhat strange coincidence that the very day the Transport Workers' strike is declared an important secret of an international Bolshevist conference and plot comes to light. It has been long known that much international underground work has been carried on in Holland and the fact that the dikes may break and Bolshevism sweep Holland off her feet has been monopolizing statesmen, politicians and financiers' attention for some time much more than the question of extradition. Many people here think this is the deciding year of the war and that unless something drastic is done Bolshevism will sweep over Europe like a tidal wave, enlarging its army as it advances toward Western Europe.

Information collected from reliable agents in Russia leaves no doubt that the Bolsheviki are preparing an enormous offensive against Poland for early in the Spring, that negotiations with England are only in order to gain time, and then, Poland undermined by propaganda, cannot resist the Soviet Army of 2,000,000. The Bolsheviki are hoping to enter Germany through Poland and a glance at the map shows the strategical tactics. The northern and southern flanks of Poland are already held as in a claw. If the army once reached Germany not only the Independent Socialists but thousands of Germans who are now afraid to show their colors would join the Red ranks, especially as the Soviets would then declare war against Entente capitalism and the Peace Treaty. In the best informed circles here these possibilities are faced, although it is impossible to say how far they are an echo from Germany, where there is an effort afoot to induce the Entente to send a large army into Russia and afterward exploit the latter's natural resources on a large international scale.

The international Soviet conference which was carried on in Amsterdam the last few days discussed freely all these possibilities. Lenin, it appears, is striving for more internationalism than the Russians, Letts, Poles, Chinese and prisoners which were represented on the third International, so he sent one of his officials, a certain Rutgers, to Holland to create "reaction in peaceful Holland" to reconstruct the third International and to prepare a Bolshevist conference for Western Europe and America. The propaganda has covered such points as trade unions and soviets, anti-militarism and the Red army, communications, courier service, bulletins, press and rapid service, spies and finance. Among the resolutions were declarations to the Western European and American proletariat. A motion regarding Germany and America was passed and freedom of traveling, passports, censors, spies, &c., were discussed.

The Soviet Government has put quantities of diamonds, pearls and other precious stones to the value of 20,000,000 rubles at the disposition of the Netherlands bureau, which will have the special duty of distributing propaganda and the duty to support every strike which has a revolutionary character. The bureau will be directly under Lenin and sub-bureaus are to be established in America, East Africa, Spain and Mexico. Every three months the countries belonging to the bureau will send a representative to Holland.

During the discussions it was stated that Soviet Russia, being non-militarist, was obliged to commence an offensive owing to the Entente's aggressive policy.

"The Red army is coming to free the proletariat of Poland and Russia, and as the army approaches Holland workmen must join in like brethren * * * further, they must force capitalism to conclude peace with the Soviets and thus hasten the world revolution."

The meetings were mostly held in the Dutch revolutionary Wynkoop's house, who also is a member of the Parliament. Representatives of England (Sylvia Pankhurst), America, Germany, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Indies, Russia, Belgium and Hungary attended. The police have been watching Wynkoop's house for some time. Several arrests have been made and many foreigners put across the border in the last few days. An appeal was also made to workmen for an international strike movement.

"If the revolution breaks out in Germany or elsewhere the international proletariat must be ready for a general strike, especially transport workers in America, England, France and Italy."

TWO THIEVES DEAD IN FIGHT IN DARK

drawn back. But they went down noisily.

When they reached the solid cement floor there was not a noise to be heard, and, in telling of the exploit, McMurtry said he couldn't even hear his own heart, "because it had stopped." Suddenly from the right came a sharp metallic click—the drawing back of the hammer of a pistol—but no shot was fired. Making a quick movement, McMurtry threw open the door of a basement closet and in the dim light of his electric torch saw a man crouching there with leveled pistol.

Both fired simultaneously. The man in the closet groaned and fell, and McMurtry's flashlight went out with a tinkle of falling glass as the burglar's bullet shattered it. McMurtry slammed the door of the closet and, feeling for the latch, locked it.

"Be careful, Major," shouted Bacon, "there's another man behind that pillar."

Burglar Opens Fire.

There was another man behind the pillar. He had two pistols and he opened fire immediately. Seven bullets rang sharply against the metal of a furnace pipe right above McMurtry, who dropped to the floor, uninjured, as he saw the first flash. Then, firing at the flashes of the burglar's fast-working automatic pistol, he kept wriggling along the floor toward the pillar so that the flashes of his own pistol should not be a guide for the shots of his opponent.

The firing of the burglar's pistol stopped suddenly and was succeeded by a sucession of clicks.

"His pistol is empty," shouted Bacon. "Charge!"

The two men charged the burglar behind his pillar-fortress and, while Bacon beat him with the little billy, McMurtry used the butt of his pistol on the burglar's head. The three men went down, the burglar still fighting. The latter wiggled out of close quarters and opened fire with another revolver which he had drawn from his pocket.

Bacon fell at the first shot, with a serious wound in his neck. The next shot tore the muscles of McMurtry's right arm and sent his automatic clattering to the floor. It seemed like victory and a getaway for the burglar, but as the flashes continued to dart from the muzzle of the pistol, McMurtry dropped to the floor and swept its surface in the hope that his hand would feel the fallen automatic.

Finally Kills His Man.

By that one lucky chance his useful hand gripped the automatic, and the duel went on by the light of the pistol flashes.

On McMurtry's second shot the burglar went down, but he was game. He kept up his firing, but the next three shots silenced him. When his body was dragged out of the cellar it was found that five bullets had struck and that any one of four of them was sufficient to cause death.

After a long search McMurtry, weak from loss of blood, found the light switch in the cellar wall and turned on the light. Bacon was lying near the pillar unconscious, with his "billy" still clutched in his hand. The burglar was prone with his pistol hand outstretched over the body of Bacon. McMurtry opened the closet door and the body of the other burglar fell outward into the light. One shot in the abdomen had finished him.

Hearing the sound of the firing in the cellar, Mrs. Dreyer, who sent in the first alarm, finally got the Greenwich Police Station by telephone and asked them to send a patrol to the Morris mansion. When Sergeant James Fahy arrived with his men he found McMurtry trying to carry Bacon up the steep stairway to the main floor of the house so that he could give him first-aid treatment there. Bacon was sent immediately to the Greenwich Hospital, where his condition tonight was said to be precarious.

Burglars Fired Thirty Shots.

"No man who hears this tale can understand the real bravery of these two men who went into that cellar," said Sergeant Fahy, "because they will know, after all is over, that there were only two burglars there. But McMurtry and Bacon, after seeing that big loaded motor truck outside, could easily have thought that at least five or six men were in the house, and all of them armed. McMurtry and Bacon had a pistol and a billy.

"We found that the burglars had fired thirty shots and that McMurtry fired only eight. One man was killed with the first shot. Two apparently went wild. Five found their mark in the second burglar, and any one of four of them would have caused death almost instanteously.

"You know that Major McMurtry is a brother of the Major George McMurtry who was with the "Lost Battalion" and backed up Colonel Whittlesey when he told the Germans to "go to hell." But George didn't do this. This was Alden and he's a bearcat. If he hadn't had a gun he would have gone in there with his bare hands. You know they kept this bird at Washington during the war. He's some fighter!"

After the battle Major McMurtry insisted that he was not so seriously wounded that he would have to go to the hospital, and insisted upon going to his home at 18 Maher Avenue in this city. There physicians found that the bullet wound in the arm was only superficial and would be healed again in a few days. Use of the arm will not be impaired.

During the war Major McMurtry was commissioned on the General Staff and assigned to the perfection of automobile devices for the use of the Motor Transport Corps. He has an office in this city, where he works on his automobile inventions. He is also consulting engineer to the Connecticut Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Mr. Bacon has a farm near this city and is a member of the Sound Beach Fire Department.

Late this afternoon the bodies of the burglars were identified as those of Anthony Forlenzo, 25 years old, and Giovanni Noccia, 30 years old. They had boarded at the home of Mrs. Annie Phito at 16 Hazel Street, Stamford, Conn. The police believe that the men were responsible for many burglaries in Westchester County and Connecticut villages in the last few months, and some of the victims will be called to the police station tomorrow in attempts to identify the men in other robberies and burglaries.

Many Congratulate McMurtry.

Hundreds of telephone calls were received at the home of Major McMurtry this afternoon from persons who wished to congratulate him and Mr. Bacon upon their bravery, and hundreds called at the hospital in attempts to see Mr. Bacon.

"Do you want to congratulate Major McMurtry, too?" asked the telephone girl in the Greenwich exchange when THE TIMES reporter called there last night. Then Major McMurtry got on the wire:

"Don't say any more about this fight than you have to," said the Major. "It was only part of the routine of life."

PRESTON KENYON KILLED.

Death of New York Lawyer While Hunting Believed to be Accidental.

WASHINGTON, Conn., Feb. 15.—Preston Kenyon, a New York lawyer, about 60 years old, was killed here Saturday afternoon by a bullet from his own rifle. Medical Examiner Stevens expressed the opinion that death was accidental.

Mr. Kenyon came here on Thursday, and was staying at the Logan homestead. On Friday and Saturday he hunted for fox. Last night Fred Powell, who has acted as caretaker of the homestead, stopped at the house and found it empty. Powell searched through the snow and found the body lying a mile away, with the rifle near by.

EXPECT NO B. R. T. STRIKE.

Officials Express Surprise at Threat of Walkout.

Surprise was expressed yesterday by officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company at the report that a strike was threatened on Wednesday morning unless the company lived up to a "working agreement," entered into on Dec. 16 last, and which was to have been put into effect within two months. The time limit under this agreement, which the union men contend affects wages as well as working conditions, will expire today.

William S. Menden, General Superintendent, who spoke for the company in the absence of Receiver Lindley M. Garrison, stated that he had received no intimation of an impending strike and said that no question of wages was involved in matters now under discussion by officials of the company and a committee representing the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Workers, to which a majority of the B. R. T. employes belong.

MARCONI PREDICTS GREAT WIRELESS LINK

Believes Individuals Will Be Able to Keep in Touch With Both Hemispheres.

MILAN, Feb. 15.—Guglielmo Marconi, in a signed article in the Nuvo Giornale of Florence on the predicted revolution in wireless communication, says:

"Eventually science will find a way of directing electrical energy without wires in an absolutely straight line. The result will be less expenditure of energy for short distances and hence less expense for messages. Once directive control has been established we shall undoubtedly be able by means of powerful machines to girdle the whole world with waves of electric energy without wires."

Marconi describes a marvelous radio telegraphic receiver no bigger than a gramophone by means of which, without any other communication with the atmosphere, he receives all day in his study every scrap of wireless news sent to the European press. He says that very soon with an instrument of this kind "bankers, politicians and business men in general will be able from minute to minute to keep themselves in contact with both hemispheres." He continues:

"Very soon, too, that miserable ticking machine on which all newspaper offices depend will yield place to this mighty invention, which is suitable for news sending, news receiving and simultaneous communication with any number of receiving stations.

"With that installment of radio telegraphic receivers throughout the civilized globe in every public school, university and library, the prevailing languid interest of the public in international happenings will be immensely stimulated."

RAIL BILL EXPECTED TO PASS IN 8 DAYS

Congress Gets Conference Report Wednesday, and Begins Consideration Saturday.

FIRST CONSTRUCTIVE ACT

Observers Doubt Congress Will Be Able to Complete Its Work to Adjourn June 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Congress is expected to enact the Railroad bill within the next eight days. The conference report will be presented to the House on Wednesday and considered, beginning Saturday, for two legislative days. While there is slight opposition to the work of the conference, which has occupied more than three months, this is not sufficient to defeat the bill or delay the passage.

The conference bill, which provides a guarantee of 5½ per cent. to the railroads for two years and does not include the anti-strike provision, will be sent to the President about Feb. 25, four days before March 1, when the railroads are to be returned to their owners. Until Congress has disposed of this important piece of legislation final action on the treaty and legislation will be postponed. When the law becomes effective and the first big return to pre-war conditions has been accomplished developments are expected by pessimistic observers which forebode a struggle between the railroads and labor. In the opinion of members of Congress, the demands of the railroad employes, postponed at the urgency of the President, will come up in some form within a few weeks or a month after the railroads are again under private control.

Doubt Adjournment on June 1.

There are so many things growing out of the war, such as the regulation of business, financing and taxes, that those who have carefully followed events do not see how Congress can adjourn June 1. Far-seeing Republicans do not think it would be wise to have Congress away from June to December, and they are already protesting against the plans of the Steering Committee to bring about final adjournment about June 1.

It is probable that there will be a recess of a month or five weeks during the conventions, and that final adjournment will not come before October or late in September.

Thus far this Congress has not attempted to write any constructive legislation. About the only thing this Congress has done of interest to the taxpayer or the business man is the scaling down of appropriations.

While the Ways and Means Committee reported a bill ten days ago authorizing an appropriation of $50,000,000 for the relief of Central Europe, nothing has been done by the Rules Committee to expedite its passage in the House. It was authoritatively learned tonight that nothing will be done until the Republican leaders learn the sentiment existing in the country on the proposition. Thus far, Representative Longworth said, there did not seem to be a real demand among the people for such an expenditure, and although he favors this country helping needy peoples, he was of the opinion that the House will not pass the bill unless there is "greater sentiment for it among the people than has already been shown."

Modify Language of the Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—House and Senate conferees devoted more than three hours again today to consideration of the redrafted railroad bill, as recently agreed on by them, but finally adjourned until tomorrow, when they will resume the work.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, Chairman of the Senate conferees, said no changes in principle were being made in the compromise bill, but only modifications in language to make the redrafted measure more nearly conform to the agreement already reached.

HUDSON TUBE ASKS DELAY.

Seventeenth Application for More Time to Extend Subway.

The seventeenth application of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company for an extension of time in which to complete the construction of the subway between Thirty-third Street and Broadway and the Grand Central Station, will be heard by Transit Construction Commissioner Delaney on Thursday. The reason given by officials of the company for the application is that the time for extending the tube is not yet here and that the matter ought to be deferred for at least two years. The reason given in each one of the other sixteen applications was practically the same.

Commissioner Delaney is negotiating with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for extending the rapid transit line from Queens by way of the Steinway Tunnel, across Forty-second Street under Bryant Park, and then through Forty-first Street to Seventh Avenue, where a connection will be made with the west side subway. It was said on Saturday that an agreement probably would be arrived at between the city and the company within a few weeks. When the tubes of the Hudson & Manhattan Company are extended they will parallel for a considerable distance the Queensboro line.

Intellectual Workers Form a Union.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Intellectual workers in this city have formed a federation, which has received recognition from labor organizations. Dramatists, engineers, scientists, teachers, artists, poets, song writers, journalists and dramatic experts are eligible to membership in the federation, which has appointed two committees to draft a definite constitution and program.

Warns All to Cut Expenditures.

A call for economy in expenditures by all institutions and individuals was sent out yesterday by J. H. Tregoe, Secretary of the National Association of Credit Men. He said it was not possible for a worker to receive more money than he earned, and that "therefore when there is a letting down in the productive effort merely because of the large amount of money in circulation and the higher wage, rainbows are on the horizon and the chasers are at work."

TERRORISTS CAUGHT IN PATERSON RAIDS

vocates now locked in Paterson Police Headquarters.

Caminetta was caught in the raids. So were twenty-eight others out of a total of thirty-two for whom the agents held Department of Immigration warrants when they acted last night and this morning, under the authority of the Espionage act. A hunt is on for the three who were missed and for a fourth, who broke from his captor when trouble at the local power house momentarily extinguished every electric light in the city.

I. W. W. Leader Caught.

The Government men were rewarded beyond their hopes, for, in addition to the direct success of the man hunt, they got evidence that very recently the Eastern headquarters of the I. W. W. had been moved from Chicago to Paterson, in the hope of escaping the intruding official eye. In the home of André Graziano, charged with being an anarchist, the operatives found in hiding E. F. Doree, Philadelphia Secretary of the I. W. W., now under indictment in Chicago, and learned that he had brought with him all the records of the Chicago office. These included bulky membership rosters and ledgers showing financial transactions all over the Eastern half of the country, including such cities as New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Bedford, Boston and Rochester. The records were seized. Doree will be sent to Chicago for trial.

One of the groups of six in which the agents worked under the general direction of Special Agent Frank R. Stone, head of the New Jersey division, went straight to the carefully hidden printing office in which Benjamin Mazzotta printed for Caminetta La Jacquerie (The Massacre), which replaced L'Era Nuova bulletin after it was suppressed a second time. Printers were in the act of running off copies of the I. W. W. pamphlet "The Truth About Centralia" and on galleys, all ready for printing, was found the type of a reply by Caminetta to an article supposed to be by Carlos Tresca in a recent issue of an anarchist paper, La Folla, attacking Caminetta. It was this article which gave the Government men the clue which capped their three years' study of the Paterson situation.

Mazzotta was released when he offered evidence of being an American citizen. An effort will be made to prove him amenable to the laws of New Jersey.

Detectives Raid Library.

Some of the Federal detectives, using sleds to get about quietly in the clogged streets, fell upon the Modern Library, maintained by Fermino Gallo, which is said to be America's richest storehouse of extreme radical literature. Another squad turned their attention to the Ferrer Association, a neighbor of the headquarters of L'Era Nuova. This is a young men's organization which is said to have maintained an active anti-draft propaganda all through the war by sending out secret circulars attacking the Government. The Insorta, an adult association associated with the anarchist organization, also came in for attention.

Altogether the Department of Justice agents gathered in a collection of rabid literature and a formidable array of pistols, knives and other weapons. Each group of officers acted so quietly and with such exact foreknowledge of its job that not one of the prisoners found an opportunity to resist.

This partial list of the men arrested was given out:

Ludivico Caminetta, 12 Blanten Avenue, Prospect Farm; Peter Merano, 143 Beech Street; Franz Widmar, 77 Ellison Street; Marter Geralli, 60 Beech Street; Peter Baldisserita, 92 North Fifth Street; Samuel Palmeri, 551 Summer Street; Frank Coppo, 67 North Seventh Street; Frank Gallo, 278 North Straight Street; Serafino Grandi, 327 Clinton Street; Conrad Coppo, 18 North York Street; Paul Guabello, 83 Butler Street; Albert Guabello, 133 Bursans Avenue; Ceaser Palmeri, 551 Summer Street; Severo Espi, 202 Liberty Street; Digamaico Pitea, 17 West Street; Frank Pitea, 17 West Street; Umbert Cirvie, 213 Walnut Street.

All the men will be sent this morning to Ellis Island. There, it is believed, ample evidence can be produced, as the result of the present proceedings, to deport every one of them.

Government Reports Confessions.

The Department of Justice announced that every one of the men arrested confessed after examination, though at first Caminetta, they said, denied strenuously his connection with La Jacquerie. The department believes that each man's alleged admission that he belongs to the L'Era Nuova group is sufficient to send him forever from America. Caminetta, they said, had a copy of a book by Alexander Berkman, recently deported, called "Prison Memoirs of An Anarchist," on the fly-leaf of which was written, "To My Good Friend and Comrade, L. Caminetta."

"Caminetta," the Department announced, has been the moving spirit in the publication of La Jacquerie and has "been extremely active on the anarchist propaganda, being supposed to be the author of an Italian anarchist pamphlet 'The Free Country' which contains the phrase 'to hell with the Constitution.' He is a fluent, vitriolic writer on anarchistic subjects and always typifies in his writings the principles and teachings of his master, Malatesta. While Malatesta was banished from Italy and for the period he lived in England, Caminetta was his chief representative in the United States and in constant communication with him. Recent issues of La Jacquerie which have been intercepted and seized disclose the fact that it is one of the most vicious and radical publications in the United States today.

An Anarchistic Declaration.

This is an extract from a recent issue:

> WITHOUT MAKING ANY WISHES.
> We don't make wishes to any one.
> 1919—A torture to the memory.
> 1920—A murderous threat!
> Today, as yesterday: Abuses, crimes, infamous misdeeds.
> What wishes could ever console one who mourns for his relatives buried in the prisons of the nefarious Democracy? Who suffers all the torture of the soul in uninterrupted remembrance of the hostages? Who abandoned to the wrath of the ocean, goes toward an uncertain and insidious morrow?
> To the old year, our malediction!
> To the new, our threat.
> Oh! assassins of the proletariat, to you, not the evil wishes, but the promise that in the not far future, we shall entertain you on the barricades.
> LA JACQUERIE.

A brief history of L'Era Nuova, given out by the Federal agents told of Malatesta's coming to the United States to spread his "terrorist-individualist" propaganda and continued:

"He found Paterson a very fertile field for his ideas and soon had gathered about him a group which while always small in numbers was most effectual in conducting anarchist propaganda among the Italian-born in all the numerous industrial centres of the United States. It was from the L'Era Nuova group that Bresci, the assassin of the late King Humbert of Italy, graduated, and he was an active member.

"During the strike of the silk dyers in 1902 at Paterson the anarchistic principles of this group were demonstrated by serious riots and disorders, resulting in considerable bloodshed. At that time Ludivico Caminetta, a studious and apt pupil of Malatesta, together with William MacQueen, an English anarchist, Emma Goldman and Gallani, the latter since deported to Italy, became leaders of the strike. All of this number were arrested at the time and later indicted, some serving prison terms.

"After the unsuccessful termination of the strike, and the indictment and conviction of the leaders, L'Era Nuova group was still kept alive through the activities of a few members, three of whom are yet identified with it, namely, Fermino Gallo, Ludivico Caminetta, and Alberto Guabello. The group did not spread rapidly because all of its literature was published in the Italian language, and few of its members spoke English, and it has never appealed to English-speaking workers.

"During the Administration of Theodore Roosevelt their official organ, a monthly newspaper, L'Era Nuova, was barred from the mails because of its anarchistic articles."

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK

NEW YORK

The Promise

The topic of the day with business men is the expected curtailment of American exports to Europe and our reaction thereto.

The reasoning is that without this channel for the outlet of our raw materials and manufactures, these will back up, as the phrase goes, and produce a surplus to be liquidated in the home markets, with depreciation in prices, a later liquidation of labor, and depression in trade.

This reasoning is probably correct, but the Harriman National Bank in outlining these conditions late last year as prospective, pointed out that there was a silver lining to the cloud. Europe, by ceasing to import, would cut her own cost of living, while this country, relieved of her bid for its output, would gain opportunity to produce for its own needs, thereby reducing our cost of living.

That our home needs are great at present, and that production is away behind consumption are supported by conditions in that great basic industry, steel; by current reports from dry-goods authorities that the demand is far ahead of the supply; and by statistics of retail business.

The promise is that we shall attain deflation under the workings of natural economic laws, and not by forced measures. Forewarned and therefore forearmed, any depression need be but temporary, its duration depending upon the preparedness of the American business man for the readjustment. We think that the sound mercantile customers of the Harriman National Bank will accord with our expression of this view, for it is in large part a reflection of the facts and figures which they present to us during the course of the season.

WOMEN PAY TRIBUTE TO DR. ANNA SHAW

Eulogy by Mrs. Catt at Chicago Memorial Service Moves Large Audience.

WOMEN VOTERS ORGANIZE

Primaries in New League, Succeeding the Suffrage Association, Will Be Held Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Hundreds of delegates to the suffrage convention paid solemn tribute today to the memory of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw when they attended memorial services in the Fourth Presbyterian Church.

So greatly was the audience affected by the eloquence of the eulogy delivered by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, that forgetting for the moment the sacredness of the surroundings, it made the vaulted ceiling of the stone edifice echo with applause.

Mrs. Catt pictured Dr. Shaw as "a superwoman and a superhuman."

"Dr. Shaw was the greatest woman orator the world has ever known," Mrs. Catt said. "If in my time there has been a man who exceeded her in this transcendant gift, I do not know him. She possessed wit and human cynicism and sarcasm, imagination and vision, ridicule and pathos.

"With her cutting ridicule and biting sarcasm she could cut intolerance wide open until its fallacies lay bare for all to see. But as the cause gained she put aside this ridicule and sarcasm and assumed a gentler and sunnier humor.

"A great chapter in the history of the world has been written and just closed. Whether Dr. Shaw was an elected leader or not, while it was being written she was always the leader of our thought. Intolerance was her enemy—not men or women—just intolerance. You all believe in woman suffrage now that it is an established fact, but would you have had the courage and will to stand for it when all the world was against you?

"The one great message, it seems to me, that the memory to Anna Howard Shaw inspires is to wage war against intolerance, which still is holding the world in leash. It is the enemy in every church, every State, every city, and every country in the world."

Letters and telegrams of regret were received from all over the country. Messages were read from Secretary of War Baker, General Pershing, Secretary of the Interior Lane, and ex-President Taft, who was on a speaking tour with Dr. Shaw in behalf of the League of Nations last Summer when she contracted the cold that resulted in her death.

Memory pictures of the famous leader were given by Mrs. T. T. Cotnam of Arkansas. A tribute to Dr. Shaw's moral and physical fearlessness was paid by Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw of New York. She recalled an incident at the unsuccessful end of the 1915 campaign in New York, when some reporters told Dr. Shaw that "the ladies were in a rear room weeping." Dr. Shaw rushed in and slapped them on the back to cheer them up.

"Tears!" she exclaimed. "Why, suffragists never shed tears. Women, go to work again."

Reminiscences of the early childhood of Dr. Shaw in the pioneer days in Michigan were recounted by Miss Jane Addams. She told of a memorial service held by the suffragists in Holland, where she was last Summer, when she received word of Dr. Shaw's death.

Addresses also were delivered by Dr. Caroline Bartlett Crane, who conducted Dr. Shaw's funeral service, and the Rev. John Timothy Stone. The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Bishop Samuel Fallows. An anthem, dedicated to Dr. Shaw, written and composed for the service by Ritter Bynner and A. Badely Richardson, was sung by the choir.

An informal reception was held tonight for visiting delegates by the Board of Officers of the Suffrage Association and members of the local Committee on Arrangements.

The primaries of the League of Women Voters will be held tomorrow morning, and the congress will again take up the plan of organization proposed by the Executive Council of the Suffrage Association. The plan provides for State representation at the conventions on the basis of representation in Congress, plus two extra delegates. That is, each State is allowed two more delegates than it has Representatives and Senators in Washington.

Dues of $100 must be paid into the National Treasury for each delegate seated. Associate national organizations are permitted to seat not more than five delegates upon payment of $50 due for each delegate.

Mrs. Raymond Robins, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker and Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch will submit recommendations as Chairmen of the Committees on Women in Industry, Child Welfare and Uniformity of Laws Concerning the Civil Status of Women, respectively.

OPPOSES DICTATING THE PRICE OF MILK

Senator Walters Declares Thompson-Bloch Bills Should Not Be Passed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—Regulation of the price of milk will perhaps come "when the day dawns when we can control the sun, moon and stars," J. Henry Walters, majority leader of the Senate, declared tonight in a statement he issued condemning the Thompson-Bloch bills providing such regulation now before the Legislature.

There is a provision for price regulation not only in the Statewide measure introduced by Senator Thompson, but also in the measure which would permit the City of New York to establish and run its own milk plants.

"While there may be a sincere purpose behind the Thompson-Bloch bill providing for the appointment of a fair milk price commission," says Senator Walters's statement, "it will defeat the very idea for which it was conceived. Any measure that decreases production always increases cost, which is precisely what the Thompson-Bloch proposal would accomplish, for instead of increasing the milk herds in the State it would reduce the number.

"Providing that three commissioners have absolute authority over every quart of milk in the State," continues the statement, "it places the industry in the grip of men with power to dictate the price the dairyman is to receive and to order whether the milk shall be manufactured into cheese, butter, or any other dairy product. It permits the commission to go into a dairy and to inquire what has been done with the milk, names of the purchasers; in fact, putting the business arbitrarily into the hands of the commission, and the drastic provisions of the bill almost suggest confiscation.

MOUNTAIN CLIMBER DIES IN BLIZZARD

alarmed for their safety, and started out on snow shoes in search for them. He fired his revolver at frequent intervals in hope of attracting their attention. Reynders finally heard the shots and fired his revolver in answer.

Reynders was in a serious condition and Nettleton assisted him down the mountain, returning later to bring out the body of Macveagh. Near the foot of the mountain Reynders callopsed and Nettleon was forced to leave him behind and go to the nearest farmhouse, where a toboggan was obtained. Then the caretaker went back to where Reynders was lying unconscious and brought him to the farmhouse on the sled. He was revived, and although suffering severely from exposure, is expected to recover.

Charles MacVeagh, Jr., was graduated from Harvard last June. He was President of the Harvard Advocate, and a member of the Signet Society and the Skii Club. During the war he served in the Students' Auxilliary Training Corps at Columbia. He was 22 years old and one of six brothers. He was a grand son of Wayne MacVeagh, former Attorney General, and a nephew of Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury during the Taft administration.

Charlton Reyndeers served as a Lieutenant in the Naval Reserve Force during the war. At Harvard, where he is a member of the senior class, he is a member of the Hasty Pudding Club, Institute of 1770, Iroquois and Speakers' Clubs. He is a crew man.

Charles MacVeagh, of 14 East Eleventh Street, counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, received word yesterday that his son, Charles MacVeagh, Jr., 23 years old, had died of heart failure early yesterday morning while attempting to climb Mt. Monadnock on snowshoes. This occurred at the beginning of a snowstorm, which soon became a heavy one, and Charlton Reynders, 21, his companion, could not venture to go for assistance, because of the distance to be covered and the probability that the sick man could not be found again. Reynders sought to aid his companion, who steadily grew worse and died at 4 o'clock in the morning.

TAKES BIDS TODAY ON GERMAN SHIPS

Shipping Board Will at the Same Time Answer Suit for an Injunction.

PAYNE ADHERES TO PLANS

All Bids Are Subject to Shipping Board and Senate Commerce Committee Approval.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Bids for the purchase of the thirty former German passenger liners taken over by the Government during the war will be received by the Shipping Board at an auction to be conducted tomorrow simultaneously with submission in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by the board of its answer to the court's order to show cause why a temporary injunction against the sale of the vessels should not be issued.

Chairman Payne of the board tonight adhered to his plan to receive the highest bids obtainable for the vessels subject to the approval of the board and the Senate Commerce Committee before consummation of any sale. Unless his appearance in court is required, in which case one of the commissioners of the board will conduct the auction, the Chairman stated that he would offer the vessels himself at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

ney General, will appear for the board in the injunction proceedings instituted by William Randolph Hearst and Chairman Payne announced the board would present the same facts that were given to the Senate Commerce Committee on Friday.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Opposition to the sale of German ships to the International Mercantile Marine was expressed in a telegram sent today to President Wilson by the All-American Farmer-Labor Co-operative Congress, which has just closed a three-day meeting here. The telegram was signed by C. H. Gustafson, Chairman, and Warren S. Stone, General Treasurer.

Officials of the Farmers' National Council, which met in conjunction with the Co-operative Congress, sent a similar telegram. It was urged that the ships be maintained by the Government to be operated for "the benefit of the American people."

Dies After Eating Canned Meat.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 15.—Leonard C. Detwiler of Eldredge Avenue, West Cape May, N. J., a traveling salesman, died of ptomaine poisoning last night in a Philadelphia hospital after eating canned meat. Mr. Detwiler was born at Pottsville, Pa. He leaves a wife, one son and three daughters.

LONG TRIAL FOR NEWBERRY.

Attorneys' Estimates Indicate It Will Not End Before Easter.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 15.—"About Easter" was declared by attorneys tonight to be the time likely to see the end of the Newberry elections conspiracy trial. The prosecution indicates that it "hopes" to close its testimony the first week of March. The time to be consumed by the defense is problematical, but estimates placed it at about three weeks. Another week was allowed for arguments and instructions to the jury.

To date Government witnesses have numbered nearly 130. In addition the prosecution has presented more than 100 pieces of documentary evidence. The exhibits number around seventy, but some of them include several letters or telegrams in a group, one embracing twenty-seven such documents.

The testimony of two Government witnesses has been stricken out a irrelevant, leaving 128 whose stories are officially before the jury. This is believed to be nearly one-half the number to be called.

JERSEY TUBE IN 1924 OUTLINED IN REPORT

SEES AID TO REALTY HERE

Chief Engineer Says Greatest Benefits Will Accrue on This Side of River.

The vehicular tunnel under the Hudson River, to be constructed by the States of New York and New Jersey, will cost $28,669,000 and will take three and a half years to build. Both the cost and the time are estimated on a minimum basis. A report of the members of the New York Commission, introducing a complete report by Clifford M. Holland, chief engineer of the joint commission, was given out last week for publication today. A few of the facts and figures contained in the report already have been published.

When the tunnel was first discussed the cost was estimated at $12,000,000 independent of approaches. In explaining why the amount has jumped to nearly two and a half times as much, Mr. Holland said the cost of materials had increased to such a figure that the tunnels under the East River would bring almost as much if they were scrapped as it cost to build them.

The interstate tunnel is to lie an average of sixty feet beneath the surface of the river at low tide, which is ten feet deeper than the requirements of the War Department. The tunnel will be 5,400 feet long between shafts placed just inside of the pierhead lines. Part of the work will comprise the building of modern piers to be constructed so as to protect the tubes from damage.

On the New York side the tunnel will emerge at Canal Street. There will be two plazas, one at Broome Street which will lead into a roadway connecting with the tunnel's mouth at Broome Street. This will be the entrance. The exit will be to a plaza on Vestry Street. Both exit and entrance will be approximately 1,800 feet east of the river's edge. On the New Jersey side both the exit and entrance will be located in the neighborhood of Twelfth and Provost Streets, Jersey City, almost in the centre of the area now occupied by the yards of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Pennsylvania and the Erie Railroads.

Jersey Realty Owners Satisfied.

Changes the tunnel will make in real estate values on the Jersey side have been figured out to the satisfaction of the various corporations and individuals owning the property to be affected by the improvement. There is a practically unanimous agreement that the tunnel will be of great advantage to them, so there has been no objection to it.

In the area affected in Manhattan there have been some complaints from property owners who feared that the tunnel, like the East River bridges, would leave isolated and comparatively valueless the area between the river [illegible] exit and entrance of the tunnel. Much of the work done by Mr. Holland was for the purpose of proving that the tunnel could not possibly affect the property involved otherwise than to increase its value.

The property to be condemned by the commission on this side is assessed at $900,000 and on the New Jersey side at $300,000. Mr. Holland said that the tunnel would revolutionize the property values on both sides, but that by far the greatest improvement would be in Manhattan, for the reason that nearly all of the property in the vicinity of the tunnel is now of comparatively small value.

Maps and plans prepared by experts show the assessed values of the property touching the proposed improvement by blocks. This was done in order to show what opportunity the tunnel will give for increased taxable values, and to prove the contention that the New York end of the tubes was chosen because the unimproved condition of the property made it the cheapest that could be acquired anywhere along the river.

The following six blocks, taken from the plans and maps of the commission, show the total assessed valuations of the land and the buildings which stand on it. All of the blocks are of standard sizes except the first, which is 50 per cent. larger than the standard.

| Block Bounded by | Land. | Bldgs. |
|---|---|---|
| Hudson, Spring, Renwick and Canal Streets | $510,500 | $188,500 |
| Spring, Hudson, Dominick and Varick Streets | 384,300 | 242,700 |
| Hudson, Dominick, Varick and Broome Streets | 387,200 | 144,300 |
| Hudson, Broome, Varick and Watts Streets | 383,600 | 251,900 |
| Canal, Hudson, Varick and Vestry Streets | 425,000 | 98,000 |
| Hudson, Watts, Varick and Canal Streets | 465,500 | 50,000 |

Trinity Corporation Owns Block.

The last block is owned entirely by the Trinity Corporation. On one of the blocks there is a building assessed at $1,000 on a parcel of land assessed at $20,000. The most valuable building in the sections enumerated is a seven-story brick structure assessed at $140,000.

Mr. Holland said the city owned much of the property needed on the New York side and that arrangements already had been made for taking it over. In New Jersey the property required is held by private citizens or corporations. Discussing the tunnel generally in regard to matters not dealt with in his report, Mr. Holland said the piers to be built by the commission would be the largest on the river, that they would be used for various purposes connected with the transfer of freight, and that in all likelihood the building of huge storage houses, manufacturing, building and other large enterprises, would begin on the New Jersey side at once.

"I expect," Mr. Holland said, "to see a big development on the Jersey Meadows which will go far toward relieving the traffic on the Hudson. It is estimated that about one-fifth of the 100,000 tons of freight which crosses the river on lighters every day will come through the tunnel. There should be legislation restricting the width of motor trucks, which are being made to carry four times more than a two-horse truck can haul.

"The tunnel will be used mainly by motor vehicles for the reason that a horse-drawn vehicle can make as good time by traveling by ferry plus the advantage of resting the horses during the trip across the river. Horses cannot make more than two trips between the States in a day, while motor vehicles can make four. It is my opinion that in ten years horses will practically disappear from the streets.

"In the meantime the ferries will not suffer through loss of traffic because vehicles starting from points near the ferries and at some distance from the tunnel mouths and still use them. The charges for using the tunnel will be the same as the tolls now charged on the ferries, and the tolls for the tunnel, once fixed, will never change, while the ferry charges may increase.

"The tunnel will pay for itself three times over in twenty years. It will take about 2,000 men to build it within the time limit of three and a half years, and about 100 men to operate it after it is finished."

Reticent on Goethals Plan.

Mr. Holland spoke guardedly of the plan of Gen. George W. Goethals, which the Board of Consulting Engineers rejected. The criticism of the Goethals plan, which appears in the report, has already been printed. The chief fault found with it was that the roadway was too narrow to carry the three proposed lines of traffic, that it would not be strong enough to stand the required pressure, and that it was doubtful whether the work could be carried on successfully.

The New York Commissioners are George R. Dyer, E. Bloomingdale, McDougall Hawkes, A. J. Shamberg, Grover A. Whalen and Frank M. Williams. In their statement introducing the report of Mr. Holland they say that at the end of the eleventh year from the date of opening the tunnel for traffic, which will be in 1924, the expenses will be met by tolls, and that if the rate of tariff remains unchanged for twenty years "each State will be reimbursed for the bonds issued and will have a surplus of $33,635,000—covering every cent of expenditure and making a handsome profit on the outlay."

The States will divide the cost. The money necessary for the next fiscal year is estimated at $2,000,000. If either state defaults in meeting necessary appropriations for carrying on the work the other State may proceed with the work on its own account. The commission states that the type of tunnel closely resembles the tubes already under the river, and that they will give instant relief from the distressing water congestion and will not interfere with the development of the water front. The report of the commission states that the type of tunnel recommended is a pair of twin cast-iron tubes with an external diameter of 29 feet, to accommodate two lines of traffic in each direction with a twenty-foot roadway. In reference to this subject the report says:

"One tube approach is located under Canal Street and the other under Spring Street, coming together at the waterfront, the tubes crossing the river together and dividing in Jersey City, so that one goes up Twelfth Street and the other Fourteenth Street.

"The maximum adverse grade for westbound traffic is 3.5 per cent. and for eastbound traffic 3.52 per cent., grades which compare with those used over the East River bridges. These adverse grades are comparatively short, extending only from the tunnel portal to the points where the tunnel roadway meets the street grade."

Estimated Growth of Traffic.

The report estimates that the daily ferry traffic south of Forty-second Street has increased from 15,300 vehicles in 1913 to 17,300 in 1919, or on an annual basis from 5,202,000 to 5,882,000, an increaes of 15 per cent. The total number transported across the Hudson at the present time is fixed at 7,684,000 a year. Then the report says:

"In studying the probable growth of traffic across the Hudson River, based upon the growth as shown since 1913, it is anticipated that in 1924, the year of opening the tunnel, the traffic which would use the five ferries at Desbrosses, Cortlandt, Chambers, Barclay and Christopher Streets will have increased from 3,774,000 vehicles in 1919 to 6,596,000 vehicles in 1924, and ten years later to 16,436,000 vehicles."

In explaining why a two-way tunnel was chosen the report states that it was found that a three-way tunnel would cause congestion of traffic at Canal and Varick Streets and that this would make it impossible for the tunnel to reach capacity without the expenditure of a large amount of money for approaches.

While the report makes no mention of the fact, the commission already has in mind the building of tunnels at other points, and it was because of this that it was not deemed necessary to make the present tunnel any more cumbrous.

The traffic and capacity features of the tunnel are thus described:

"The traffic which will use the highway tunnel, from the study of the movement of the traffic across the Hudson River, shows that in 1924 the tunnel would carry 5,610,000 vehicles, that at the beginning of the second five-year period, in 1929, the traffic seeking the tunnel would amount to 8,800,000 vehicles, that at the beginning of the third five-year period it would amount to 12,900,000 vehicles, and that at the beginning of the fourth five-year period it would amount to 17,800,000 vehicles. * * * A two-way tunnel will have sufficient capacity to accommodate all traffic for a period of ten years from 1924, the date of opening the tunnel."

The tunnel will be ventilated by two ducts, one to deliver fresh air and the other to carry off the foul air. The report goes on:

"The clear headroom of the tunnel has been fixed at 13 feet 6 inches and the width of roadway for two lines of traffic, allowing clearances for safe and convenient operation, was fixed at 20 feet, which corresponds very closely to the width of the roadways over the Williamsburg Bridge."

The commission estimates that $6,000,000 should be placed at its disposal by the two States between July 1 next and the same date next year, and recommends that the Legislature of this State appropriate $2,000,000 this year in addition to the $1,000,000 made available last year.

Two public hearings will be held by the commission in the United Engineering Society Building, at 29 West Tihtry-ninth Street, one on Saturday evening, Feb. 21, and the other on Monday evening, Feb. 23, for the discussion of matters connected with the building of the tunnel. The discussion on the latter date will be in reference to traffic.

The report will be received by the Legislature tonight.

SENATE COMMITTEE AGREES ON BUDGET

Chairman McCormick Expects to Report Proposed Measure at an Early Date.

PROVIDES DRASTIC CONTROL

Would Create Accounting Department and Make Secretary of Treasury Real Finance Officer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Announcement was made tonight by Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois, Chairman of the special Senate committee for consideration of a national budget, that the sub-committee, composed of himself, Senators Keyes, Edge, Simmons and King, have unanimously agreed on a national budget measure.

This measure will be submitted to the full committee on the budget early this week and reported to the Senate at an early date. Immediately after the report is made the Illinois Senator, who is a member of the Steering Committee, will seek to bring the budget bill before the Senate for prompt consideration.

The Senate bill is a combination of the McCormick bill, introduced some weeks ago, and the Good bill, which was passed by the House of Representatives last Fall. The features taken from the McCormick bill include those relating to the creation of a budget bureau proper and its functions, while those taken from the Good bill relate to the complete overhauling of the present auditing and accounting system of the Government.

The scheme proposed in the Senate bill provides for a drastic control of expenditures at their source. Every bureau and department of the Government would be compelled to designate a budget officer to revise the estimates for expenditures made by the various officials of those bureaus and departments. In each department one assistant secretary would be given the responsibility for those revisions. Then there would be set up in the Treasury Department a budget bureau, which would collect all of the estimates, revise them, co-ordinate them, or change them in any way essential to proper administration and economy. After this work is done, the Secretary of the Treasury would pass on them and, after approving them, submit them to the President.

President Would Revise Estimates.

The President in turn would have power to revise the estimates submitted by the Secretary. Through this power he could increase them at the request of a Cabinet officer who has been overruled, or cut them still further. The President, before the tenth of December each year, would be required to submit his budget to Congress, and it would have to set forth the condition of the Treasury at the completion of the last fiscal year; the estimated condition of the Treasury at the end of the current fiscal year; and the estimated condition of the Treasury of the year to be financed, if the financial proposals of the budget are adopted.

JURY TO FORWARD CHARGES TO SMITH

Will Comply with Stipulation and Name Three of Swann's Aids, Report Says.

INQUIRY MAY BE BROADENED

Action on Governor's Communication to be Taken Today—Jurors Hope to End Delay.

The conditions set forth in Governor Smith's letter to the Extraordinary Grand Jury, in which he declined to designate the Attorney General to assist in certain investigations unless names and specific charges were submitted to him, will be complied with, it was reported yesterday. The names of three members of District Attorney Swann's staff, together with certain alleged charges, will be forwarded to Albany, it was said, following consideration of the Governor's communication at the jury meeting tomorrow. A majority of the jurymen is reported to favor this action to avoid further delay in resuming their work.

It was rumored that the inquiry might be made broader than that referred to in Governor Smith's letter by including in the jury's report to him the names of other persons and charges. Confirmation of this could not be obtained from any member of the jury, but it is known that it would prefer not to be limited in the investigations solely to matters pertaining to the District Attorney's office. If additional charges are filed it is believed that they will have some reference to the so-called "overshadowing crime" or to the interrupted investigations of some municipal departments.

Under the form of the request for counsel now before Governor Smith the jury, if its request is acceded to without presentation of other names and specific charges, would be limited in its work to the particular matters referred to as affecting the District Attorney's office. Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, said he had not yet received the letter of Governor Smith, but had read it in the newspapers. It is expected the communication will arrive today.

Julian F. Colyer Weds Chorus Girl.

The marriage of Julian F. Colyer, member of an old Newark family, and Miss June F. Price of the Winter Garden chorus, at the New York City Hall last Friday, became known yesterday. Mr. Colyer and his bride are staying at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, where Mr. Colyer has made his home since his discharge from the 167th Infantry, with which he served overseas. The bridegroom is a son of the late Charles J. Colyer, a pioneer wagon and carriage builder of Newark.

THE AEOLIAN-VOCALION

The Only Phonograph Possessing the Artistic and Wonderful Tone Control—

THE GRADUOLA

PEOPLE are so accustomed to hearing the phonograph simply play itself, that it is not always easy to picture someone playing it. And it is practically impossible to realize the fascination of doing so without actual experience.

Yet the immense advantage the Graduola gives to the Aeolian-Vocalion is obvious.

Artists never play or sing twice with exactly the same feeling. Without changing their individual conceptions of their songs and compositions, they vary their interpretations in detail.

This is exactly what anyone can do by using the Graduola. Without actually changing the interpretation (tempo and phrasing always remaining the same) it can be varied in tone color, thus giving it a freshness and spontaneity which the ordinary phonograph performance never possesses.

And it is the fact that even when the player knows nothing of music these changes sound well and add to the musical result, the explanation being that the arbitrary elements of interpretation, namely:—tempo, phrasing and basic expression are unaffected by the Graduola.

Recognized Supremacy

Though the Aeolian-Vocalion has been upon the market only a few years, it is today recognized as the leading instrument of its type, not only in this country but also abroad.

This is because the Vocalion offers everything possessed by the best phonographs of ordinary type, and adds its own exclusive and important advantages as well.

For example:—You may search the market over and you will hear no phonograph with so rich, mellow and beautiful a tone; you will see no phonograph that reflects such genuine art in the simple elegance of its cases; and you will find no phonograph that allows you the great privilege of taking an active part in the playing of its records.

New York Life Insurance Co.

(Incorporated under the laws of the State of New York.)

346 & 348 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

TO THE POLICY-HOLDERS:

Life Insurance has suddenly taken on a new importance. Everybody wants it.

This indicates that the public has begun to understand the economic value of the principle on which life insurance rests, and it also demonstrates the high regard in which our life companies are held.

But do you realize:

1st. That for the mere privilege of rendering this economic service our life companies will be taxed in 1920 (between the States and the Federal Government) upwards of $27,000,000?

2d. That Federal laws are purposely so framed that the use of life insurance to protect estates is not encouraged. Immediately following death the Federal Government exacts heavy cash payments whatever the character of the estate. Without life insurance such payments are always difficult and sometimes impossible?

3d. That the proceeds of life insurance must under the Federal law be included in the decedent's estate and taxed accordingly—unless payable to named beneficiaries; in that case such proceeds are exempt up to $40,000?

Just a word about those queries:

(1) A life insurance premium is essentially a tax, voluntarily levied, primarily for the protection of the family but very directly for the benefit of the state. The government, in taxing life insurance, indulges in the barbarism of taxing a tax. It would be scarcely more unsound for the government to tax its own income.

(2) Death Duties can readily destroy a perfectly solvent estate unless cash can be raised quickly. Life insurance can quickly provide cash, but the laws limit and hinder its use.

(3) A policy taken to replace in part the value to a corporation of an exceptional man may under the Federal Income Tax yield only 20% to the corporation; the government taking 80%.

(4) The States also collect heavy death duties on insurance payable to estates.

All these taxes are in addition to the $27,000,000 of taxes referred to in the first query; they are economically unsound and silly.

I speak of them because with your present keen interest in life insurance it is time that your representatives at Washington and in your State Capital heard from you.

THE YEAR 1919.

For the New York Life 1919 was in many respects the greatest year in its history.

Our new business ($531,000,000) exceeded the new business in any previous year by nearly $200,000,000. Our new business was written exclusively on the lives of individuals who made application to the Company and does not include any so-called Group insurance.

Our Mortality returned to normal figures, after the heavy mortality from influenza in 1918, which extended through the first four months of 1919.

The Russian Soviet Government by decree made life insurance a government monopoly in Russia and proceeded to liquidate the business of all life insurance companies, both domestic and foreign. Having by this decree assumed our liabilities the government took possession of our property in Russia, including our investments which were chiefly railroad bonds guaranteed by the Russian Government, and purchased with moneys accumulated from premiums paid by Russian policy-holders.

With the concurrence of the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York, approved by the Convention of Insurance Commissioners of the various States, we have eliminated both Russian assets and Russian liabilities from our statement for the year 1919.

There are no material complications elsewhere in our foreign business.

The decrease in assets at the end of 1919, by comparison with assets at the close of 1918, is due to the elimination of the Russian business and to the fact that in the assets at the close of 1918 there were about $22,000,000 which we had borrowed to purchase Liberty Bonds.

Taking account of these items, the assets in 1919 made a normal increase.

Safety funds increased during the year over $5,000,000.

THE SCREEN

Mix one irrepressible Russian girl, one sedate Lady of England, one solemn young Southerner, and one wealthy "wise guy" from the West in the old reliable melting pot, add one formal and formidable native of New York, let the whole boil for five or six reels and then solidify into two happy marriages and one equally happy murder—such might be written as the recipe for "On With the Dance," at the Rivoli this week. But with the deft and discriminating George Fitzmaurice as the mixer, and Mae Murray, David Powell, Alma Tell, Robert Schable and John Miltern as the main ingredients, it is no wonder that the brutal facts are obscured somewhat by a display of splendor, spice and sentiment.

"On With the Dance" is as utterly fictitious as a story may be, but its people are pleasant to look upon and interesting in action, and it has many such moving pictures to delight the eye as Mr. Fitzmaurice and few other directors can make. So doubtless it will satisfy many.

Miss Murray, lately of the Follies, still is dancing. Whether performing professionally, or skipping and skidding about as a Ziegfeldian Nazimova, she is a pleasing high light on the screen. She is Sonia, a Russian girl who comes dancing to New York and makes the mistake of marrying one Peter Derwynt, a solemn young architect, otherwise Mr. Powell, who can win sympathy for almost any part.

Later she is lured to Broadway by Jimmy Sutherland, a rich westerner, impersonated by Mr. Schable. He gives, perhaps, the most accurate performance of the play, though his screen wife, as played by Alma Tell, is competent in acting and comely in appearance. She is Lady Tremelyn. She really loves Peter Derwynt, who loves her. This, with the recklessness of Sonia and Sutherland, results in a general smash-up, out of which Sutherland emerges satisfactorily dead, Lady Tremelyn and Derwynt satisfactorily mated, and Sonia supremely satisfactorily married to Schuyler Van Vechten, a native New Yorker, addicted to gazing from his studio window while he moralizes upon the city and its mighty justice.

Chiefly through this part of Schuyler Van Vechten, played by Mr. Miltern, there is introduced into "On With the Dance" much dull and exceedingly doubtful sermonizing, which prevents the story being consistently an entertaining piece of fiction, the only thing it ever had a chance to be. Moral truth may be proclaimed from the screen through a play essentially true, but specious moralizing in an artificial story only can irritate those whom it doesn't deceive.

The photoplay was adapted by Ouida Bergere from a novel by Michael Morton.

Pauline Frederick, Warburton Gamble, James Neil, Kate Lester, Alec B. Francis, Carrie Lee Ward and others humanize a familiar and conventional story presented at the Capitol this week under the title of "The Paliser Case." It is the old tale, without noteworthy variations, of the poor and honest girl who marries a wealthy villain so her sick father may have the benefit of his money. Finally she is saved from the ugly consequences of her sacrifice and placed in the arms of the hero she truly loves. To the part of the poor girl Miss Frederick brings a human touch of resolution and courage, marked with something of cynicism and bitterness. It probably will be agreed that she seldom has given a better performance. Mr. Gamble is just about as good a "society villain" as comes to the Broadway screen, and in "The Paliser Case" he is quite the reel thing. The others in the cast also are adequate, except the "extras" who try to look like the socially select at a party.

"The Paliser Case," at its climax, turns to a murder, with three would-be murderers to start with and then three confessions to the crime, if the killing of the villian may be called such. If it were not for the foregone conclusion that the hero and heroine must be kept impeccable, an interesting mystery might be developed. Anyhow, the murder is well staged, and there are a number of other good pictures in the photoplay, which was directed by William Parke. One of the crises, however, in which the heroine decides to marry the villain for her father's sake, could have been made more effective dramatically if it had reached its high point in pictures instead of in flat words on the screen quoting the heroine as saying that she is "going to the telephone" to accept the villain's proposal.

Other interesting numbers on the Capitol program are "The Charming Mrs. Chase," a comedy with John Cumberland, produced by Mrs. Sidney Drew, and "The Sheep O' Leavenworth," a Robertson-Cole scenic.

"The Great Air Robbery," with the aerial daredevil Locklear in the leading rôle, is at the Broadway. It is a stunt picture. Lieutenant Locklear swings from one airplane to another and crawls out on the tail of a flying machine several thousand feet, presumably, above the earth. The melodrama's use of airplanes for midnight mail deliveries, highway, or rather highair, robberies, and battles between the forces of law and lawlessness adds excitement. One of the stars who doesn't appear on the screen is Milton Moore, the photographer, who had to take some chances himself in operating his camera.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," with Jack Pickford, is at the Strand, and "The Copperhead," with Lionel Barrymore, has moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto for the week.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Percy MacKaye's play, "George Washington," will open in New York on Monday night, March 1, probably at the Lyric Theatre.

Emily Stevens's first performance in "Sophie" at the Greenwich Village Theatre will take place on Tuesday, March 2.

"Lady Kitty, Inc.," a musical show with Kitty Gordon as its star, will have its first performance tonight in Baltimore.

"Honey Girl," a musical version of "Checkers," will be produced in Atlantic City tonight by Sam H. Harris. It will go to Boston for a run.

The cast of Ervine's "Jane Clegg," which the Theatre Guild will produce at the Garrick next Monday, will include Margaret Wycherly, Dudley Digges and Helen Westley.

Alphonz Ethier will play the role of the preacher in "Howdy, Folks" (formerly "Thunder"), when that comedy is produced in Chicago next month.

"The Unwanted One," a Chinese-American romance, will open in Poughkeepsie on March 4, with a cast including Madeline Delmar, Forrest Winant, Marguerite Leslie, Ivy Troutman, Mabel Bert, Frank Connor and Leah Winslow. It will come to New York two weeks later.

Bettina Allan, a dancer, has been added to the cast of the Midnight Whirl, on the Century roof.

Elsie Lange will withdraw from the cast of "As You Were" at the end of this week, and will enter vaudeville.

Sir Oliver Lodge says:

"The Play, 'Smilin' Through,' is calculated to leave a pleasing and friendly impression on those who witness it. Incidentally, it may enable people to realize that strong and lasting links of affection are necessary for any sense of communion with the departed.

The super-normal incidents are not overemphasized, and, while they suggest reality, no one is compelled to treat them as due to anything more than a play of imagination and conscience."

The missing finger told her—

HE had duped her—dissolute Monty Paliser, through whom she had hoped to save her father—

Her marriage was bogus!

Loving another, she had sacrificed herself, in vain!—He laughed at her horror, and, laughing, taunted her with the unhappiness of the man she loved.

And then, in his box at the opera, Monty Paliser was murdered!

Who killed him? The man he had double-crossed? The woman he had duped?

How, in full view of the famous "diamond horseshoe," was so quietly avenged the honor of the noble family of Cara?

The famous novel of Edgar Saltus grips you with an intensity greater than even when you read it. Swiftly, relentlessly, the action sweeps you along—be sure to see Pauline Frederick in this picture.

SEES TREATY HOPE IN MISSOURI VOTE

Cummings Asserts Democratic Victory in Third District Means Tide Has Turned.

SAYS PEOPLE WANT LEAGUE

Party Chairman Also Holds That the Country Is Ready to Oust Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—"It has been a hard struggle, but the tide has turned," is the view that Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, takes of the fight that President Wilson has waged for the ratification of the treaty of Versailles, with the League of Nations covenant, as a result of the election of a Democrat to the House of Representatives from the Third Congressional District of Missouri, to succeed Joshua W. Alexander, who resigned from Congress to become Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

Chairman Cummings's view that the "tide has turned" was set forth in a statement which he issued tonight.

"Advocates of prompt ratification of the treaty of peace," said Chairman Cummings, "have been heartened and obstructionists have been dismayed by the triumphant election to Congress on Saturday in the Third Missouri District of Captain Jacob L. Milligan, the Democratic nominee.

"A clear-cut issue over the League of Nations was presented. Captain Milligan, an overseas veteran of the recent war, stood unqualifiedly on the platform of immediate ratification and indorsed the position taken by the President. The Republican candidate and platform opposed the treaty and the League.

"The question was thoroughly debated in a campaign extending over several weeks. The result is unmistakable. Aside from the gratifying indorsement of the President's position, the election, held in a typically mid-Western agricultural section, discloses that the people are thoroughly dissatisfied with the present leadership of the Republican organization and are preparing to return to full power in the nation the party that during the last seven years has so completely demonstrated its constructive ability.

"It has been a hard struggle, but the tide has turned."

COURT CURBS POWER OF FEDERAL CHIEFS

The refusal of Federal Judge Hough last week to proceed with the trial of Paul Sachs, accused of conspiring to bribe a postal employe to redeem War Savings Certificates in excess of $1,000 in violation of a rule of the Treasury Department, and the quashing of the indictment, is considered by lawyers as of far-reaching importance. It limits the authority of Federal Government departments to punish those guilty of violating rules and regulations promulgated by them. In his opinion, Judge Hough said:

"It seems to me that the purchase and sale of stamps is a perfectly lawful business under the strictest letter of the statute."

The Government will appeal to the United States Supreme Court to obtain a final ruling. At the close of testimony in the trial, Herman J. Westwood of 111 Broadway moved for the discharge of the defendant and the motion was granted immediately. Judge Hough in his opinion reviews the act of Congress providing for issuing War Savings Certificates and stamps, and which declares that it shall not be lawful for any one person at any one time to hold War Savings Certificates to an aggregate amount exceeding $1,000.

The value of L. B. filing service—

A Library Bureau representative recently sold the L. B. Automatic index filing system to a large woolen mill.

The service he rendered in connection with the sale is typical of the service that every L. B. representative is equipped to give.

The sale included more than folders and guides—more than so much inanimate wood and steel. It included filing service of a superior kind. And this meant, first—an intelligent analysis of individual requirements.

Only through such an analysis could the L. B. representative have sold this woolen mill a complete, workable, up-to-the-minute, modern system for taking care of their general correspondence, bills of lading, contracts, freight bills, paid invoices, etc.

We cannot tell at long range what improvements may be possible in your filing methods. But if you have filing problems which you believe can be smoothed out, it costs you nothing but a letter or a telephone call to draw upon our experience of 44 years in this one particular field.

City Facing Fire Menace From Snow

Hazard Greater Now Than Ever in History, Says Chief Kenlon; Many Streets Are Impassable

Stalled Vehicles Clog Highways

Department Is Impeded in Hard Battles With 2 Downtown Outbreaks

New York to-day is facing the greatest fire hazard it has ever confronted in the history of the present Fire Department, Chief Kenlon said last night. The snow-choked streets in the lower part of the city especially are almost impassable, the head of the city's fire fighters pointed out. The danger from fire is made more intense, he said, by the fact that the majority of the thoroughfares in lower Manhattan at any hour of the day or night are blocked by long lines of vehicles stuck in the snow.

ge[illegible]s, the chief said, cannot [illegible]gh. Thus far, through good luck, they have not had a serious problem with which to deal. No one can tell, he insisted, when a serious blaze may spring up and find the department unable to force a way for its apparatus through the blocked streets.

Two Fires Last Night

In support of Chief Kenlon's theory stand two fires that occurred in the lower part of the city last night. One of these, at 321 Broadway, required three alarms. Several engines were unable to reach the district in which the burning building is situated because of the condition of the streets.

From the N. Y. Tribune, Feb. 12, 1920.

It was after this second fire had demonstrated the helplessness of the department faced by present traffic conditions that Chief Kenlon made his appeal.

"The menace from fire," he said, "was never so great as it is at the present time. The fires to-night [illegible] conclusively. The attention [illegible] men is called to the fac[illegible] must be greatly reduced t[illegible] age to property and loss

Wake Up, New York!

FIRE THREATENS YOU!

Chief Kenlon Says So

At all times you are the greatest fire hazard in the world. Today you are in imminent peril of a fire disaster!

Picture your own home or your business in flames, with the fire engines stalled in some icebound street!

You, sir--I am talking to YOU.

You have been negligently "passing the buck" to the best fire department in the world. Now it is your move—up to you to be your own fire department!

Suppose fire should break out in your business today—in your home tonight. What would YOU do? What COULD you do? Not one of you in a thousand has even safeguarded his own home and loved ones. Why not? Negligence, carelessness, indifference?—OR has it been the price?

Then PRONTO was made for you. Costs little because it is simple. Any one can use it and the liquid is the most powerful fire killer known. Instantly CHOKES any kind of fire at the start. And the price enables you to hang it handy wherever fire MIGHT break forth.

Protect your home—your employes—your business, with its priceless records and uninsurable values. The cost is small, but the consciousness of being ready—the feeling of safety—is beyond computation.

There you have my story. Whether you DO anything depends on what kind of man you are. For quick action call me at Spring 166-2110.

SURTAX DEBITS AND CREDITS.

The strategy of General WOOD's attack on what were originally the Kitchin taxes is evident. It is the counter-offensive to the Democratic attack on the Republican tax policy and assails his friendly enemy on a point which is indefensible. The Democrats condemned the Kitchin taxes before the Republicans failed to do any better in a year's opportunity, thus making KITCHIN's taxes their own. There is little doubt that the Democrats, if in power, would have done something before this to release "the stranglehold of excess profit taxation from the throat of business." Even while the Kitchin taxes were only a proposal it was objected that it was wrong economically to use war profit methods in peace taxation, and wrong morally to use false pretenses to excuse a tax policy which otherwise could not be condoned. It is wrong in too many ways to specify to put the punishment of the rich ahead of the sort of taxation which would be most productive and least burdensome at a time when every ounce on the back of the taxpayers weighs a pound, and in some cases a ton.

Nothing could be better calculated to embarrass the Treasury in the near future than to make its main reliance taxes on anything so uncertain as profits, and, in the present case, so sure to be reduced with the disappearance of war profits. The difficulties of the Treasury are anticipated by existing oppression of many sorts of business, individual and corporate. Under the tax law profits are calculated with a reference to a time when prices were so much below those resulting from war inflation that only the boldest dares to buy or sell. With deflation impending there would be a danger, if not a necessity, of taking a loss on any operation not of the most immediate sort. If it is a question of selling to realize profits, the law takes a share mounting to more than half on all large business. The result is that ingenuity is exhausted in finding lawful methods of investment less heavily punished.

That is one explanation of the fact that issues of tax-exempt securities by States, cities, counties and other instruments of government increased a half billion in 1919, rising from $262,000,000 in 1918 to $748,000,000. At a time when the cost of living is burdensome it cannot escape notice that these taxes are added both to production and distribution, and that the consumer pays rather than those theoretically taxed. No one is going to pay a profits tax out of profits if he can shift the burden. The method of the tax is as faulty as the tax is burdensome. This was foreseen even while the profits and luxury taxes were pending, and it was then said that, while a sales or consumption tax was better than a tax to penalize profits, it was wrong to collect it through the retailers' over-the-counter business. The complications are irritating and could easily be avoided by collecting the tax from the books showing the merchants' sales, whereas the accounts do not show the purchasers' bargains. The neglect to distinguish between the weight of taxes levied on incomes from investment and incomes from work is so primary that it is not to be excused. The lash intended to fall on the rich hurts the workers in two ways. It penalizes their labor and it makes it too difficult for the rich to sustain industry from their savings. What a rich man must pay in taxes he cannot use in stimulating industry by his investment of his surplus. The contention that our profit and luxury taxes are the embodiment of "social justice" cannot be granted as fact, and should not be granted if accordant with theory daily more discredited as it is more and more understood.

Elections should be on issues which divide the public, so that there may be a decision. Issues on which the public is agreed are as useful to one candidate as to another. And besides, General WOOD can hardly contend that the issue is his by right of discovery. Rejection of the Democratic tax methods is so general that no candidate or party can annex it by right of seeing it first. However, it is useful to have the matter discussed so generally that there may be no misadventure in having the mistake corrected however the election goes. England was first to reduce this form of taxation, and the forecasts of the Canadian budget declare that it will follow the mother country "because " of representations from various " quarters that it tends to handicap " business and industrial enterprise." Americans as soon as any others saw that war taxes in peacetime are odious, but the United States is slow in acting because politics rather than economics controls the situation here.

DIGGING ITSELF OUT.

Averting his longing gaze from the soft South, Mayor HYLAN sticks heroically at his post. He calls new volunteers to fight the snow, ice and slush; and nobly do they respond. Produce and grocery merchants offer the services of their employés to clear the streets south of Canal and west of Broadway. Things are looking better, though there are innumerable hills of snow and ice to be carted off or melted slowly, if there can only be some approach to a Palm Beach temperature and very gentle applications of warm rain.

Everybody, with the exception of a few crosspatches, is good-humored. The loss is great, but New York is a philosopher, used to gird at itself. The public spirit shown is noteworthy. Multitudinous are the volunteer cleaners. It is not churlish, is it, however, to remark that this doing of public work by private hands, this recruiting of a street-cleaning militia to help out the overwhelmed regulars, ought to be unnecessary? An earthquake, a New York version and enlargement of the Chicago fire—that would be unexpected. A snowstorm, an "old-fashioned" snowstorm, is not. Yet this city of only the new census knows how many millions has to dig itself out, just as "the neighbors" a hundred years ago would be "breaking out the roads" with oxen in East Haddam, Conn.

Reckoning their inconveniences and losses, perhaps more than a few New Yorkers wonder if an efficient municipal government isn't worth having again some time.

THREE RESERVATIONS.

Twenty-eight Democratic Senators declare their willingness to support, "as a means of securing ratification of the Treaty," the so-called bi-partisan reservation on Article X., or the latest reservation, suggested by Mr. TAFT. Senator HITCHCOCK says that agreement to this alternative is "as " near a unanimous proposition as we " Democrats can get." The Republican "mild reservationists" refuse to support the proposal, and the Republicans who intend to stand out for the original Lodge reservation take on an increase in numbers. Of the remaining Republicans not much hope is to be had that they will consider favorably the Democratic proposal.

It is singular that any Senator, Democrat or Republican, who is not incurably hostile to the League of Nations and to all international efforts and measures to prevent wars, should prefer the bi-partisan reservation to Mr. LODGE's, superfluous and bad as the latter is. The latter refers only to military or naval action. The former forbids the assumption by the United States of any obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country, and so on, not only by military or naval action, but "by the economic boycott," provided in Article XVI., "or by any other means," unless in each particular case the Congress shall so declare.

The purpose of these provisions seems distinctly hostile. It is true that the reservation in its present form adds that "nothing herein shall " be deemed to impair the obligation " in Article XVI. concerning the eco- " nomic boycott." Obviously it does impair that obligation by which, in case a League member goes to war in disregard of its covenants, all the other members "undertake immediately" to subject it to a boycott. There can be no immediate action if Congress is to debate interminably each case of resort to war in violation of covenants; and if Congress has to be called in special session the delay must be even longer. To impair and annul Article XVI., and then provide that nothing in the reservation shall be deemed to impair our obligation under it, is a contradiction or mystification hardly to be expected even among Senatorial experts in treaty nullification.

Mr. TAFT's reservation substantially follows Mr. LODGE's until it diverges into these words:

> but the Congress, which under the Constitution has the sole power in the premises, will consider and decide what moral obligation, if any, under the circumstances of each particular case, when it arises, should move the United States, in the interest of world peace and justice, to take action therein, and will provide accordingly.

This is excellent in intention, the honest work of a friend of the Treaty. It would bind the United States to nothing. Congress is to decide in each case what, if any, moral obligation "should move" the United States. That seems a somewhat platonic, academic devotion to world peace and justice; but at least this is a friendly, if a somewhat vague and enfeebling, proposal.

What the country can't understand in all this long, weary maze and muddle of partisanship is the Senate's incapacity to appreciate the desire of the immense majority of Americans for quick ratification as a help to business now, as a step toward the settlement of international controversies without war, as a step toward ridding the United States and other nations of the intolerable burden of great armaments. Everybody knows that a treaty can bind the United States to nothing contrary to the Constitution.

The country is sick of the unending wrangling and delay, the hypocritical pretenses of Senators who seek to kill, not to better, the Treaty. Republicans and Democrats prate about economy and extravagance. Yet some or many of them seek to continue the monstrous extravagance of war by mutilating or slaying the only hope of lasting peace.

LABOR IN THE CAMPAIGN.

The Central Federated Union, the Manhattan branch of the Federation of Labor, adopts unanimously the report of its Legislative Committee that labor should form an independent political organization. The committee says that it makes no difference which of the two representative parties wins the election, the result to labor being the same in either case. Therefore labor hopes to win more by independent political action.

That is early defiance of Mr. GOMPERS's plan to use the Federation to elect candidates useful to the Federation, regardless of party politics, by casting a balance-of-power vote on industrial rather than political considerations. Thus history repeats itself. There is no novelty in the Federation's policy and as little novelty in its splitting the labor vote so that its balance-of-power influence disappears. In 1916 labor revolted from the Federation's attempt to deliver a balance-of-power vote to Mr. WILSON. There were bolts from the Federation's policy in several States and many cities. The record shows that one-third of all laws beneficial to labor in New York in 133 years were passed when HUGHES was Governor, and were signed by him. Yet Mr. GOMPERS tried to throw the labor vote to his opponent, although the Republican bid in the auction was the higher so far as results were concerned. Accordingly, Mr. GOMPERS was challenged to explain why he never indorsed Republicans, although their policy of protection was supposed to be better for labor than the Democratic policy of lower duties.

Buying legislation with votes, regardless of political or public principles, is not a policy which can be approved, irrespective of the parties or candidates concerned. It is more creditable to labor to act independently than as a parasite, demoralizing politics by sordid considerations of class rather than universal interest. The Federation now, as in 1916, raises its hand against candidates of all parties and invites combination of all against it, so that the labor candidate shall not prevail, whichever party wins. There is reason enough in the character of legislation to be expected as the result of elections carried in the Federation's manner, but there is a better reason than that. The demoralization of legislation in the Federation's manner is more endurable than the substitution of class for party politics. If labor is allowed to put labor interests above public interests, there is an invitation to others to imitate the example set of "politics for profit." The domination of labor "interests" is as distasteful to voters as the domination of capital "interests," or any other sort of interests. The responsibility of parties is the root of representative institutions, and it is threatened by the policy of the Federation.

THE SHIP AUCTION.

"The Administration," said Senator JONES of the Commerce Committee during the debate in the Senate upon the auction sale of the German steamships, "are not of my party, but I " believe they are honest men and " patriotic citizens." He was speaking of the Shipping Board, of which JOHN BARTON PAYNE is Chairman. The nomination of Mr. PAYNE for the office of Secretary of the Interior was sent to the Senate last week by President WILSON. An attempt has been made to persuade the American people that Mr. PAYNE and his associates were engaged in a conspiracy to sell valuable property of the United States for a song to perfidious British capitalists who would hoist their alien flags over it to the ruin of the American Merchant Marine. Chairman PAYNE has stated to the President in a letter, prompted by "the vicious " but characteristic attack against the " Shipping Board," that "the ships " are to be sold to Americans only, " and will sail under the American " flag, will serve the routes which in " the opinion of the Shipping Board " will best serve American commerce, " and will always be available to the " Government in case of any national " emergency"—as troop transports, for instance. No one whose opinion was worth while has ever suspected JOHN BARTON PAYNE of being unpatriotic. The American people will find his assurance sufficient. It deflates the charge of conspiracy.

Under the law creating it and defining its powers the Shipping Board advertised for bids for the German ships, and in every shipping office in the country the opportunity to acquire one or more of the German liners has been known since the first advertisement appeared. "The greatest pos- " sible publicity has attended every " step we have taken," wrote Chairman PAYNE in his letter to the President. No ship will go to the highest bidder unless his offer is satisfactory. It is not to be a "knockdown" sale. The interests of the Government are to be safeguarded. It has seemed to the Shipping Board that those interests required the sale of these German steamships, which were taken over during the war, because, in the first place, it would cost too large a sum, $75,000,000, to refit them for passenger service (twenty of them were used as troop transports), and, in the second place, the Shipping Board could not, it was believed, operate passenger ships under the prohibition law in competition with ships under foreign flags on which spirits, wines and beer were sold to passengers.

There is already abundant evidence that "dry" ships are not popular with travelers. The condition is one that the business men on the Shipping Board have to consider as trustees of the Government. Many Americans are not prohibitionists, and few foreigners who cross the Atlantic think it a sin to drink light wines and beer. Our prohibition laws are likely to cost the American Merchant Marine a good many dollars that can ill be spared in a strenuous competition for maintenance as well as profits.

The Shipping Board must be businesslike and not sentimental. It will have to render an account of its stewardship. The board cannot disregard and defy economic laws. There will doubtless be bidders enough at the auction sale, if it is not enjoined by court order, but the board may feel constrained to reject all bids made (that, however, is unlikely) and refer the whole matter to Congress, which so far has not taken up the duty of deciding upon a policy for the operation of the Merchant Marine. The problem is beset with difficulties of maintenance, but the fact stands out that firms and companies are not disposed to pay war cost prices for ships. They can't afford it.

THE GOAT AND THE MASTER.

Mr. MAETERLINCK, having dodged through the automobiles on the streets of Detroit to some isle of momentary safety, tells the liegemen of NEWBERRY and of FORD that "there is a more " distinct note of civilization in many " respects" in the Middle West than in New York. It appears that here other notes were too distinct for the Master; he was unfavorably impressed by "the great volubility and loud " voices of the New York people at " their dinner tables." But "I note a " distinct change for the better as I " travel West." In Ohio and Michigan, one infers, no time is wasted in volubility when there is food to be disposed of. In short, the Master tells Detroit in a burst of confidence:

> I had expected to find a more distinct American type here, but I must say that your people are more like Europeans in their habits and manners than are the people of New York.

Whether the Middle West will be pleased at this is an open question. To be esteemed above New York is flattering enough, though it merely confirms the Middle West's own opinion; but it appears that New York is voluble, loud and American; the Middle West is quiet, civilized and European. Perhaps this is true. The native American used to go West, hunting for the opportunities of the frontier; now it is a commonplace that the cities are the frontier where the pot of gold lies waiting to be exhumed by the adventurer. So the adventurous scions of old American stock come to New York, leaving the farms of the Middle West, still more the manufacturing cities, to be filled up by European immigrants. This may explain the difference in culture; but the Middle Westerner has the eagerness of the lately arrived immigrant to be truly and completely American; he may not regard it as a compliment to be told that he is still more European that the resident of Manhattan.

However, the Master has more golden words for the Middle West. In Europe they have been taught that American cities and towns are ugly as compared with those of the Old World. This is true, he finds, in the East; but "between Cleveland and Detroit " I discovered a great change. Many " of the little towns compare very well " with our Belgian or French towns " in picturesqueness." One does not know whether this opinion is based on personal observation of the Cathedral of Wapakoneta and the Hotel de Ville of Bucyrus, or if perhaps it may be merely a reflection of augmented gate receipts in cities which were not so cold to the Master's message as was New York.

One question, however, is still unsolved. The Master is reported as saying that jazz music "gets his goat." This is the first time that the goat has appeared in the picture. Who is the goat? It cannot be Mr. HENRY RUSSELL nor any other member of the thiasos which brings the new gospel to the Europeanized Middle West. One must suppose that the goat is to be interpreted in the light of Scripture, and in that case the identification is easy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Credulity Is Not a Novelty. There is excuse for seeing in the fact that at least two Fifth Avenue merchants have deemed it "good for business," or in some other way expedient, to have the money in their cash drawers "blessed" by vagrom gypsy women, another proof of the frequently asserted and commended passing away of the "materialism" that is said to have prevailed in this and other countries before the war. Certainly, faith in the efficacy of such a "blessing"—it seems to have been a sort of exorcism addressed to the spirits or demons of bad luck—has not more about it of the "material" than of reason or common sense.

One cannot but suspect, however, that these particular believers—or half believers—in the mysterious powers of gypsies are now no different from what they always were—that they never had advanced beyond the point of feeling, in regard to such powers, much as a good many people do in regard to ghosts—theoretically sure they are non-existent, but actually a bit nervous when going by lonely graveyards on dark nights. That gypsies are a peculiar folk, peculiarly endowed, is a belief much older, and has been more widespread than is the sort of spiritism of which Sir OLIVER LODGE is the expounder and devotee, and it rests on "evidence" which, while no better than what he presents, is vastly more abundant, and has been accepted by literally innumerable sane and intelligent people, thousands and thousands of them of even greater eminence than he.

Therefore, that now, or ever, Fifth Avenue merchants should have thought it possibly worth while to have their money blessed is after all considerably less surprising than it is amusing.

Ancestral Notions Surviving. As for there being in these anxious and troubled days a new or stronger turning to the mystical—a readier acceptance than formerly of assurances relating to another world or the unseen inhabitants of this one—that is more than doubtful. What seems more probable—in a time when profiteers abound and the pursuit of selfish interests is at least as ruthless as it ever was before—is that the people who always possessed more or less of the old-time credulities are confessing and talking about them a little more boldly and loudly than they did before. It is a difference between saying cautiously, "There may be something in it," and saying confidently, "I am sure there is"—which isn't as much of a difference as it seems and perhaps is really none at all.

Consultations of fortune tellers have never been only by the poor, the humble or the ignorant, innumerable exposures as frauds have hurt the business of the so-called mediums not at all, and—well, there probably isn't a newspaper in the country that in one column or another of last Friday's issue did not note as a fact of some general interest that the day was the 13th of the month. That it was of general interest is a reflection on the general intelligence, of course, and yet it does not prove that next to everybody is mad or imbecile; it only shows that the dead are still alive in one way if not in another, and that every one of us has a lot of ancestors who could and did believe many absurd things.

Preparation to Meet Prohibition. According to report, when the Mauretania last sailed from Southampton her foresighted head steward had on board a larger stock of assorted strong waters than the ship ever carried before, but, in spite of this precaution, the liquor had all been consumed by the thirsty passengers before the voyage was ended and its terminal hours were sadly "dry."

This is a somewhat disquieting piece of information, for what the travelers did on this trip they are likely to do again and again, and yet again—as long, in fact, as journeys to this inhibited country may continue—and it is not at all likely that head stewards hereafter will underestimate possibilities of profit as did the Mauretania's purveyor.

Hence is life on shipboard, when moving west on the Atlantic, threatened with excitements not pleasurable to all. It is not stated that any of the Mauretania's passengers misbehaved to any shocking degree, but a good many of them must have shown whole-hearted and nearly continuous devotion to the task of utilizing what for some time was to be a last opportunity, and it is unbelievable that they all preserved either equilibrium or equanimity.

But who knows? Already, and long since, our Government has insisted that all ships coming to our ports—not only those flying our own flag, mind—must observe American-made rules as regards the carrying and treatment of passengers. It would be only an extension of this power, not the asserting of a new one, to fine steamship companies that sold intoxicants during any part of voyages hither.

The sea is free, indeed, outside the three-mile limit, but it is really free only for vessels that remain that distance from shore, and none can do that indefinitely.

Boston Sentiment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many thanks for your fine article in today's TIMES about the abominable reservation to Article X. I returned yesterday from Boston, and while there I was rejoiced to find many of my friends thoroughly ashamed of their Senators, Messrs. Lodge and Walsh.

FEEDING THE BIRDS.

I'm keeping open house, these days—
My pensioners the gardens throng.
Brave feathered minstrels, they, who earn
Their daily dinners with a song—
Families of sparrows, pert and small,
Shy starlings with their plaintive call.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Jay bold,
A host of speckled chickadees,
Gray squirrels, too, come swarming down
From cozy nests high in the trees,
Holding up hungry, furry hands
To me, a friend who understands!

No epicures are these, my guests,
Who come thus praying to be fed;
They feast on nuts and grains of corn,
Crumbs from my table, crusts of bread—
But, oh, what grateful songs they raise!
(I'm keeping open house these days.)

THE SUFFRAGE ISSUE.

A Distinction Between the Republican and Democratic Parties.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In yesterday's interview in THE TIMES apparently I inadvertently gave the impression that Chairman Cummings of the Democratic Party is less committed to forcing woman suffrage over the heads of the people than Chairman Hays of the Republican Party. On the contrary, he is following as closely as possible in his opponent's tracks. We are not concerning ourselves with Chairman Cummings because his party has not followed him in this.

The public is not concerned with either Chairman personally. What does concern the people is that the Republican Party has allowed itself to be stampeded by its national Chairman (acting for the men higher up) in violation of its party pledge. The Democratic Party has not.

What President Wilson himself, with his prestige of office (the first Democrat in twenty-three years, and the first Southerner since the civil war to hold that office), has not been able to accomplish among Democrats, Mr. Will H. Hays of Indiana—how or why remains to be seen—has effected among Republicans.

We have yet to see any such repudiation of their Chairman by Republicans as those of Senator Grason of Maryland, James R. Nugent and the Essex County Democrats of New Jersey, and the indignant editorials in leading Democratic papers, not only against Chairman Cummings but also against Attorney General Mitchell Palmer, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, and all the Administration backers of the Suffrage Force bill.

It is not Chairman Cummings or Chairman Hays that the people are watching on the eve of the great election, but the two dominant parties, one of which they must shortly choose to pilot the nation through troubled seas of unrest and possible hurricane of revolution. They are vitally concerned to know which party will stand firm by its pre-election pledges in this great crisis when pressure is the order of the day! The Susan B. Anthony Force bill campaign is a mockery of the settlement-by-States-plank in both Republican and Democratic 1916 party platforms, framed by the people's delegates at the last National Conventions, and which remain party law until the people's delegates speak again at the next National Conventions.

A Hudson River Bridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with great interest the account in Sunday's TIMES of the projected Hudson River bridge.

This project only too long deferred by the complications of interstate negotiations, and more recently by the war, is, with or without its complexity of railroad connections, certainly one that appeals to the imagination more than any other of recently suggested public improvements.

The one hundred million dollars in the title of the article may not appeal to many of those who think only the strictest economy should be our watchword for many years. But there is a false economy in peace as in war, where the most expensive way proved many times to be in the end the cheapest. I venture to say there is not an inhabitant in this great metropolitan district of ours, whether he ever set foot on it or not, who would not be more or less directly and most beneficially affected by such a great public utility.

Too numerous to more than summarize are the great benefits that would accrue were such a bridge a reality. No series of narrow and doubtfully ventilated tunnels can ever bring so close the thousands of vacant and comparatively unimproved acres now within tantalizing view of the west side of our city but made inaccessible by the Hudson. It would afford the one greatest relief to our staggering north and south transportation systems that could possibly be conceived. Must it always be that we are a decade behind in grasping new concepts for our metropolitan travel? What simpler way of lowering rent costs, than to double the area of land within easy reach of where every one seems to want to go!

Hardly less of benefit would be the lowering of the cost of food transport into the city, the prevention of future fuel famines by strikers, weather conditions, &c., and making easily accessible the great future playground of New York, the Bear Mountain Park, unnecessarily remote today only on account of inadequate ferry service.

And lastly, what more magnificent memorial to our soldiers of the great war, a combination of help and usefulness to the greatest number, with beauty of design and conception, before which halls and towers and arches sink into the background.

Palladino.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Professor Jastrow thinks to dispose of Palladino with a gesture, so to speak. Both he and Professor Munsterberg discovered that she did everything with her nimble feet. Then how did she do this? I stood up beside her and held an accordion against the curtain. The other end was seized and pulled out, causing music. I stood up on tiptoe and reached up as high as I could. It was again seized through the curtain. There was no one behind the curtain, for I had looked to see. I could detail a dozen other "tricks" beyond the reach of her feet, and the table levitations were a very minor part of the phenomena. Professor Charles Richet of Paris, Professors Morselli and Lombroso, all psychologists of note, spent weeks in private investigations of Palladino. The American psychologists spent a few hours and discovered nothing except a freeing of one foot. Thereupon they both rushed into print with a whole magazine article, a very discreditable performance. Physiological psychology more than anything else took away the soul of man and reduced him to an automaton. Psychic research is bringing back the soul and accumulating proofs of survival of death which strengthen enormously faith in the life and miracles of the founder of Christianity.

An Appeal for Clothing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to call to the attention of your generous public a crying need at the Social Service Bureau of Bellevue Hospital. Many discharged influenza patients are now ready to be sent to convalescent homes in the country to make complete their recovery by good food and rest. The first necessity is warm clothing, for children, women and men, overcoats especially for the latter. We have none in our clothes closet and make our greatest appeal for them, the breadwinners who must regain their health. Will any of your readers who have an overcoat or clothes ready to discard send them to Miss Mary E. Wadley, Social Service Bureau, Bellevue Hospital, and help one more influenza victim to be self-respecting and self-supporting?

Chairman of the General Welfare Committee, Social Service Bureau, Bellevue Hospital.

Lansing for President.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that the President has given the country the candidate for the next Presidency, a man whose inestimable services, experience and qualifications are so well known to the majority of our citizens as to need no repetition. I do not know or care whether Robert Lansing is a Republican or a Democrat. He towers head and shoulders over every other possible candidate in those qualities of American citizenship which will be needed in the White House in the trying years to come.

HONOR DEAD OF THE MAINE.

Former Commander and Chaplain of Warship Address Veterans.

Services commemorative of the sinking of the battleship Maine twenty-two years ago in Havana harbor were held in this city yesterday afternoon. Brief exercises were held in the Twelfth Regiment Armory at Sixty-second Street and Columbus Avenue, under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the speakers being the former Commander and the former Chaplain of the Maine, Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee and Mgr. John T. Chidwick. The members of three posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, headed by a naval band, then marched to the Maine monument in Columbus Circle, where a wreath was deposited by a former member of the crew of the battleship.

In St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue, services were held under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans at 4 o'clock. The Right Rev. M. J. Lavelle greeted the veterans in the name of the Cathedral, and presented Chaplain Chidwick.

Praising the former sailors for their part in obtaining liberty for Cuba, Mgr. Chidwick passed to a discussion of this country's condition after the World War.

"For the last 300 years the world has been going mad after political and moral liberty," he said. "This is, indeed, a marvelous blessing, but it must be supported by the liberty that comes from the freedom of the soul of man. You who have fought for liberty must help to guard this country from the corruption that is being heaped upon us through literature and on the stage. We must look more deeply into the truth from which liberty comes."

HAYES HEADS STATE LEGION

Ex-Adjutant Succeeds Russell E. Sard—Training Bills Indorsed.

Wade H. Hayes, formerly in command of the 107th Infantry, has been elected State Commander of the American Legion, to serve the unexpired term of former State Commander Russell E. Sard. Mr. Sard's resignation was accepted late Saturday evening at a meeting of the executive committee after he had told the committee that his protracted absence from the State for business reasons would interfere with his continuance in office.

Hugh W. Robertson has been appointed acting State Adjutant, to serve until the next meeting of the committee in March, as Mr. Hayes was formerly State Adjutant. The Executive Committee of the State, composed of district chairmen, also indorsed the legislation before Congress for universal military training.

Members of the State Executive Committee present at the meeting were Russell E. Sard, Albany; Robert Greenfield, Mount Vernon; James F. Goerke, Brooklyn; Harold Bodamer, Buffalo; Wade H. Hayes, New York City; Joseph L. Seligman, New York City; Robert McC. Marsh, New York City; Lucius C. Tuckerman, Milton; T. F. Brown, Amsterdam; Charles G. Blakeslee, Binghamton; A. T. Smith, Rochester, and Hamilton Fish, Jr., Garrison.

LEGION TO URGE CLAIMS.

Compulsory Training and Compensation for Service Men to be Pushed.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—Compulsory military training and the "obligation of adjusted compensation for service men" are to be urged upon Congress by the American Legion, says Franklin D'Olier, National Commander of the legion, who has directed that the Legislative Committee meet in Washington tomorrow and begin a series of conferences with members of both houses of Congress to urge the adoption of the methods advocated by the former service men's organization.

George F. Tyler, of this city, Commander of the American Legion in Pennsylvania, left tonight for the capital to represent this State at the conferences.

The National Executive Committee will suggest to Congress that an adjustment and settlement of the Government's obligation to the service men should be made on the basis of a bond issue of $50 bonds for each month of service.

TO CALL DR. JOHN McNEILL.

Ft. Washington Presbyterian Church Wants Scotch Clergyman as Pastor.

The Rev. Dr. John McNeill, known as the "Scottish Spurgeon," who was born July 7, 1854, in Scotland, and is now pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church, in Birmingham, Ala., will be recommended unanimously by the Special Committee of Seventeen chosen to nominate a pastor for the Fort Washington Presbyterian Church, Broadway and 174th Street. A notice was read at the church services yesterday that a special meeting of the congregation will be held Wednesday evening, Feb. 25, to hear the report of the committee. The pastorate has been vacant since the death of the Rev. Dr. Daniel Hoffman Martin, on Jan. 2 last.

The salary of Dr. McNeill, if he accepts the call, will be paid by the West Park Presbyterian Church, Amsterdam Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street, as was the stipend of Dr. Martin. Fort Washington Church is only seven years old. It was built by the West Park Church, and the salary has always been paid by that church. The salary has been placed at $6,000, and some wish to raise it to $7,000.

The Scotch clergyman is best known as an evangelist. He has often preached here during the Summer, in the Fifth Avenue and Central Presbyterian Churches. During the World's Fair in Chicago he was assistant to the late D. L. Moody in his evangelistic services. Dr. McNeill was ordained in 1886, and began his ministry in a poor district of Edinburgh. He has preached in practically every part of the world.

JEWS PLAN ARBITRATION.

Court Will Sit Each Wednesday from 5 to 8 P. M.

The Federation of Orthodox Synagogues of America has established a Jewish Court of Arbitration to adjust matters of a religious nature that otherwise would have to be brought into the courts of the city. Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan, and District Attorney Swann have expressed approval and have granted the use of a room in the Criminal Courts Building for the Arbitration Board.

The court was founded by Dr. Samuel Buchler. The following are some of the Judges who have consented to sit in the court for the next term; Rabbi A. Yudelowitch, President of the Jewish Ministers' Association of America; Judge Jacob S. Strahl, Israel Friedkind, Rabbi B. Fleischer, Judge Louis D. Gibbs, Joseph Smolensky, Judges Edgar J. Lauer, Jacob Panken, William Blau and Rabbi J. Fried.

Louis Richman will be the Executive Secretary of this court and will receive complaints at his office, 38 Park Row. The court will convene every Wednesday between 5 and 8 P. M. at the Criminal Courts Building.

NOVEL IDEAS GIVEN FOR WAR MEMORIAL

Mayor's Committee Makes Public Sixty-five Designs Submitted in Contest.

EXHIBIT WILL OPEN TODAY

Water Gates, Hudson River Bridge, Highest Apartment in World, Among the Plans.

Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Permanent Memorial, yesterday made public a list of the sixty-five designs submitted in the idea contest conducted by the committee. He also called attention to the fact that an exhibition of the models would open today at City Hall, continuing for two weeks.

The suggested memorials disclosed by the list are widely diversified. The design ultimately chosen to be commemorative of the city's service in the war will be picked by a jury of artists and architects, headed by Edwin H. Blashfield. Some of the plans offered were:

Robert Fulton Water Gate Association, by R. Fulton Cutting, C. Vanderbilt, Isaac Guggenheim, H. Van Buren Magonigle—Watergate at 110th Street and Riverside Drive, including landing basin, two recreation piers, historical museum, building for reception to distinguished guests and reviewing stand.

New York Zoological Society—A new aquarium.

Henry Grenier and S. C. Howard Greenby, 101 Park Avenue—Monument with statue on top representing "The Spirit of America."

Paul Manship, 42 Washington Mews—Colossal victory monument, with figure 580 feet high, in Central Park at axis of the Mall.

Clarence A. Fullerton and Major W. M. Somerall, 46 West Eighty-third Street—Metropolitan forum, extending from Hudson River to Central Park at Ninety-third Street, varying in width from two to six blocks, including civic forum, stadium, auditorium, hippodrome and circus.

Thomas Hastings, 52 Vanderbilt Avenue—Arch of freedom at Madison Square, revision of Madison Square itself, and Madison Square Garden to be restored and converted into a great memorial and forum with auditorium and smaller halls.

Monument 1,000 Feet High.

F. Wellington Ruckstull, 1,080 East Fourth Street, Brooklyn—Peace monument 1,000 feet high, including soldiers' memorial hall and clubhouse at Washington Heights.

Prentice Sanger and Henry Davenport, 21 East Fortieth Street—National Watergate at Battery Park.

General G. W. Wingate, 20 Nassau Street—Victory hall opposite Grand Central Terminal.

Robert Adamson, 511 Fifth Avenue—Memorial entrance to Central Park at the Plaza, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street.

Travis D. Wells, 119 West Fortieth Street—Street of Our Allies, Washington Square to Fifty-ninth Street, lined with stone columns, each block being named after a State or territory.

Major S. Wood McClave, 1 Madison Avenue—Bridge across the Hudson. A double-deck bridge, one for local traffic, the other for railroads, with a connection of elevated railroad tracks along the waterfront.

Dr. Karl Reiland and Francis Wilson—A beautiful building that should include a theatre.

Charles R. Lamb, Chairman of Committee on City Plans, Merchants Association—1. A water gate. 2. A victory hall. 3. A carillos of chromatically attuned bells. 4. The erection at the Battery of a monumental observatory. 5. A structure combining monumental features with educational resources. 6. The development of a colossal amphitheatre at the Speedway. 7. An arched road for ramp spanning Fifty-ninth Street at Fifth Avenue.

School for Americanism.

The Right Rev. Michael J. Lavelle, Rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral—A large and beautiful school, devoted perpetually to the teachings of Americanism.

Herbert L. Satterlee—Two club houses, one for the navy and marines and the other for the army.

Charles Evans Fowler—Arch of Victory of Foreign Wars.

M. H. Winkler, 59 Wall Street—Memorial hall, amphitheatre, fountain of victory, Roosevelt memorial, Mitchel memorial and Frick memorial, all to be erected on various sites in Central Park, the lower reservoir to be converted into a sunken garden and Fifth Avenue from Fifty-ninth to Seventy-ninth Street to be widened.

Eight of the ideas entered called for bridges—seven competitors wanted the Hudson spanned, while the other wanted a bridge from "Bay Ridge to Staten Island." Eight also was the number of plans that called either for buildings or columns in Central Park, with the old reservoir the favorite objective, or for new entrances to the Park.

It was the opinion of Lucian Mantell of 253 East 125th Street that the best memorial would be "the highest apartment house in the world," while Miss Helen Van Wyck Lockman of 58 West Forty-seventh Street favored a building "similar to the Hotel des Invalides, Paris." Five plans were for the construction of water gates at various points, while another idea was for an addition to the Public Library, "to be built in Bryant Park."

Through many plans for memorial halls, having utilitarian purposes such as sleeping and living quarters for war veterans, there loomed one suggestion that appeared to have more of the beautiful than the utilitarian—"a great bronze book in a classic belvedere with a pipe organ behind the perforated stylobate."

MOVE FOR FEDERAL SAVING.

Advocates of National Public Works Department to Meet.

On the ground that conditions demand a more economical organization of Governmental agencies, a movement to establish a national public works department has been launched, according to an announcement issued last night disclosing that Adolph Lewisohn had agreed to head the movement. Besides Mr. Lewisohn the officers of the movement will include J. Park Channing, Vice President of the Miami Copper Company, and Prof. James T. Grady of Columbia University.

"The purpose of the movement," the statement set forth, "is to organize under one department the many and varied public works functions of the Federal Government. These functions are now scattered through nine separate departments and thirty-nine bureaus and services. It is this independent operation and competitive relation of like functions which, in a large degree, renders the Government so wasteful and inefficient in its business conduct. A private business operated in that way would soon become bankrupt. The proposal to establish a department of public works is but the first step in the rationalization of Government business conduct and will make it possible for the Government to proceed on the same principles that have made American industries so successful."

The movement will get under way on Thursday night at a meeting to be held in the Engineering Societies' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street.

MISS KAHN ENGAGED TO BRITISH OFFICER

Banker Announces Betrothal of His Daughter, Maud, to Major John C. O. Marriott.

ON EMBASSY STAFF HERE

Both Were Active and Received Decorations for Their Services in the War.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn of 1,100 Fifth Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Maud Kahn, to Major John Charles Oakes Marriott, D. S. O., M. C., at present a member of the staff of the Military Attaché of the British Embassy in Washington.

Miss Kahn was formally introduced to society several seasons ago. She took an active part in war service, and for three years, from 1916 to 1918, was identified with the service, first in France and then in England. She received from the French Government, in gratitude for her work, the Medal of Reconnaissance Française.

Major Marriott is the son of the late Charles Marriott of Stowmarket, England, and is the youngest Major in the British Army, being only 25 years old. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Order, the Military Cross, Croix de Guerre, as well as other decorations for his services in the war.

Miss Kahn is fond of outdoor sports, and is a member of the Morris County Golf Club. She has a sister, Miss Margaret D. Kahn, and a young brother, Gilbert W. Kahn, who is attending Groton School. Her father is a member of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and patron of music and art. He is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

MISS LOIS KEITH TO WED.

Parents Announce Her Engagement to Col. Clyde V. Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. Boudinot Keith of 33 West Sixty-seventh Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lois Keith, to Lieutenant Clyde Vincent Simpson, 5th Cavalry, U. S. A.

Miss Keith is a granddaughter of Mrs. Candace Wheeler, founder of the Decorative Art Society and the Associated Artists. Her father, a lawyer of this city, was a Major, acting as Judge Advocate in the war and stationed at Tours, France, where her only brother died in the service. Her great-grandfather, Elisha Boudinot, was a Major in the Revolutionary War.

Colonel Simpson has been in the regular army since 1912. During the war he served in France and Germany as signal officer of the Third Division. He is now stationed at Camp Marfa, Texas, where he is adjutant of the Big Bend district.

They first met while Miss Keith was engaged in war work at Camp Wadsworth in 1918. Their marriage will take place shortly at the Winter home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith, Thomasville, Ga.

SPECTATORS FILE OUT OF BURNING THEATRES

No Signs of Panic at Fires in Two Bronx Moving Picture Houses.

Spectators filed from two moving picture theatres without a sign of panic in the Bronx yesterday while smoke from basement fires was drifting into the auditoriums and the clang of approaching apparatus was plainly audible. In both instances the spectators, warned from the stage, and at the same time assured there was no danger, heeded perfectly the injunction to go out quickly, but quietly.

There were only thirty-five or forty persons in the Bronx Star Theatre in the London Casino Building, 3,875 Third Avenue, about dinner time yesterday afternoon when a blaze was discovered in the basement at the north end of the six-story brick building, under the store occupied by a dealer in talking machines. Addis Brown, manager of the theatre, sent his patrons out in good order. Three alarms were sent in because of the difficulty in moving engines through the ice-clogged streets. The firemen found much difficulty with the acrid smoke from melting and burning records. Three firemen were knocked down when a gas meter exploded, but they remained on duty. Several others suffered from smoke. The fire spread to the adjoining stores of the Menzin Shirt Company, William Morgenstern, trunk dealer; the London Photo Studio and William Kopolski, feathers. Some of the flooring of the London Casino on the second floor had to be chopped up to extinguish the flames in the ceiling below, but the hall was damaged little. The total damage to the building was estimated at about $20,000.

Because this was the third hall in the Bronx to be attacked by fire in the past few weeks, McKinley Square Casino and the Burland Casino practically having been destroyed, a rumor spread that radicals were retaliating because Bronx meeting place proprietors had agreed among themselves not to rent their places to "Reds." Fire Marshal Herman deMalignon, after an investigation, said this rumor was unfounded.

The second fire happened just before 5 o'clock in the Metropolis Theatre at 142d Street, Third and Alexander Avenues, one of the oldest amusement places in the Bronx and erstwhile home of Broadway productions on migration, but now a movie house. After employes had found their hand extinguishers unequal to subduing a blaze in the men's washroom in the basement, announcement was made from the stage to the 600 or 700 persons present that they should leave. The theatre has a wealth of exits and, moving to a lively jazz tune from the orchestra, the patrons were safe on the streets before the first engine came. The fire was put out with little trouble.

SZECHENYI DENIES RUMORS.

Report of Seeking Divorce from Former Miss Vanderbilt "Ridiculous."

BUDAPEST, Feb. 14.—Count Laszlo Szechenyi today characterized as "ridiculous" recent reports that he was about to seek a divorce from the Countess, who before marriage was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, of New York.

"I am the victim of many rumors," the Count said. "I do not care to air my family affairs in the newspapers. It is ridiculous to say that my wife and myself are thinking of divorce and it is idiotic to assert that I am a candidate for the throne.

"My wife is in New York assisting in Hungarian relief work, while I am doing the same here."

The Count appeared to be greatly annoyed at being obliged to deny the divorce rumors.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Palm Beach.

Mayor Hylan of New York, who had been expected yesterday morning, telegraphed friends here that he would not arrive until next Sunday.

Among those giving dinners last night were Harold S. Vanderbilt, Oliver Iselin, Theodore Frelinghuysen, Clifford Brokaw, Michael P. Grace, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munn and A. Kinnaird Todd.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte entertained at a luncheon at the Beach Club, their guests being Lord Queensborough, Dr. and Mrs. Preston Satterwhite, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cosden and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Kidder.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic de Peyster Foster arrived yesterday from New York.

Those entertaining yesterday in the Cocoanut Grove were Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend, Mrs. Ambrose Wetmore, Mrs. Eugene Philbin, Mrs. Leonard D. Ahl, Jay Carlise and Mrs. Bertrand L. Taylor.

Newport.

Rear Admiral William S. Sims and his aid, Lieut. Commander Edwards, have returned from Washington and New York.

Major and Mrs. Robert K. Cassatt left last night for Philadelphia.

Cecil Barrett returned to New York yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Redmond left last night for White Sulphur Springs.

Hot Springs.

Mrs. Alfred M. Coats and Miss Elizabeth Coats of Providence are here for a month's visit.

Sir Mortimer and Lady Davis arrived yesterday from Montreal, to remain three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan McLane ended a visit here of several weeks last night and left for their home in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Clark have returned to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Du Bois have arrived from New York for a fortnight.

Washington.

The Mardi Gras ball, to be held on Tuesday evening in aid of Neighborhood House, will be the last large dance of the season in Washington, Ash Wednesday being generally recognized as ushering in a time of rest for society at large.

It is the fashion to "keep Lent" in Washington, hence the special services to begin next Wednesday promise to be well attended at St. John's, on Lafayette Square, at St. Matthew's on Rhode Island Avenue and at St. Thomas's, du Pont Circle.

Dinner parties in compliment to Vice President and Mrs. Marshall will continue at the rate of three a week, while the former Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing continue much in demand. The latter, were they so inclined, might dine out every night until their departure, Feb. 28, for a few weeks' stay in the South to give Mr. Lansing a much needed rest. While declining to make positive statements concerning their future plans, it is understood the former Secretary and his wife will continue their residence in Washington for the present and be prominently identified with the social life of the Spring season, which promises to be brilliant.

The Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier were hosts at a large breakfast company yesterday in compliment to Prince de Croy, who has been on special duty at the embassy, but who will return to Belgium shortly.

Colonel Henry du Pont entertained a large luncheon company yesterday.

The newly appointed Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Meredith have taken possession of an apartment at 1,785 Massachusetts Avenue, for the Spring season.

John Barton Payne, the newly appointed Secretary of the Interior, is not house hunting, as he is a widower without family and furthermore is occupying the handsome house on I Street which Mrs. Payne and her brother, the late Charles Page Bryan, inherited some ten or twelve years ago from their aunt, Mrs. Charles Whitehead of New York and Virginia.

Mrs. William Morton Grinnell announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Grinnell, to Lieut. Com. Henry Livermore Abbott, U. S. N., son of the late Grafton Abbott of Boston. No date has been decided upon for the wedding. Miss Grinnell, who made her début about a year ago, has enjoyed all the honors of belleship in addition to being one of the most popular members of Washington's resident set. She is the only daughter of the late William Morton Grinnell of New York and for the last several years has, with her mother, made her home in this city with Mrs. Grinnell's father, General O. H. Ernst, U. S. A.

Mrs. Charles W. Williams announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth O. Williams, to Major Charles Mottler, U. S. A. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Colonel Charles W. Williams, U. S. A., and a sister of Colonel Richard P. Williams, U. S. M. C., the latter now on duty in South America. Both Miss Williams and her fiancé are now abroad, where their marriage will take place shortly.

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Iselin, 745 Fifth Avenue, entertained at dinner last night at the St. Regis.

Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller sailed Saturday for a visit in England.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm and their débutante daughter, Miss Betty Chisolm, who left yesterday for California, will return in April.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Dennis, 112 East Seventy-fourth Street, are leaving today for Jekyl Island.

Mrs. James De L. Flower, who went to Palm Beach with her daughter, Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, is visiting in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vose White are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter Friday the 13th. Mrs. White was formerly Miss Jean R. Stewart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George D. Stewart, 405 Park Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., will entertain the members of the One Hundred Club at a dance tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bodgett spent the week-end at Old Point Comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Stanley McCormick will be guests in the Harold F. McCormick box at the Metropolitan Opera House tomorrow night at the performance of Russian dances.

Princess Cantacuzene, who has returned from a visit in Philadelphia, will have as box guests General R. L. Bullard and Mrs. Bullard and Mrs. William W. Rockhill.

Wedding Announcements.

The marriage of Miss Frances McLaughlin, daughter of Mrs. Mary J. McLaughlin and the late William A. McLaughlin, and C. C. Creighton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Creighton of Franklin, Pa., took place on Saturday at St. Mary's Church, Jamaica, L. I., the Rev. John Scheffel officiating. The bride is a well-known pianist. Mr. Creighton was in the Royal Air Force during the war as a flying instructor. They will make their home in Detroit.

The marriage is announced of Miss Dorothea Peyser Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Smith, and Lieut. Col. Edward L. Kelly, U. S. A., which took place Saturday in Brooklyn. Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Kelly will reside at Fort Monroe, Va.

Dinner for Baron Avezzana.

The Italy America Society will give a dinner Tuesday evening, Feb. 24, at the Hotel Astor, for the new Italian Ambassador to the United States, Baron Romano Avezzana. Charles E. Hughes, President of the Society, will preside. C. Grant La Farge, Secretary of the American Academy in Rome, is to speak. Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clews, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Governor and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, are among the patrons and patronesses.

Harry Bullock Post Reception.

The first annual entertainment and reception of Harry Bullock Post, 312, of the American Legion, will be held next Saturday evening at Westminster Hall, 73 Lenox Avenue. The profits will be devoted to the erection of a permanent headquarters for the post.

DR. MERLE-SMITH RESIGNS PASTORATE

To Leave Central Presbyterian Church Because of Age and Poor Health.

SERVED THIRTY-ONE YEARS

Congregation Needs a Younger Man for Large and Increasing Work, He Says.

After serving for thirty-one years, the Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle-Smith resigned yesterday as pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. He gave as his reasons his age, poor health, the desire for rest, and his conviction that a younger man is needed.

Dr. Merle-Smith presented his resignation to the official boards of the church and it was printed in The Remembrancer, the weekly calendar of the congregation. The step was a surprise to the membership, but not to the session and trustees, as Dr. Merle-Smith had recently taken those bodies into his confidence. The pastor and his wife have been in Washington, D. C., for a brief vacation and are due home today.

"I desire to present to you my resignation as pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church to take effect not later than July 1, 1920," the letter read. "This step is taken after more than a year's conscientious consideration and for this reason only. Since my recent severe illness which laid me aside for many months, I have not had the physical strength to bear the burden of a large and increasing work.

"The church needs more efficient handling than a man sixty-four years of age and with impaired strength can give to it.

"It is a great satisfaction to feel at the end of the thirty-first year of this pastorate that the church is at the highest water-mark of its prosperity. The pew rentals are the highest in its history.

"The benevolence, which increased 50 per cent. last year, has increased again, and is now 100 per cent. over two years ago."

The Remembrancer on another page expresses its regret at the resignation of Dr. Merle-Smith. "The news will come as a surprise and a blow to many, and it is a matter of sincere regret to those most intimately concerned with it that it must come at all," says The Remembrancer.

"The Trustees and session have organized an unofficial committee to seek a new pastor, which is already hard at work. It is hoped that a new leader may be speedily chosen."

In the absence of Dr. Merle-Smith the pulpit has been occupied by the Rev. Dr. John A. Marquis, Senior Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, of which Dr. Merle-Smith is President. In his prayer yesterday Dr. Marquis thanked the Lord for "the singularly successful pastorate" of Dr. Merle-Smith.

Dr. Merle-Smith is a Director in the Hudson River Day Line, of which his father-in-law was the founder and first President. Eben E. Olcott, the present President, is a brother-in-law of Dr. Merle-Smith. Dr. Merle-Smith has two daughters, Mrs. David H. Pyle and Mrs. James McAlpin Pyle, and one son, Captain Van Santvoord Merle-Smith, formerly of the 165th Infantry, who was wounded in France.

FRENCH APPREHENSIVE OF BRITISH PACIFISM

Fear Further Attempts to Modify Treaty, and Press Is Cool to Millerand.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—While there is a good deal of complaint in the Paris press over the compromise between Mr. Lloyd George and M. Millerand by which the demands for extradition of war criminals have been modified, most editors agree that the sensible thing for the two Premiers to do is to compose their differences. Noting that M. Millerand gave way on Article 228 "for sentimental reasons," they express the hope that he will not yield on any measures involving the material gains accruing to France from the treaty.

The Echo de Paris regrets the action which has been taken on Article 228 and adds:

"Our duty now is to prevent British pacifism from opening such breaches in the treaty that the employment of guarantees such as that of the Rhine occupation will be judged unjustifiable."

Aristide Briand's Eclair observes:

"M. Millerand says that, while he is ready to make sacrifices on questions of sentiment, he will not yield one ounce as regards our material interests. As for ourselves, we make all reserves upon this distinction, for every point in the execution of the treaty is materially important. However, we will wait and see if M. Millerand holds fast or continues to give way."

EXPECT TO DROP BAR ON STRIKES

Industrial Conference Proposes That Settlement be Sought Before Strikes Come.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The industrial board which was set up by President Wilson to study the relations between labor and capital in an effort to recommend a program which would bring an end to the present day conditions of unrest, hopes to make its final report to the President by March 1. A committee including Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Labor Wilson and the Chairman of committees assigned to special subjects are now completing the draft.

It is now proposed to omit from the program any provisions which would take away from labor the right to strike. There was a strong sentiment for such a provision at first because of the steel strike and the coal strike, but organized labor, headed by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, made a united protest, and it became evident that the inclusion of an anti-strike provision would spell the defeat of the effort which was being made in the direction of general betterment.

WANTS JEWS' CASE STUDIED.

Morgenthau Would Send Committee to Poland to Aid Them.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey and Chairman of the American Commission to Poland, who last night addressed the junior congregation of the Free Synagogue at 36 West Sixty-eighth Street, declared that the solution of the Polish question for the Jew was the selection of a committee of American Jews to go to Poland, study the conditions, and explain to their brethren there that they must produce and cannot continue to live like parasites.

In answer to a question after his address, Mr. Morgenthau said that some of the Poles resent dealing with the Jews or having anything to do with them, and that a few of them admitted that they do not intend to discontinue their present antagonism. He said that it was the fault of the Jews in some cases that the Poles disliked them, because the Jews say that they do not want to be considered Poles, but are Nationalists.

"We are not going to settle this Polish problem by sending a few thousand Jews to America or to Palestine," Mr. Morgenthau said. "There are 8,000,000 Jews in Poland and other countries of Central Europe, and it is impossible to alleviate their sufferings by sending them away. Unless the rich Jews in America and the thinking Jews get together and really make a thorough study of this problem and change the condition of that entire mass, you will never settle the Jewish problem."

MUSIC

Rosen Plays with Philharmonic.

Max Rosen, the violinist, appeared with the Philharmonic Society in its 1,399th concert yesterday at Carnegie Hall, when Conductor Stransky presented an all-Tschaikovskk program, comprising the fifth symphony, violin concerto and overture "1812." All of this music was familiar to the large audience that greeted the matinée. Mr. Rosen, in the year or two since his return from Petrograd, has improved much in his manner of facing an audience, once amateurish, now manly and bold, although it is possible to regret any lessening of youth's loverlike preoccupation with beauty of tone. He has gained in rugged vigor, with a certain loss in fervor of style, on the whole advancing as artists must by struggle, a mood most congenial to Tschaikovsky's fine concerto, which Mr. Humiston's program note recalled had been first played in this country by the late Maud Powell.

Music Recitals of a Day.

Many musical recitals were among yesterday's events in theatres as well as concert halls. Sara Fuller appeared at the Princess in a matinee program of soprano songs, including an air from "Lucia, assisted by Richard Hageman. There were scheduled evening recitals by Yvette Guilbert at the Maxine Elliott Theatre, and by another French artist, M. Duran, at the Theatre Parisien. Others were the Flonzaleys yesterday afternoon at the Harvard Club, Sam Franko's chamber-music players last evening at the Washington Irving High School, Christian Kriens's Symphony Club of 125 at Temple Israel, in Harlem, and Jacques Gottlieb's newly formed Community Symphony, at the Washington Heights Y. M. H. A.

Symphony's Own Artists Heard.

The Symphony Society, at its twelfth crowded matinee in Aeolian Hall yesterday brought forward—as once did the Roman Cornelia her children—two stars of Mr. Damrosch's band, both Frenchmen. Following Dvorak's favorite symphony "From the New World," Mr. Mathieu was heard in Guy Ropartz's "Pastorale et Danses," for oboe with orchestra, wherein modern harmonies cast a pleasant glow about the leading instrument's pale plaintive wood-notes wild. Mr. Letellier, of the bassoons, was no less cordially greeted in Mozart's concerto for the big bass of the winds, caught in a spiderweb of rare point lace orchestration. For the first time, Mr. Damrosch gave Tommasini's "Claire de Lune," a modern bit of moonshine, said to owe notoriety to the incident of Toscanini quitting a concert in Rome when his audience applauded this native piece as against some of Wagner's. Yesterday's bill, offering no problems, ended with Reznicek's "Donna Diana."

Marinuzzi Leads His Music.

Gino Marinuzzi, with four stars, chorus and orchestra of the visiting Chicago Opera, gave another concert at the Hippodrome last evening, when Conductor Marinuzzi led his men, assisted by those of the chorus, in his own music postponed from the previous week. The young Italian director's four "Sicilian Impressions," entitled "Christmas Story," "Waltz of the Peasants," "Song of the Emigrants" and "Popular Fete in Palermo," were applauded by a crowd of large size, though less than the vast theatre's capacity. Yvonne Gall and Cyrena Van Gordon both changed their announced arias for others from "Thais" and "Hamlet" respectively. Edward Johnson sang a tenor air from "Andrea Chenier," and with Galeffi a duet from "La Gioconda," the four stars ending with the "Rigoletto" quartet.

TO REPEAT 'PARSIFAL' SOON

Another Matinee Feb. 28 to Follow Metropolitan Revival.

As "Parsifal's" revival in English next Thursday afternoon is long since sold out at the Metropolitan, and tickets are at famine rates on the curb, another matinée is announced for Wagner's work on Saturday, Feb. 28, the first in some years before a regular subscription audience. So far as the management has told its plans, the prospect is that as many of the Metropolitan subscribers as indicate a desire to do so will have opportunity to hear "Parsifal," while the general public will get the same chance at extra matinées, including the usual one on April 2, Good Friday.

Next week, the fifteenth of the Metropolitan season, will open with "Faust" on Monday, sung by Farrar, Martinelli, Werrenrath and Mardones, as a Washington's Birthday matinée. Other operas will be, for Monday evening, "L'Oracolo" and "Cleopatra's Night," with Easton, Harrold, Scotti and Didur, Alda and Kingston; Wednesday, "Zaza," Farrar, Crimi, Amato; Thursday "Samson," Caruso, Matzenauer, Whitehill, Mardones, and Friday "Rigoletto," Barrientos, Hackett, De Luca and Mardones.

OPERA FOLK AT CENTURY.

Club's Banquet Is Followed by Skit on Gatti and Gest Shows.

The Ten Nights Club, an informal organization growing out of the Metropolitan Opera Company's trips to Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Atlanta, held its fourth annual dinner and reunion last night on the Century Theatre roof. "Meal tickets" were limited to 100 musicians and newspaper men, though there was a lively interest on the part of theatrical Broadway in this year's proceedings, as it had become known that the banquet was to be followed by a satirical skit on the season's productions of both Messrs. Gatti-Casazza and Morris Gest.

Both the Metropolitan impresario and the Century's lessee were among those accepting the club's hospitality at the risk of a laugh at their own expense. The opera secretary, W. J. Guard, was one of a carefully rehearsed village band that assisted; Sigmund Spaeth, Harry Osgood and others gave topical songs, and a two-act burlesque of "The Blue Bird" and "Aphrodite" was acted by its author, Frank Warren, who appeared as Seligs-Tyl, with Gilbert W. Gabriel as Gatti-Tyl. H. E. Krehbiel was toastmaster.

Seidel at Opera Concert.

Toscha Seidel appeared with Mardones and the Misses Scotney and Jean Gordon in last night's "opera concert" at the Metropolitan. The Russian violinist was heard in Wieniawski's concerto in D minor, a work somewhat outmoded yet attractive in its final allegro moderato "alla Zingara"; he also gave with orchestra the "Rondo Capriccioso" of Saint-Saëns. Miss Scotney's air was the "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto," Miss Gordon's the one familiar contralto bit from Verdi's "Don Carlos," while Mr. Mardones added the bass air "O Tu, Palermo," from Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers." Next Sunday's concert was announced in the printed bills to be a general Italian operatic program, with Rosa Ponselle and eight other soloists, the Metropolitan chorus, orchestra and stage band.

Actors' Guild Benefit.

The George M. Cohan Theatre was well filled last night at a benefit performance given under the auspices of the Catholic Actors' Guild. The Rev. John Talbot Smith presided and introduced the performers, who included Laurette Taylor, Leo Ditrichstein, Irene Bordoni, Frank Bacon, Barney Bernard, Clifton Crawford, Brandon Tynan, Wilton Lackaye and others.

Jugoslav Minister to Vatican.

ROME, Feb. 15.—Dr. Bakotich, temporary Serbian agent to the Vatican, has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary of the Serbo-Croat-Slovene Kingdom to the Holy See. Mgr. Cherubinni, formerly apostolic delegate at Haiti, has been appointed Nuncio at Belgrade.

CONCERT IN MEMORY OF HORATIO PARKER

Yale Pays Tribute to Composer for 26 Years Professor of Music at the University.

HIS LAST WORK ON PROGRAM

Members of Faculty and Out of Town Musicians and Music Lovers in Audience.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15.—A memorial to the late Horatio William Parker, professor of music at Yale University, was offered by the University this afternoon in the shape of a concert in Battell Chapel. Professor Parker died on Dec. 18, having been professor of music at Yale since 1894, and recognized for many years as one of the leading American composers.

The program of the memorial concert comprised the adante from Brahms's first symphony; and a cappella chorus from Professor Parker's dramatic oratorio, "The Legend of St. Christopher," to the words of a mediaeval Latin poem, "Jam sol recedit ifneus"; and finally, the "Morality"—an old form of play such as the miracle plays—called "The Dream of Mary." The text of "The Legend of St. Christopher" is by the composer's mother, Mrs. Isabella Parker; that of "The Dream of Mary," by John Jay Chapman of New York. "The Dream of Mary" was one of Professor Parker's last compositions. It was first performed at the festival at Norfolk, Conn., a year ago, this being only its second performance.

The conductor of the occasion was Professor David Stanley Smith, Professor Parker's successor as Dean of the Department of Music. The chorus was that of the Choral Art Choir of New Haven, the orchestra, the New Haven Symphony Orchestra. The solo parts in "The Dream of Mary" were taken by Mrs. Edith Chapman Goold, soprano; Francis Rogers, baritone, and a trio consisting of Mrs. Robbins, Miss Benedict and Mrs. Nichols. There is an important part for the spoken voice of "the Angel," sometimes alone, more often against the background of the orchestral accompaniment—"melodrama" in the technical meaning of that word. This part was delivered by Miss Sydney Thompson, in the singing robes of an angel and with wings attached.

"The Dream of Mary" comprises besides an orchestral prelude, ten episodes, representing scenes in the life of Jesus, as they are supposed to appear to Mary in a dream foretelling the events. There are parts for Mary, John the Baptist, the Shepherds, besides the Angel. In this music Professor Parker had returned to a style simpler and more direct than that of many of his later compositions dating at least as far back as his opera of "Mona." Perhaps one reason for this may be the fact that the composition was originally intended for a chorus of children.

In the audience were many members of the Yale faculty and a member of musicians and music-lovers from out of town. From New York there were John Jay Chapman, author of the text of "The Dream of Mary," and Mrs. Chapman; Dr. Arthur Mees, Prof. Walter Henry Hall, Arthur Whiting, Henry P. Schmidt, Carl Stoeckel, H. W. Gray and Henry L. Mason.

G. W. BABB DIES SUDDENLY.

Insurance Man Is Stricken with Heart Disease at Lotos Club.

George W. Babb, 76 years old, a retired fire insurance manager, of 311 Garfield Place, Brooklyn, dropped dead last night at the Lotos Club, 110 West Fifty-seventh Street. He had gone to the club in the afternoon to see an exhibition of art held by the members. Dr. Edmund Devol of 24 East Forty-eighth Street, a member of the club, when summoned, said Mr. Babb probably had died of heart disease.

Mr. Babb was President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters from 1907 to 1909 and President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters from 1911 to 1913.

"Life is not so short but that there is always time for courtesy," said Emerson.

The Telephone Company expresses the same thought by saying "The voice with a smile wins."

Mr. Frank E. Campbell, founder of The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th Street, ascribes a good deal of his success to his insistence that all his employees be courteous, attentive and self-denying to the extreme.

In time of grief, a word of sympathy is highly appreciated. A little attention is never forgotten.

The trained staff of men and women within The Funeral Church know how to keep from the bereaved the thousand little details, worries and annoyances which loom up so big to a grief-stricken heart. They help to make the funeral services an act of consolation, of pleasant memories.

They are the recipients of many beautiful letters of thanks. But what they value higher is the grip of a hand, the tear in an eye, words unspoken.

They are happy to serve. Like Stevenson, "They know what pleasure is, for they have done good work."

MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS ARRANGE 106 INTERLEAGUE GAMES FOR TRAINING CAMPAIGN

INTERLEAGUE GAMES GROWING IN FAVOR

Total of 106 Arranged by Big League Clubs for Coming Training Campaign.

LOCAL TEAMS TO BE BUSY

Giants Scheduled for 21 Contests, Robins for 20 and Yankees for 19—Red Sox to Play 24.

A most extensive schedule of interleague training games, greatly exceeding in number any schedule of previous years, has been arranged by major league clubs as part of their 1920 conditioning campaign. Six clubs of each league are listed for these interleague exhibition affairs, with the trails extending from Brownsville, Texas, to Miami, Fla., in the South, to Cincinnati in the Middle West and New York in the East.

The complete schedule of these interleague battles calls for 106 games, with six different clubs listed for twenty or more of these contests. Six years ago these exhibitions by teams of rival leagues were almost unknown in the South. Some of the teams returned home to engage in Spring series with rival teams of the same city, a plan that was popular for a time in Philadelphia and still draws well in St. Louis. The Cardinals and Browns of St. Louis, and the Robins and Yankees are the only big league clubs which will engage in an intercity series at home, but the Giants, Senators and Reds will appear in interleague games on their home grounds.

This plan of clubs from rival leagues doubling up for the jaunt from the training camp to the North has become extremely popular in recent years, so much so that the 1920 schedule calls for five times the number of games played five years ago by major league clubs previous to the opening of the regular season. A few years ago two National League clubs, the Cubs and Phillies, played a series in Florida and the league put a ban on the practice before another training season arrived. As a result, the plan of a joint tour with an interleague series has developed.

Games Draw Heavily.

Most managers contend that games against another major league club is the best medium for putting players on edge, likewise for showing the strong or weak points of the younger player. Furthermore, it has proved very profitable to the clubs involved. In the old days the major league teams engaged in a series of exhibition contests with the home representatives of minor-league cities or smaller towns in the South, but in time the Southern fans grew weary of these one-sided battles, and the crowds dwindled from thousands to hundreds. Such games hardly paid traveling expenses, while the interleague series very frequently nets each club more than enough to pay the entire expenses of its training trip. This has been true of the Giants-Tigers series of 1917, the Giants-Indians series of 1918, and the games played by the Giants and Red Sox last Spring. The Yankees-Robins series last Spring came close to cleaning the expense slate of each club.

All three clubs of the Metropolitan district have gone heavily into this interleague-series plan. The Giants, according to a schedule released Saturday by Secretary Joe O'Brien, will engage in twenty-one games with the Boston Red Sox, the tour starting at Fort Worth, Texas, and ending at the Polo Grounds. The Robins are scheduled for twenty games against American League clubs, sixteen with the Yankees and four with the Senators. Miller Huggins's men will take part in nineteen games with National League clubs, three with the world's champion Cincinnati Reds in Florida, and the remainder with Brooklyn. This interborough series calls for eight games in Jacksonville, where the two clubs will train, five en route north and three at Ebbets Field. None of the three local clubs ever scheduled so many of these games for any previous training campaign.

Red Sox Head List.

The Boston Red Sox will be the most active in these games against rival major leaguers, with a schedule of twenty-four games. Besides the twenty-one contests with the Giants, Ed Barrow's aggregation will hook up in three games with the Pirates at Hot Springs, where both clubs will do their training. The St. Louis Cardinals are booked for a spell of sixteen games with the Mackmen in the Lone Star State, and will then hurry home to meet the Browns in a seven-game set. The Washington Senators are booked for twenty-two games, four with Brooklyn and eighteen with the Reds. Moran's champions are listed for twenty-one contests, eighteen with the Senators and three with the Yanks. An eighteen-game tour of the Tigers and Braves completes the Spring interleague activity of these two clubs, and the Mackmen will be content with their sixteen games against the Cardinals. Seven games for the Browns and three for the Pirates complete the card.

Two clubs from each league will engage in games with minor league or independent clubs only. They are the Chicago and Philadelphia teams of the National League and the Chicago and Cleveland Americans.

Following is the complete list of interleague games arranged to date:

| | Games. |
|---|---|
| New York Giants vs. Boston Red Sox | 21 |
| Boston Braves vs. Detroit Tigers | 18 |
| Cincinnati Reds vs. Washington Senators | 18 |
| Brooklyn Robins vs. New York Yankees | 16 |
| St. Louis Cardinals vs. Phila. Athletics | 16 |
| St. Louis Cardinals vs. St. Louis Browns | 7 |
| Brooklyn Robins vs. Washington Senators | 4 |
| Cincinnati Reds vs. New York Yankees | 3 |
| Pittsburgh Pirates vs. Boston Red Sox | 3 |

The exodus of New York players for their training camps in the South will begin in ten days. The vanguard of the Brooklyn players will leave here for Jacksonville on Thursday of next week, and on the following day the few Giants who go from this city will entrain for St. Louis, where the squad will be mobilized for the advance on San Antonio. The Yankees will get away one day after the Giants, departing on Saturday, Feb. 28, for Jacksonville. The first workout for each of these clubs is scheduled for Monday, March 1.

British Turf Fixtures Have Huge Entry Lists

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The entries for the Spring handicaps for the coming flat racing season, which opens next month, show a big jump over last year, and all followers of the turf are looking forward to the biggest season on record. For the Lincolnshire Handicap, the first great race of the season, which will be run off on March 24, fifty-two entries have been received against twenty-eight last year. The City and Suburban has received the same number of entries as compared with thirty-two last year. It will be run off on April 21.

The Great Metropolitan Stakes, to be run off April 20, has received fifty-two entries against twenty-three in 1919, while for the Esner Cup, to be run off at Sandown Park on April 22, the large number of seventy-three is entered against forty-five last year.

RICH CUBAN STAKE WON BY CROMWELL

Carries Top Weight to Impressive Victory in Menocal Handicap at Havana.

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 15.—The first $3,000 stake, the President Menocal Handicap, to be run at the local meeting, brought success to that sterling campaigner, Cromwell, which shouldered 125 pounds today and carried it to an impressive victory at Oriental Park. It was a trying test for the thoroughbreds, as teh track was about as bad as has ever been known at the course.

There was a short delay at the post and the field was sent away to a good start. The top weight, Cromwell, was taken back under slight restraint, and Mountain never made a move on him until the far turn, when he shot him into the lead, and assumed an advantage of two lengths. When the field straightened out for the run to the wire, Mountain let Cromwell step along and, increasing his advantage to the end, won by three lengths, while Hank O'Day was five lengths in front of Scotch Verdict. The winner received $2,720 for his share of the purse; the second horse got $500; the third $250, and the fourth horse saved his nomination fees by receiving $100.

The fifth race was declared off.

WIND A HANDICAP TO TRAPSHOOTERS

Spotts's Low Total of 89 Is Good Enough to Win on Travers Island Firing Line.

High winds that made it exceedingly cold on the firing line were responsible for poor scores at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. It was the worst shooting day of the season and the twenty-three gunners who took part had great difficulty in killing the tiny blue rocks.

R. L. Spotts, a former national champion, won the majority of the prizes. He took the high scratch prize with a card of 89 out of a possible 100 targets. It is one of the lowest scores that has won the trophy this Winter. Spotts also won a special scratch shoot and scored on the Buermeyer Cup along with W. G. Allen, each gunner having 46 out of a possible 50 targets.

The scores:

| | Tour. Cup. | Byronel Cup. | Pres. Cup. | Lyon Cup. | Scr. & Hdc. Cups. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|

West Hits 79 Out of 100 at Larchmont Y. C. Traps.

Thirteen gunners took part in the week-end shoot of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday. The day was cold, and a high wind from Long Island Sound made the shooting conditions exceedingly poor.

The high scratch prize went to H. E. West, a visitor, who broke 79 out of a possible 100 targets. The best score returned by a member was S. G. Duffy's 74. The high handicap prize was taken by L. C. Dalley, who had a card of 70—24, 94.

The scores, which follow, were the lowest made this season:

| Name | Hit | H'cap | T't'l |
|---|---|---|---|
| L. C. Dalley | 70 | 24 | 94 |
| S. G. Duffey | 74 | 20 | 94 |
| E. M. Dalley | 57 | 36 | 93 |
| W. E. Webb | 41 | 48 | 89 |
| W. E. Ferguson | 70 | 16 | 86 |
| C. J. Minninger | 77 | 8 | 85 |
| E. W. Fitzgerald | 64 | 20 | 84 |
| J. C. Andreson | 56 | 28 | 84 |
| H. E. West | 79 | 4 | 83 |
| J. Megargee | 63 | 20 | 83 |

DWYER WINS ROAD RACE.

Mohawk Distancer Has Five-Second Advantage in Twelve-Mile Run.

Eleven runners braved the penetrating cold and danger of slipping on the icy streets yesterday to compete in road races conducted under the auspices of the Bronx Athletic League, by the St. Mary's Catholic Union, 151st Street and Courtland Avenue. One of the races was at twelve miles, serving as a practice chase for the coming Sea Gate Marathon, and the other was a renewal of the B. A. L. weekly races at five miles.

Mike Dwyer of the Mohawk A. C. led the field in the chase, taking the lead from T. Ruffino, Paulist A. C., at five miles, and setting a brisk pace thereafter to the finish. The Mohawk runner covered the course in 1 hour 21 minutes 10 seconds, finishing five seconds ahead of James Brooks, a clubmate. Boak finished third in 1:21:16, George W. Hooley was fourth in 1:21:25, Ruffino was fifth in 1:27:01, and S. B. Richman, Glencoe A. C., was sixth in 1:27:02.

The five-mile event resulted in a victory for William Furlong of the Mohawk A. C., who led Charles W. Rapp, a clubmate, to the finish line by less than

SEGRETO FIRST TO FINISH.

Covers Six-Mile Road Run Over Icy Course in 37:14.

Benjamin Segreto, Morningside A. C. distance runner, led home a field of nine rivals yesterday in the invitation six-mile road race held under the auspices of the Morningside A. C. Segreto, in a strong closing burst of speed, led George Thompson, St. Christopher Club, to the finish line by a matter of about fifteen yards. The victor's time was 37:14.

The order of finish follows:

B. Segreto, Morningside A. C., 37:14; George Thompson, St. Christopher Club, 37:17; Wilson Jackson, St. Christopher Club, 37:35; Archie Pohring, Morningside A. C., 37:49; Frank Centrell, Morningside A. C., 38:05; Robert Raymond, Morningside A. C., 38:19; E. Kallivas, Morningside A. C., 38:36; C. Sheer, Morningside A. C., 39:39; J. Flynn, Morningside A. C., 40:02; B. Schaeffer, Morningside A. C., 40:30.

ROBBIE TO AID COLLEGIANS.

Brooklyn Manager to Coach Johns Hopkins's Pitchers.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 15.—Johns Hopkins University baseball team has begun working out for the coming season. Coach Armstrong has obtained the services of Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn to train the mound artists. Other coaches will be Flaherty of the Boston Red Sox, Joe Kelly, scout of the Yankees, and Tommy Thomas, who twirled the last two years on the Buffalo Internationals.

The schedule follows:

J.; 8, Rutgers at Homewood; 12, Western Maryland at Homewood; 15, Maryland State at Homewood; 21, St. John's at Homewood; 22, Georgetown at Homewood; 31, Maryland State at College Park; June 10, Boston College at Boston; 12, Lehigh at Bethlehem.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

Baseball Shadows Vanish.

The fear that the factional fight in the American League would cast its shadow on the forthcoming pennant race has, happily, been dispelled, and the club owners may now retire in a harmonious group behind the scenes as the players prepare to bring the game itself into prominence. The results of that long conference in Chicago must be viewed with satisfaction by all close followers of baseball regardless of where their sympathies may have rested during the bitter fight that grew out of the transfer of Carl Mays to the Yankees last August.

The satisfaction of the fans is shared by those most interested in the struggle. The insurgents, as the New York-Chicago-Boston owners were sometimes known, are less inclined to gloat over the success attained than over the fact that peace once more rules in the organization. That the five aligned with Ban Johnson were eager for peace is clearly attested by the concessions which they made at Chicago to bring the struggle to an end. Despite the many warlike declarations of the club owners in the recent past, all had become tired of the tedious battle and there was a realization that the public, too, had had more than its fill of baseball wrangling without and within the courts.

With the legal entanglements and much of the bitter feeling removed, the major league situation presents a far more attractive view and the game can now move on to what should prove to be the greatest season in major league history. Only the curtailed campaign of 1919 prevented the reaching of such heights last year, and now the way is clear for the 1920 pennant races to eclipse, in popular interest and attendance, all that has gone before. The National League appears to be enjoying a condition of harmony that has been decidedly lacking in many recent years. Its younger rival is close enough to real harmony to insure the sort of baseball which the fan demands, that without dissension and legal trimmings.

There is not likely to be another such conflict in the majors for many years to come, if ever. Each side in the younger circuit has taken a positive stand against any further bickering and a sincere desire by all to preserve harmony is quite likely to produce such a happy result. The tendency to let bygones be bygones is manifest alike among the insurgents and loyalists of a few days ago. In the season about to begin it is very probable that the policies of President Johnson will be supported unanimously by the club owners and as vigorously as in the years before the big fight threatened the lift of the American League. In a way the solution of the American League difficulties, not on the program for the Chicago meeting, means more to baseball than the transaction of any business which the club owners gathered to transact. The game needs peace to thrive and it is incumbent on the club owners to see that this condition continues to prevail.

Dogs of Regal Breeding.

The victory of a wire-haired fox terrier for the best of show, with a greyhound held in reserve, in the annual exhibition of the Westminster Kennel Club at the Grand Central Palace has been generally welcomed by dog fanciers as justification of the painstaking care and devoted study to perfecting these breeds. There are probably no dogs which have received more careful attention, from the standpoint of proper breeding, than the wire-haired fox terriers and the greyhounds, and this despite the many breeds which have in the last few years come into popularity. The fox terriers have long held sway at the big shows and the breed has many times taken best of show. Their popularity has continued unabated, while other breeds have forged to the front only to drop back again, and as a consequence the sturdy little wire-hairs have had an exceptional opportunity for development. Their victories have encouraged the breeding of this species until it has reached a high state of development.

The greyhounds are also an advanced breed. This is probably more particularly true in England than in this country, but, in the opinion of many well-informed fanciers, the greyhound is nearer a state of perfection than any of the other breeds. This is probably due to the encouragement the breeders of these long, lean animals receive in England, where the greyhounds are ever popular. The Waterloo Cup, which is a rich prize for any breeder, has been one of the chief sources of incentive to the development of this species. To win the Waterloo Cup means high stud fees received by the owner of the winning dog, which sometimes amount to $50,000 or more a year. Thus such fine specimens as Lansdowne Sunflower, which was held in reserve at the Palace Saturday, have been developed.

However, while some breeds were asserting their supremacy, it was a matter of comment among veteran visitors at the show that other breeds, which a few years ago were popular and seen in large numbers at the exhibitions, were passing out, or had already passed. There was a time when the pug dog was popular and was an important feature of the shows. Last week there was but one pug at the Grand Central Palace. The Newfoundland, a breed much beloved and with many fine qualities, seems also to have faded away during the reign of the newer popular breeds. There was but one Newfoundland at the show last week, and likewise, but one Gordon setter was seen.

A Trust That Disappears.

For the first time in the history of squash tennis a Yale man is the individual amateur champion of the United States. In winning the national title last Saturday Auguste J. Cordier broke up a monopoly of major honors in the popular indoor game which had been held by the Harvard Club ever since the sport's introduction in New York.

Not only had Harvard supplied every previous individual champion, but the team honors had also gone with great consistency to the Crimson colors. The advance of the Blue this season is proved not only by the landing of the national title, but in the Class A and Class B matches of the Metropolitan League as well, for Yale tied with Harvard in the former, losing only after a play-off, and won in the latter class without a single defeat in a series of eight encounters.

Cordier had to eliminate the two topnotchers of the Harvard ranks, John W. Appel, Jr., and Anderson Dana, to achieve his new honors, and therefore broke the Crimson spell in the most direct and impressive fashion. Appel was the amateur champion in 1919, while Dana had twice before been runner-up for the title. There was no fluke about Cordier's spectacular victory, for he had previously shown his class by winning the national handicap tournament, playing with the heavy impost of minus ten to a game. As a hard hitter, with the ability to place accurately and change his pace at will, he stands right up at the top of the amateur list.

Physically Cordier was at his best last week. He had been defeated early in the season by Charles M. Bull, Jr., and had twice lost to ex-Champion Appel in team matches, but both his form and his condition were steadily improving, and once he reached his top level he was a hard man to stop. The fact that he met Appel in the semi-final round of the national tournament was all in the Yale man's favor, for he won this match by coming from behind after losing the first two games, a circumstance which would have been impossible if they had been playing best out of three instead of best out of five, and which left the eventual decision largely to purely physical considerations.

With the professionals of squash tennis spending much time and care in the development of the amateurs, and also playing a series of challenge matches among themselves, the game is at present in the healthiest possible condition, and should long continue as the favorite Winter recreation for athletes, particularly those who took part in the most strenuous games in their college days.

Great Work on Board Track.

An assemblage of the country's greatest athletes; an attractive and extensive program, providing competition between the foremost of Uncle Sam's potential Olympic Games representatives; high calibre and keenness of competition; remarkable attendance, and, withal, the rapidity and workmanlike efficiency with which the games were conducted, combined to make the recent indoor athletic meet of the Millrose A. A., always regarded as one of the blue ribbon events of America's board floor season, one of the greatest meets ever held in the country. Praise in unstinted quantity is being heaped upon the officials whose untiring efforts made the success possible. The athletes, many of whom will leave these shores in the Summer bound for Antwerp, had their moments of acclaim as they strove for prizes and glory on the board floor of Madison Square Garden, amid the joyous shouts of the thousands who made up one of the greatest crowds which has ever witnessed an athletic meet in the metropolitan district.

This thirteenth Millrose A. A. meet followed tradition, too. It has invariably been the case in the past that the annual fixture produced record-smashing performances or tests which equalled accepted marks. One record was broken and another equalled in the recent meet. These marks are figuratively worldwide, but literally American in significance, because of conditions which confines indoor athletic competition almost exclusively to America.

Earl J. Thomson of Dartmouth College, and Jack V. Scholz of University of Missouri, were the athletes who emerged from the meet in a flood of glory, with their performances chronicled in all parts of the country. Thomson created a new hurdling record when he went over the sticks in the 70-yard contest in a manner which stamped him as one of the greatest hurdlers ever developed in this country. He was timed in 8 1-10 seconds, shaving one-fifth of a second off the mark which was made at the Garden nine years ago by Jack and Bob Eller. Scholz, showing remarkable speed in his initial metropolitan competition, tore off a 70-yard sprint in 7 1-5 seconds, equalling the record in one of the most brilliant performances seen here in years. Scholz showed an ability to get off the starting mark snappily, plus the essential faculty of picking up speed in his tear down the sprint lane, the combination entitling him to rank as a leader in the country's sprinting circles.

The failure of Charles Paddock of the University of Southern California, to carry off a premier prize, disappointed to an extent In extenuation of the Californian's showing, however, it must be considered that he was unfamiliar with board floor running, a handicap which he could not overcome, although his showing was extremely impressive.

Australian View of Ross.

If one may judge from newspaper reports Australians were somewhat disappointed in the swimming of Norman Ross, the famous American waterman, now engaged in a tour of their land. Most of the press found fault with his form, in commenting upon his early race and expressed the opinion that his success is due rather to exceptional physical resources than to remarkable skill. Nevertheless, Ross's visit seems to have convinced the Australians that the stroke developed in this country, the trudgeon-crawl, has its advantages. They have never been able to see its value in the past.

One of Sydney's old-time champions writes to a New York friend on the subject: "Your great swimmer, Norman Ross, has given us our first glimpse of the trudgeon-crawl and I must admit now that it is a remarkable stroke. Ross, himself, is one of the finest all-around swimmers that ever was seen here, but it is debatable whether he would have been able to beat our own best star, the late Barney Kieran.

"That your stroke should be wonderfully efficient when used by a really good swimmer I have no doubt. Ross, however, has a bad arm action, particularly with the right arm, and I am led to wonder what he could do with perfect form, or what Kieran could have done had he known the trudgeon-crawl. Remember that the latter covered 880 yards in 11 minutes, 11 3-5 seconds with the trudgeon, a performance which will take some beating even today.

"I think the chief value of the trudgeon-crawl is the adaptability of its leg drive to the distance in sight. We have always claimed the superiority of the crawl for sprinting, the trudgeon for longer courses, as you know. Your practice of adjusting the leg action by merely reducing the major kicks for short distances and widening them gradually for the longer, but still retaining the same action of rhythm, appears to me a good step forward.

"Our own type of crawl does not lend itself to this simple adjustment and that is the reason we felt skeptical of the value of the trudgeon-crawl until Ross' recent appearance among us showed that we had not understood fully such articles as we had read concerning the working of the stroke.

"But quite a few of our younger swimmers were experimenting with the trudgeon-crawl before seeing Ross and now that they have had a practical demonstration of what it means not only they, but many others, will undoubtedly take it up and follow American methods.

"Ross was not feeling tip-top while here in Sydney, but he said he hoped to get used to the change of climate and do better work later in other cities."

PRIZE FOR STEALING LAP.

Riders Achieving Feat in Six-Day Race Will Get $1,000.

It was announced last night by the management of the six-day race starting at Madison Square Garden March 7 that $1,000 will be given to the team stealing a lap on the field any time during the week, regardless of whether the team holds the gained distance or not. It is not regarded as likely that if a team steals a lap it will be lost, and with the major portion of the $50,000 in prize money going to the winning team a small fortune will be waiting for the lucky riders at the close of the race.

The foreign agent for the management is now in Brussels negotiating with the winners of the race just closed there. There is a general feeling in certain quarters on this side that a foreign team will win the coming race because of the perfect condition many of them are in at present and the fact that they have shown a big improvement in their work since the close of the war.

BRITISH INVITE CHALLENGE.

Want U. S. Power Boat Entered in Harmsworth Trophy Race.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 15.—President Hanley of the International Power Boat Union, has received word from the Royal Yacht Club of London that a challenge for the Harmsworth Trophy from the newly formed union would be entertained. "Gar" Wood, it was said, would probably be selected to represent the union with the Miss Detroit III. Another speedboat of the same type may be entered from Cleveland. The entry must be made by March 1.

RICE CHESS TEAM DOWNS COLUMBIA

Brooklyn Beats Staten Island and Leads Met. League—N. Y. U. Defeats C. C. N. Y.

Columbia, defeated by the team of the I. L. Rice Progressive Chess Club, 5½-2½, dropped to fourth place in the annual championship series of the Metropolitan Chess League at the conclusion of the games of the third round at an early hour yesterday morning. C. B. Isaacson and Fulton Worden scored their games in behalf of the Blue and White, while P. Wolson added a draw. The rest went down to defeat before the fine strategy of the league champions, who played at home.

The Brooklyn Chess Club and Marshall's Chess Club, victors over Staten Island and the Swedish Chess Club, respectively, remained tied with the Progressives in the matter of matches played and won, but the Brooklyns at present have a slight advantage in total games scored, which will count in the long run, should a tie for first place occur at the end of the series.

The first clash between any two of the colleges took place at the Manhattan Chess Culb, where New York University, after a tussle of over five hours obtained the verdict against City College by 5 to 3. Lester Dennon, P. Zatulove, E. Glassberg and L. Diament won for N. Y. U., while D. Bourgin drew with H. Sternberg and G. Rapaport with I. Brimberg. A. Weisbord and M. Grossman were the winners on the C. C. N. Y. team.

The point scores of the leading teams are: Brooklyn, 22½; Rice Progressive, 20½; Marshall's, 18½ (two adjourned); Columbia, 12½; Staten Island, 10½; City College, 10.

BOWLING RECORD IS BROKEN

Milwaukeean Raises Mark from 718 to 736 in Wisconsin Match.

MANITOWOC, Wis., Feb. 15.—A new world's record for a series of three games in bowling was established today by Walter Swift of Milwaukee, when he rolled 736 at the Wisconsin State tournament.

The previous record was held by Harry Cavan of Pittsburgh, who made 718 in 1919.

TILDEN IS TWICE VICTOR IN TENNIS

Defeats Murray and Garland in Singles on Indoor Court at Providence.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15.—William T. Tilden, 2d, putting on steam when it was needed most, sent down to defeat on the East Providence Indoor Tennis Court today R. Lindlay Murray, ex-national champion and king of the overhead smash, and C. S. Garland, intercollegiate champion.

This double feat in singles gives Tilden an unbroken record of victories for the Winter, so far as the local court is concerned. The task of adding two such experts in one afternoon to his list of victims almost proved too much for him, however. He finally won the match from Murray, two sets to one, after hovering on the brink of defeat during several nerve-racking games in the last set. The play with Murray scintillated with almost impossible recoveries. As usual, Murray indulged in his pastime of killing the ball from any position on the court, but made a few costly misses at the net.

The scores of this match were 6—1, 4—6, 9—7. Tilden took the match with Garland in straight sets, 6—1, 7—5. The scheduled doubles contest was called off to enable the visitors to catch a train.

Today's result gives Tilden the edge on Murray, each having won three previous matches against the other.

Next Saturday afternoon and evening Samuel Hardy of Chicago, former clay court champion and noted doubles player; Richard Harte, who defeated Tilden at Boston, and probably Vincent Richards will play here.

SHEA AND REGAN IN FINAL.

Will Battle for Handball Title of Metropolitan A. A. U.

Dan Shea, Pastime A. C. all-around athlete, won the right to compete in the final for the Metropolitan A. A. U. singles handball championship title yesterday on the court of the Annunciation A. C. In his semi-final round match Shea defeated Adolph Badinelli of the Annunciation A. C., after three spirited games, with scores of 21-10, 17-21 and 21-17. In the other match to determine a finalist Cyril Regan of the Annunciation A. C. defeated Robert Powers, a clubmate, in straight games, with scores of 21-17, 21-10.

Shea was forced through his hardest match of the tournament before vanquishing Badinelli. The players ignored a slight snowfall, the penetrating cold and the slippery condition of the court, and engaged in one of the stiffest matches that the tournament has produced. Badinelli enjoyed an advantage over Shea in that the former was familiar with every angle of the court, but Shea overcame this handicap with a strong, steady, low-driving attack, which he carried through with surprising strength in all three games. Rally followed rally as the players fought for the right to contest the title, but Shea's hard-driving invariably carried the fireman-athlete through successfully.

Regan's success over Powers was comparatively easy. The latter gave a good account of himself in the first game, when he forced Regan steadily, but his efforts in this game affected his play in the second, and enabled Regan to register a convincing victory.

a yard in 32:10.

Because of his position in the final round of the singles, Regan will receive the first prize, offered by the Annunciation A. C. to its members finishing foremost in the tournament. Second prize will be awarded to Powers, and third prize to Adolph Badinelli.

The summaries:

Singles.

Semi-Final Round—Daniel Shea, Pastime A. C., defeated Adolph Badinelli, Annunciation A. C., 21-10, 17-21, 21-17; Cyril Regan, Annunciation A. C., defeated Robert Powers, Annunciation A. C., 21-17, 21-10.

Doubles.

FOX LANDS CARPENTIER FOR TITLE BOUT

Boxer's Manager Cables Acceptance, and Final Details Will Be Arranged in Paris.

NEGOTIATING WITH DEMPSEY

Champion's Decision Not Yet Forthcoming—Present Plan Is to Hold Bout Near New York.

Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight boxing champion, and his manager, François Descamps, have accepted the offer of William Fox for a bout against Jack Dempsey, world's titleholder, to be held in this country either July 4 or Labor Day. This information was made public last night by Jack Francis, a representative of Mr. Fox.

Winfield R. Sheehan, another representative of Mr. Fox, is now on his way to Paris for a conference with Manager Descamps. Sheehan sailed Saturday on the Adriatic. Before boarding the liner, Sheehan divulged that he had an appointment in Paris with Manager Descamps for Feb. 24, at which time he said he expected to complete the details of Carpentier's acceptance of Mr. Fox's offer for a match against Dempsey. Sheehan exhibited a blank contract, to which he said he was going to seek the signatures of Manager Descamps and Carpentier. Still another representative of Mr. Fox is understood to have accompanied Sheehan for the purpose of escorting Carpentier to this country. The French boxer is scheduled to sail for America early next month.

According to Francis, Manager Descamps s acceptance came in a cablegram received at the office of Mr. Fox last Thursday. Announcement of the details of the communication was withheld at that time, Mr. Francis said, because of uncertainty surrounding the sailing date for Sheehan. In the cablegram Manager Descamps did not state definitely which of the two offers made by Mr. Fox he would accept. This detail, Francis said, would be arranged by Sheehan, who has been vested with unlimited power to close the Carpentier end of the titular bout for Mr. Fox. It is understood, too, that a letter has been received from Carpentier, in which the European champion expresses his willingness to accept one of the offers and an eagerness to visit this country.

A Double Offer.

Mr. Fox has made two offers to Carpentier to come to this country and box Dempsey for the world's title. One is a flat guarantee of $250,000 in American gold, win or lose, and the other provides a purse of $550,000 for the bout, to be divided between the boxers on a basis of 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser. With each offer went the additional inducement of a division of 50 per cent. of the net profits from the match on a basis of 35 per cent. to the winner and 15 per cent. to the loser. The remaining 50 per cent., Mr. Fox stipulated in his announcement of the offers, was to go to the Red Cross of America, France, England, Australia and Canada.

The offer of a flat guarantee of $250,000 to Carpentier was conditional on the European champion's canceling vaudeville bookings on the Continent up to July and coming to this country to appear on the stage under the direction of Mr. Fox for a tour prior to his match with Dempsey. Mr. Fox explained that this would probably stimulate interest in the proposed bout. For discarding his European booking, Carpentier was to receive a consideration of $100,000, which is equivalent to the sum the French heavyweight will realize from his Continetal vaudeville activities from the date the offer was made up to July. This offer, with other communications from Mr. Fox has been submitted to Manager Descamps and Carpentier through A. Carlos, Mr. Fox's Paris representative.

Negotiations with Kearns.

Negotiations with Manager Jack Kearns, for Dempsey, have been confined to several telegrams across the continent, which have failed to produce any arrangements of a definite nature. In his last communication following the receipt of an offer from Mr. Fox, Manager Kearns declared himself willing to enter into negotiations after yesterday, by which time he expected something to eventuate with regard to other propositions he had under consideration. Conflicting reports on the claims which Charles B. Cochran declared he had on Carpentier's services, together with the fact that Dempsey was engaged in a moving picture production, compelled him, Kearns said, to defer entering upon definite negotiations. Dempsey was offered a flat guarantee of $300,000, with the privilege of working on a winner and loser percentage basis for the $550,000 purse, and an additional percentage of the net profits similar to the arrangement contained in the offers to Carpentier.

Mr. Fox plans to conduct the championship bout within easy traveling distance of this city. He prefers the metropolis, and, in the event that he secures Dempsey's services, will probably defer selecting a site for the bout until legislation is taken on the Senator James Walker bill, which would legalize professional contests in this State. While he has never committed himself definitely, it is known that Mr. Fox has under consideration a plan for holding the bout at the old Sheepshead Bay Motor Speedway, which is now unused.

KNICKERBOCKER FIVE WINS.

Defeats Holy Name a Second Time in Basket Ball, 28 to 25.

The Original Knickerbockers, basket ball champions of New York a dozen years ago, won their second victory over the Holy Name five since their return to the game this Winter, administering defeat by a score of 28 to 25 in a game filled with thrills. The Manhattan Casino was packed for the occasion, with a crowd estimated at 1,500 persons.

The lineup.

Referee—Mr. Thaler, New York Celtics. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Stanislaws Zbyszko Hopes to Wrest Title from Joe Stecher

Stanislaws Zbyszko, contender for the world's wrestling championship in the days when Frank Gotch ruled supreme among the grapplers, arrived here yesterday from Copenhagen on the Oscar II., after an absence of several years, and announced that he would go after the title now held by Joe Stecher. Stanislaws, a brother of Wladek Zbyszko, was rated in the first flight of mat artists before his younger brother attained any prominence in the sport. His bouts with Gotch and with Hackenschmidt are well remembered by wrestling followers. The older Zbyszko was in Russia at the outbreak of the war, and he was interned. On his arrival here yesterday "Zby" declared emphatically that he wanted to see no more of Russia. He now weighs 250 pounds and insists that he will be ready to re-enter the game here after taking off from ten to fifteen pounds. He recently engaged in a bout at Warsaw and won easily.

COLUMBIA COACHES TO AID UNION CREWS

Harlem River Club Hopes to Develop the Representative U. S. Boat for Olympics.

With many veterans of its 1919 crews again available, the Union Boat Club expects this year not only to repeat but to enlarge upon its long string of victories scored last season. Franklin Brodil, Captain of the club, announced last night that the hope is to develop a crew capable of winning in the national regatta the right to represent America in the Olympic games.

James Pilkington, head coach of the Union Club oarsmen, will be assisted in developing his crews this season by Coaches Jim Rice and Fred Plaisted of Columbia, and an arrangement has been made whereby the candidates will be allowed to use the Columbia rowing machines for training and instruction purposes.

In the Memorial Day regatta of the New York Rowing Association the Union Boat Club plans to enter a crew in every race, and to this end there will be developed three eights, two centipedes, two four-oar crews and two doubles. Captain Brodil, last year's stroke, and now a student at Columbia, will stroke this year's crew also, and all of his associates in the 1919 boat will be with him. These veterans of many successful races are George M. Harth, Joseph Harth, J. W. Falb, Frank Hekker, G. B. Ritchie, W. Jackson and W. McDonald. All of the eight saw service overseas during the war. Brodil, Hekker, Ritchie and Jackson won the four-oared championship for overseas veterans at Worcester last August.

Several of the Columbia oarsmen expect to row with the Union Boat Club crews during the Summer, after the collegiate season has ended. In the national regatta the local club expects its principal opposition for the honor of Olympic representation from the Union Boat Club of Boston, the Vespers of Philadelphia and the Duluth Boat Club. The last named organization defeated the New York oarsmen last year.

For Barnard Hockey Title.

A hockey game to decide the championship of Barnard College will be played by the classes of 1920 and 1921 at the Notek Rink, 119th Street and Claremont Avenue, tomorrow at 12:30 P. M. The Barnard Ice Carnival, to aid the $500 000 endowment fund of the college, will be opened at the same rink Wednesday afternoon.

PENN IN LEAD FOR BASKET BALL TITLE

Quakers Show Way in Intercollegiate League, While Their Closest Rivals Fall Back.

A great many of the obstacles in the way of a championship in the Intercollegiate Basket Ball League were removed from Pennsylvania's path as a result of games last week. After a rest of nearly two weeks, coincident with the mid-year recesses, every team except Princeton resumed play with somewhat surprising results. Not only did Penn add two more victories to her string of straight triumphs, but Yale suffered a substantial loss in prestige. The Elis now cease to press Pennsylvania closely for leading honors and are tied with Cornell at three victories and two defeats.

The most surprising reversal was Cornell's victory over the Elis on Saturday at Ithaca. Princeton and Yale previously had beaten the up-State five, whereas Cornell's only two victories had been scored in the round robin of two games with Dartmouth. Cornell's margin over Yale was only two points, yet this game put the Ithacans squarely into consideration again. There is ample justification for believing they will succeed in giving Penn a hard match when they meet the Quakers for the first time on Saturday at Philadelphia. Penn already has showed vast superiority over Princeton, Yale, Columbia and Dartmouth, and the only remaining obstacle to the pennant is Cornell.

Columbia was expected to make a better showing against Penn than was demonstrated on Alumni Day at Morningside. The New Yorkers played their best, however, displaying the brand of basket ball that had already defeated Princeton, but Penn's speed was quite the most brilliant seen on a local court in several years. Columbia men believe the Quakers have amply demonstrated their right to this year's crown.

In addition to the Penn-Cornell clash this week's encounters will be between Columbia and Yale at New Haven on Wednesday, Yale and Princeton at Princeton on Saturday, and Columbia against Dartmouth at Hanover the same night.

Captain Van Slyck of Yale retained his leading position among individual scorers despite his team's loss to Cornell. With 13 floor baskets and 42 foul goals he now leads Porter of Cornell by four points, and Sweeney, the sensational Penn forward, by five. Molinet of Cornell has assumed fourth position, Hynson of Princeton drops to fifth because of the Tigers' period of inactivity, and Rosenast of Penn replaces Opie of Princeton among the leading six.

The leading individual scorers and the standing of the teams follow:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| Van Slyck, Yale | 5 | 13 | 42 | 68 |
| Porter, Cornell | 5 | 16 | 32 | 64 |

ADD DAY TO SKATING MEET.

Big Entry List Necessitates Extension of Lake Placid Program.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The international skating championships, which begin here Wednesday, will continue until Friday because of the large entry list. This was announced by the Lake Placid Skating Association tonight.

The field will be double that of any previous skating races in the United States or Canada, it was stated, and it was decided to add another day to the meet because of the greater number of elimination races.

THIRTY-FOOT PUTT CLINCHES MATCH

Alex Smith and Robertson Humble Brady and Hutchison at Belleair by 3 and 2.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., Feb. 15.—Alex Smith, paired with Dave Robertson, who will be the pro at the Country Club at Detroit this season, defeated Jock Hutchison and Mike Brady, here this afternoon in a four-ball match by 3 and 2.

When Robertson sank a thirty-foot putt on the long sixteenth for a birdie four, which ended the match, he squared himself for losing to Hutchison last Sunday. It was Alex Smith, however, who carried the match from the beginning to the end and his ball was equal to the best ball of the opposition.

All scores were high on account of the strong wind that blew across the course, which played havoc with iron shots to the well-trapped greens.

Brady won the first hole with a four, but Smith evened matters with a four for the third. After three holes were halved in par, Smith got a birdie three on the seventh and took the lead. Hutchison squared the match at the next hole with a three, but Smith won the long ninth with a three and the eleventh with a four. Alex was again on the job at the fourteenth with four. Jock's three reduced the lead at the fifteenth, but Davie's birdie four at the sixteenth settled matters.

The best ball cards follow:

W. G. A. TOURNEY JULY 12.

Date Is Fixed for Western Golf Championship at Memphis.

While the Eastern golf bodies and the U. S. G. A. are biding their time about announcing the dates and places for championship tournaments, the Westerners are completing their arrangements for the season. When the W. G. A. met at Chicago a month ago Memphis was elected for the Western amateur championship event on the third ballot. The time was left to a committee, which has just annnounced the week of July 12-17 as the period for the fixture. The Western women also have finished the preliminaries and have set the week of Aug. 23-28 as the time for their championship, which will be held at Oak Park, Chicago.

The coming week will find the Southern resort golf courses at their busiest with events scheduled for three of the most prominent Meccas of vacationists. Of chief importance will be the Ormond Beach championship, which will start this afternoon and end on Saturday. The women's championship of Palm Beach will begin today and finish Friday, and the Washington's Birthday tournament at Belleair will also extend over the five days, Monday to Friday. There will be no tournament competition this week at Pinehurst.

TROEH CAPTURES TITLE.

Has High Score of 94 for International Wing Shot Championship.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 15.—Frank M. Troeh of Vancouver, Wash., today won the International Amateur Wing Shot Championship, the principal event of the Interstate trap shooting tournament, in progress here since Monday.

Troeh defeated Harry Snyder of Kansas City, who led when the first half of the event was completed yesterday. His score was 94. Among the five high shooters who won prizes offered in connection with the event were E. B. Melrath, Philadelphia, with 92, and H. C. Herndon, Georgetown, Ky., with 91. The tournament ended today.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The storm which developed Saturday afternoon over Virginia has moved northeastward; united with a second storm and snow it forms an intense cyclone centred over the Lower St. Lawrence Valley. Unusually high winds have attended its course along the Atlantic seaboard north of Delaware Breakwater.

The precipitation of the last twenty-four hours has been confined to New England, the north portion of the Middle Atlantic States and the Lake region.

Low temperatures for the season prevail generally throughout the Atlantic Coast districts, the Lake region and the great interior valleys.

Generally fair weather is indicated for all parts of the country east of the Mississippi except in Northern New England and along the lower lakes, where snow will continue. There will be some moderation in the Lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley Tuesday.

Storm warnings are displayed from Delaware Breakwater to Eastport.

Winds Off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook: Moderate west winds and fair weather. Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Strong northwest winds, fair weather. Hatteras to Florida Straits: Moderate west winds, fair weather.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Monday, except snow in extreme northern portion; Tuesday, fair, continued cold.

Southern New England—Fair and cold Monday; Tuesday, fair.

Northern New England—Snow and colder Monday; Tuesday, fair.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware—Fair and continued cold Monday and Tuesday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as fololws:

| | 1920. | 1919. | | 1920. | 1919. |
| 3 A. M. | 42 | 38 | 4 P. M. | 21 | 44 |

NIXON SEES NO BAR TO FLEXIBLE FARES

WOULD INSTITUTE PLAN NOW

Suggests That Under Agreement Rides Would Soon Be Selling for Less Than a Nickel.

The following statement by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon was prepared for THE TIMES. Mr. Nixon contends that legislation is not required to make possible an agreement with the traction lines for the immediate adoption of the flexible fare plan. He says he believes that the people will benefit by a lower fare than five cents when the companies enter again upon a vastly profitable era, which he thinks is rapidly approaching. Mr. Nixon says:

"Much confusion seems to exist in the public mind concering the operation of a flexible fare.

"Objection with many seems to be that the elastic limit is five cents and that if it stretches beyond that there is no chance of recovery. Much of interest is brought out at the Mayor's inquiry. So far facts developed are about the same as brought out by the Thompson investigation.

"Public opinion, to win support, must be based on full information; so, while time would have been saved by reading into the records the findings of the Thompson Committee, it is evidently thought that added emphasis can be given by going over the same ground again.

"Finally the inquiry will reach consideration of existing conditions, and this is what the traveling public is interested in.

"If wrong things have been done, those guilty should be found out and punished.

"If gross wastefulness and lack of proper business foresight is found in the distribution of income arising under an existing contract with the city, it would follow that if possible such distribution of inordinate profits should be prevented in the future. And if such wastefulness or extravagant exploitation has been capitalized there should be a scaling down of securities so issued.

"It is claimed that money was hard to get at the inception of the dual contracts, and that a hard bargain was driven. Now, however, the shoe is on the other foot, and if any amendment is secured the hard bargain can be driven by the city.

"While the representatives of the companies do not agree with me, I am of the opinion that in a comparatively short time the companies will enjoy great increase in net earnings. If this be so and the contracts are not redrawn the distribution of great sums will begin again. If this can be prevented, why is not every effort exerted to that end?

"Incident to a general readjustment in the people's interest, I have repeatedly said that we should do away with perpetual franchises and concentrate responsibility by bringing diverse operations under unified control and that the bonds of the city should be brought into the self-sustaining class, and so be released from the debt limit.

"In other words, shall we through inaction permit the conditions now again disclosed to the public to be re-established?

"It will be admitted that if the companies can hold the situation till profitable operation can be established anew gains made will then be distributed by them. This brings us to the flexible fare.

"Of course, in the introduction of a flexible fare, unless the general interests of the city and people are looked out for no particular advantage will be gained.

"In brief, a flexible fare would be applied in such a way as to pay costs of operation, city charges in the forms of taxes, assessments, &c., interest on city bonds and interest on investment, such investment amount to be based upon a fair appraisal made in such a way that it will be accepted as just and equitable by all our people. Not a one-sided affair, where a star-chamber cutting and slashing will be carried out, nor on the other hand a swelling of assets till they are as hard to see through as a fog bank.

"The city should name an appraiser of unquestioned standing, the companies a man of similar attainment, and the two choose the third appraiser. The interest should be such as is paid guaranteed investments in other lines.

"As a price is fixed for car-mile operation all excess should go into a special controlling fund fixed as to upper and lower limits.

"When fares operate to bring this fund to its upper limit an automatic reduction in fare to take effect, and, of course, if the fund reduces to the lower limit, an increase will result.

"Within a short time fares in Cleveland have fallen, under such a plan from seven cents to six tickets for a quarter.

"It is impossible to even mention the various safeguards, the provisions for encouraging economical and efficient management, but they have all been considered and applied by such cities as Cleveland, Cincinnati and Montreal.

"These contracts cannot be amended except with the consent of the Mayor and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, so they hold the whip hand in the matter.

"Complaint is made of surplus profits before the war. Do those who make such complaints expect to escape challenge of their sincerity when they have in their hands the means to prevent the infliction of such burdens upon the people for the next forty-seven years, and yet refuse to exhaust every effort to avoid the recurrence of the very acts they criticise?

"Every fact drawn out at the investigation now slowly dragging along, but emphasizes the city's duty.

"Why is the matter not being so handled that at least an attempt should be made to end the present deplorable condition of the traction situation?

"Does the city fear that it may be worsted in a battle of wits? The entire people are keenly alive to the situation and every step will be carefully watched and in the end no solution not satisfactory need be concluded.

"Is it considered bad politics to recognize property rights in any degree? Every citizen is jealous of the city's credit and just recognition of honest investment honestly applied will be applauded. This city must from time to time borrow money and must not even by implication be accused of desire to repudiate just obligations.

"My desire is not to raise fares for a few months to put the systems back on their feet, but to reduce fares for many years.

"A self-respecting people such as ours will not commend forcing even a corporation to supply its product at less than cost unless it is the expressed policy of the people that city transportation shall be free and paid for out of the tax levy. We must not forget, though, that the city is already taxing our people millions a year to provide transportation on the subways and this in addition to the fares they pay.

"The longer a meeting of the issue involved is avoided the greater will the bill become against the people to pay for neglect.

"Blind ignoring of existing facts and fundamental economic laws only increases the peril of forcing essential factors of transportation to fall into the hands of certain underlying bondholders. This might be most advantageous to the bondholders, but the responsibility of those who wilfully cause such result must be faced from every standpoint of criticism.

"This commission has no power to escape its responsibility. It must insist upon service and maintenance requiring great expenditures, even if it means bankruptcy to the companies furnishing such service.

"But such bankruptcy can be avoided if the problems involved are met with a sincere desire to preserve the integrity of our transportation systems in the direct interest of the public welfare.

"The city government has full power in the matter and this carries with it full responsibility.

"The people will soon begin to ask in a mighty voice why is responsibility avoided and duty neglected.

"This cannot be answered by saying someone made too much money in the past when inaction will result in such profits being repeated in the future."

BIG YEAR FOR FREE LOANS.

Hebrew Society Reports Losses of Only $121.25 in $913,855 Put Out.

The Hebrew Free Loan Society had its most successful year in 1919, sustaining losses of only $121.25 from loans of almost $1,000,000. The twenty-eighth annual meeting was held at the Educational Alliance, 197 East Broadway, yesterday.

In 1919 the maximum loan was increased from $300 to $500, and $913,855 was lent to 17,395 persons, an increase of $182,705 over the previous year. Since the founding of the society, President Julius J. Dukas said, loans have totaled $10,410,100 to 367,923 borrowers.

To carry on the work for the coming year, said Mr. Dukas, $100,000 will be needed. He announced a National Conference of Free Loan Societies would be held in this city on Aug. 15.

Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Charities, speaking at yesterday's meeting, said the city encouraged and desired to help organizations such as the Free Loan Society. Jacob H. Schiff, who has not missed a meeting since the

How Fairbanks Volume adds to your Purchasing Power

NOWADAYS manufacturers take care of their biggest customers first. Too often the shop of modest size is hampered by the lack of some item which its big competitor gets freely.

Every customer, large or small, who places a requisition on a Fairbanks Branch House, finds the power of volume behind him. Since it supplies the mechanical needs of thousands of customers The Fairbanks Company turns every market change to your advantage.

Fair prices, of course, but more than this, Fairbanks policy stands firm on goods of unquestioned merit always. The blue-and-white "FAIRBANKS O. K." tag means the best in trucks, wheelbarrows, valves, contractors' equipment, power transmission appliances, gas engines, Lincoln electric motors, pumps, automobile repair equipment, mill, mine and railway supplies, Louden overhead carriers. but it is costing him $41.67 every month

MR. R. recently sailed for South America. He expects to be gone a year.

Before leaving he rushed to his safe deposit box to clip certain coupons which would come due during his absence. Following his usual custom, he turned the coupons over to our coupon department for collection.

So far, so good.

When the coupons became payable, we presented them to the paying agent of the corporation which issued the bonds. We learned that the bonds, themselves, had been called for redemption, and had ceased to bear interest from the date on which they were called.

We telephoned at once to Mr. R.'s secretary, advising him that the bonds should be presented. We were told the bonds were in safe deposit and Mr. R. had the only key.

Until his return nothing can be done. Meanwhile an unnecessary loss of $41.67 each month continues to mount up.

FERRIES TO BREAK ICE TIEUP OF FOOD

Trucks from Down Town Will Go to Jersey and Back to Reach Shops in Harlem.

PERISHABLES PILED ON PIERS

High Prices Offered to Truckmen, Who Refuse to Take Risks on Ice-Banked Streets.

20 LEGION MEN HEED CALL

Hylan and Wallace Spend Sunday Encouraging MacStay's 14,000 Workers.

Ferryboats will be utilized today by food merchants and produce dealers to transport their stocks from lower Manhattan to the Jersey side of the North River and thence back to upper Manhattan. Large quantities of food were unloaded yesterday at the railroad terminals in order to have a supply ready for transportation today. The decision to use the long route from lower Manhattan uptown was taken by the merchants because of the frozen snow in the roadways and the high prices charged by truckmen to transport produce through the streets.

Mayor Hylan is expected to reply today to the request of Edwin J. O'Malley, Commissioner of Food and Markets, who asked the Mayor to assign one of the municipal ferryboats to the task of carrying food from lower Manhattan to the College Point Ferry at East Ninety-ninth Street, whence it may be distributed in Harlem.

The produce merchants will send their goods to Weehawken and Jersey City, and the food will be reloaded on ferryboats bound for Forty-second Street and Twenty-third Street. The food will then be delivered to retailers in various parts of the city.

Commissioner O'Malley reported that tons of perishable food was piled high on piers and freight platforms and that high prices were being offered to truckmen to move it. This situation has caused the prices of food to go up, he said. He added that retailers, taking advantage of conditions, had raised prices as high as "the traffic could bear." He pointed out that the storm had demoralized the food market and that the instability led to profiteering.

Pier 29, according to Mr. O'Malley, is piled full with Florida oranges and Southern vegetables, while miles of freight cars loaded with food are on the Jersey side of the river waiting to enter New York.

Truckmen were reluctant to send out their trucks because of the hard wear, he said, but some truckmen were willing to take chances because of the financial inducements offered. As typical of the prices the truckmen can get to transport food from lower to upper Manhattan, Commissioner O'Malley gave the following figures: Apples, per box, 35 to 50 cents; apples, per barrel, $1; oranges, per box, 50 cents, 20 boxes to a truck; lettuce, per basket, 35 to 50 cents; eggs, 8 to 10 cases for $24.

Expects Food to Fall.

Although the prices quoted added to the high cost of living, Mr. O'Malley said he was confident that when all the food waiting at New York's gates and the potatoes, cabbages and butter that are on the way from Denmark and Holland arrive, a further drop in prices might be expected.

"For the first time in 8 years potatoes came to this country from Denmark recently," he continued. "Potatoes were marked at $9 a barrel and it looked as if they were going up to $10. The Denmark potatoes opened at $5 and this brought the market potatoes down to $6.75.

"Two lots of butter are on the sea now from Denmark and Holland, and are offered at 51½ cents a pound. This is fine high grade creamery butter and ought to sell at about 60 cents a pound to the consumer who now pays 80 to 84 cents. One lot comprises 240,000 pounds and the other lot 112,000 pounds.

"An unlimited quantity of potatoes can be bought in Denmark for $2 for 224 pounds, F. O. B. Denmark. They also have a great deal of cabbage to sell us at low prices. Denmark also has hams that have been prepared by removing the bone before being smoked. They originally were prepared for export to other European countries but the exchange situation caused the owners to look for an American market.

"From the number of calves being put on the market we ought to look for a drop of 2 cents in the price of milk shortly. Increased offering of calves means an increased milk supply."

Twenty Legion Men Out.

The Department of Street Cleaning reported at 6 o'clock last night that so far as its reports showed, 20 members of the American Legion responded during the day to the call to clean the streets. Nineteen men worked in Manhattan, it was said, and one in the Bronx. None were reported by the department in Brooklyn.

At the New York County headquarters of the legion it was said that more legion men than the number reported by the Department of Street Cleaning were at work. No figures were available, it was explained, because there was no system of keeping track of the men from the office of the county organization. Lack of sufficient notice accounted for the small numbers, it was said. Among the posts which were reported as having members at work on the snow were Murray Hill Post, Greenwich Village Post, Manhattan Naval Post, Army Ordnance of Manhattan Post, Washington Heights Post, Belvedere Brooks Post, Riverside Post, and Harlem Post.

The warm rain which fell for several hours early yesterday morning turned ice to slush and water which flowed into the sewers. But when the weather turned cold and the thermometer fell below freezing the slush froze quickly and the ice fighters found it as hard as flint. A high wind and freezing temperature further retarded the work.

The wind attained a velocity of sixty-five miles an hour. It blew from the west most of the day and veered to the north occasionally. The thermometer dropped steadily from 42 at 3 A. M., to 12 at 11 o'clock last night.

The Department of Street Cleaning had 13,500 men at work, including 1,100 patrolmen. Several thousand men were concentrated in the lower west side food district, embraced in the boundaries of the Beach Street police precinct.

Mayor Hylan, Street Cleaning Commissioner Arnold B. MacStay, Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis and Police Captain Charles H. McKinney spent the entire day in this section in an effort to make the roadways passable for vehicles to carry food.

Hylan Swings a Pick.

The Mayor walked about from gang to gang, helping out with a suggestion here and there, swinging a pick or shovel when he thought it desirable "to show how it's done," and beaming encouragement on all sides.

Frequently the Mayor paused in front of a group of emergency laborers and, pointing to the bent backs of the volunteer policemen, he remarked, "Look at those men. Why don't you work as they do?" He was so pleased with the work of the patrolmen that he asked Captain McKinney to see that hot meals were served to them. "They certainly deserved it," the Mayor said. "The services of the policemen are worth a great deal more than the city is paying for."

The Mayor also ordered that coffee and sandwiches be served to all the snow fighters. Captain McKinney got a patrol wagon, loaded it with several forty-quart milk cans of coffee and made a round of the district. Salvation Army women brought large cans of coffee from their headquarters to the workers and served sandwiches.

Deputy Commissioner Wallis acted as pacemaker for the workers in Varick Street from 1 to 4 o'clock. He exchanged his silk hat and fur coat for rough clothes and a pick-ax in the Beach Street Station and started out to dig ice, and found it hard. Mayor Hylan congratulated the Deputy on his public spirit, and joined him in a cup of coffee and a sandwich served from a patrol wagon.

From group to group the Mayor went speaking words of cheer to the ice breakers, fortifying himself occasionally with a cup of coffee. He ate with some of the laborers early in the day at the North River Hotel, Barclay and West Streets, and in the afternoon joined a group at the Northwestern Hotel, Chambers and West Streets.

Mayor's Health Better.

In one of his impromptu talks the Mayor said that the two days he spent in personally visiting the ice movers and getting a glimpse of the snow situation had helped his health considerably.

"I have been sitting at a desk for the last three months," he told the men, "and have been unable to get out into the good fresh air for exercise. My food did not taste good. In the last two days, since I have been out in the snow, I have lost my indigestion. My appetite is immense, and I have never enjoyed meals so much as the ones I took in these restaurants with you boys.

"My mother used to say to me that a good appetite was the best sauce. This work has given such an appetite to me."

One of the men called out: "Three cheers for Mayor Hylan, the best foreman the Street Cleaning Department ever had." The deserted streets of lower Manhattan re-echoed the chorus of cheers.

The Street Cleaning Department had no record of block parties formed in response to the recommendation of the Mayor, who urged citizens to get up snow removal picnics.

Paris Pays 40,000,000 Francs For German Shell Damages

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Forty million francs have been advanced as compensation for damage done in this city by German airplane bombs and shells from the enemy's long-range guns. Injury to property as a result of the explosions of munition plants at Rue Tolbiac and Corneuve was also figured in with the sum advanced.

All except six of the houses damaged by bombardments have been repaired. The pre-war value of property was taken as a basis in the calculation of compensation to be awarded.

UP-STATE DISTRICTS IN GRIP OF BLIZZARD

Worst Storm of the Winter Is Reported, With All Trains Several Hours Late.

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The Northern Adirondacks are in the grip of the worst blizzard of the Winter.

Snow, which has been falling for twelve hours, has been piled into huge drifts by the high winds and tonight streets and highways are almost impassable.

The railroads have been forced to send their big rotary plows over the mountain divisions, but all trains are hours late.

Tonight there is no sign of abatement in the storm, which promises a complete tieup of all traffic by tomorrow.

BUFFALO, Feb. 15.—A cold wave this morning, with heavy snow, turned later in the day into a blizzard, which tonight is stated by the Weather Office to be the worst that ever afflicted this end of the State.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 15.—With three feet of snow on the level, and badly drifted, railway traffic is completely suspended between Buffalo and this city. Trolley lines to Westfield are closed, as are some of the local lines. Erie trains on the main line are hours behind time.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 15.—After a week of thaw and balmy weather, the worst blizzard of the season set in early today, and late tonight showed no signs of abatement. Driven by high west winds, the snow demoralized train and trolley schedules, and blocked country roads in all sections of Central and Northern New York.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The worst blizzard of the year is raging tonight through the Mohawk Valley. Country roads are blocked with snow drifts, preventing delivery of milk to stations for shipment to New York. Trolley service is badly crippled, and only perishable freight is being moved on the steam roads.

N. Y. LIFE MAKES RECORD.

Company's New Insurance Totals $531,000,000 in 1919.

The new business of the New York Life Insurance Company in 1919, as announced in the annual report for last year, was the largest in the company's history, totaling $531,000,000. The total insurance in force at the end of the year was $3,127,000,000. During the year the policy holders received over $115,000,000. The resources of the company on Jan. 1, 1920, were more than $961,000,000, in which were included over $100,000,000 in Liberty bonds and Victory notes. Dividends to be paid to policy holders this year exceed $32,000,000 and the surplus reserve for contingencies and future dividends is over $138,000,000.

The company complains of high taxes—as all business does—but a reason is given why life insurance should not be taxed that does not obtain in any other business, namely, that life insurance is itself a tax, voluntarily imposed by the insured, to prevent burdens from falling upon the State. The company contends that life insurance is not only taxed too much as a business, but also that the proceeds of policies paid to estates are liable to a heavy inheritance tax. Even life policies payable to beneficiaries are exempt from the inheritance tax only to the amount of $40,000, the company points out.

ROOSEVELT, THE BOY, AS SEEN BY SISTER

A LITTLE, SOLEMN DREAMER

Sickly Lad Fought Imaginary Fights with Strange Beasts and Told Jungle Tales.

Little known incidents in the life of her brother, the late Theodore Roosevelt, were told yesterday by Mrs. Douglas Robinson, who was Corinne Roosevelt, in an intimate talk in the West Side Y. M. C. A., 318 West Fifty-seventh Street.

"I want to tell of the little personal things and to speak of my brother as my loving, sunshiny brother and not as the statesman," she said as she delved into memories of hours in the little house in West Twentieth Street where Roosevelt's boyhood was spent. One recollection that stood out through the haze of time was of "a little, solemn boy, then about 6 years old, who would gravely survey visitors to our home and, if he was favorably impressed, would audibly suggest that the favored ones be invited to sit in the 'castle' chair," a great, carved chair which the Roosevelt children, influenced by Theodore, fancied, from its very size, must have come from some queer old castle.

Mrs. Robinson described the poor health of her brother. "He was puny and pale and seldom well," she said, and told how he came to make his "first conquest." Theodore was 9, and his father, worried by his son's failure to grow robust, built a porch room—open to the air and fitted with exercise apparatus—for him.

"'My boy,' my father said to Theodore, 'you've the brains, but without a strong body that brain can't do anything. Here are the tools; now will you build yourself?'

"My brother looked at the room, and that determined look came into his eyes, that look which evil politicians came to know later, and he said: 'I will make my body.'"

A Slow Process.

It was a long, slow process, however, said Mrs. Robinson, and there were many days when Theodore could not leave his bed. At such times the other children would gather around the bed and Theodore would tell long stories about jungles and hold mighty and imaginary fights with strange beasts, "and there was always a small boy in the stories—I suspect it was Theodore himself—who understood the language of the animals and would translate their opinions of cakes and the like to us."

Forests and jungles and beasts, these were the things that interested the sick boy most, said Mrs. Robinson, and on days when he was able to be about the house he carried under one arm Stanley's book on Africa and under the other Woods's Natural History. One day in the book on nature Theodore discovered an explanatory note which, as it dealt with a subject that preceded it, was headed "The Foregoing Ants." That was enough for Theodore, for the young man who later was to find the River of Doubt. Never in all his valiant researches in Woods had he ever come across the "Foregoing" species of ants.

It was a discovery! He must share it with the household. So he carefully wrote an "essay" on this particular kind of an ant and invited everybody, "from the cook to dad and mother" up to his room at 4:30 o'clock the next afternoon. Theodore read his essay with a great deal of excitement, and everybody agreed—they told him so—that it was a most remarkable discovery. But, as Mrs. Robinson pointed out, the father and mother did laugh a great deal out in the hall later on.

His First Speech.

Steadily "making his body," Theodore Roosevelt came to 18 years old stronger and already with that vibrance that marked the man as he is recalled today. At 22 years of age, he entered the Assembly and shortly afterward he was invited to New York to make his first speech in his native city.

"It was his first speech and as his last message was on Americanism, so was his first. He was invited to speak before the Nineteenth Century Club. Oh, it was a high-brow club, it was so clever—well, the editor of The Evening Post was President of it, so you can see just how clever it was. The speaker of the night was allowed so long for his talk. Then a member of the club was designated to rebut the speaker's remarks. The club member was allowed fifteen minutes and then the speaker was allotted ten minutes to rebut the rebutal.

"Well, Theodore spoke on Americanism. The applause was piteous. I dislike the club, the building and everything, for I didn't think they gave my brother the right treatment. Then Dr. St. Clair McKelway, a very brilliant and witty speaker, got up and he just floored my brother. He referred scathingly to young men and their fondness for 'isms,' and the applause was terrific. I was anxious, but I saw my brother, that smile of his on his face, arise and I guessed he had thought of something.

"'I don't want ten minutes, Mr. Chairman,' he said, 'I don't want five minutes. I just want to ask a question. Mr. Chairman, if all 'isms' are fads and must be wiped out—how about patriotism?'"

Theodore Roosevelt won right there, said his sister, and "there was a smile on the face of the tiger."

Over or Through an Obstacle.

Referring to his later life, the days at Oyster Bay, Mrs. Robinson told of the walks on which he used to lead the children of the Roosevelt families during Sunday afternoons. There was one rule governing these tramps, she said, "these obstacle walks, and that was this: Straight through or over, never around, an obstacle." It was over fences, walls, through hedges and up hills. When one of the small pedestrians lagged, the Colonel would turn and say—"don't flinch, don't foul—come on, hit the line hard!"

Drawing to a close, Mrs. Robinson came to February, 1918, when the Colonel lay in Roosevelt Hospital and the doctors said he had twenty-four hours to live. Mrs. Robinson told how she waited in an ante-room, until the Colonel called for her. The doctors said death was a matter of time, she said, and the Colonel's four sons were fighting abroad. She went to the bedside and, leaning over, placed her ear close to his mouth.

"'Puss,' he said, 'I am glad that it is not one of my boys, for they can die for their country.'"

Hailstorm at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 15.—Windows, skylights and hothouses were shattered today by a barrage of hail that accompanied a sharp thunder and lightning storm which continued for half an hour. The damage was not very serious but the thrill came with the claps of thunder rolling over the resort at this unusual season.

Opposition to Senator Wadsworth As Convention Delegate Is Waning

Opposition to the selection of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., as a delegate at large to the Republican National Convention at Chicago is expected to disappear when the unofficial State Convention meets at Carnegie Hall on Thursday to select the delegates. Senator Wadsworth's recent statement that he would not "lift a finger" to oppose the Woman Suffrage Amendment has reconciled many of his former women opponents in the Republican organization to his side, while his stand in favor of giving prohibition a "chance to work itself out" has called off opposition in "dry" quarters.

Former Senator William M. Bennett, who has fought Senator Wadsworth in the past, declared yesterday he would not oppose the latter either for delegate at large or at the primaries for a renomination to the Senate.

Friends of Miss Mary Garrett Hay, who has been an implacable opponent of Mr. Wadsworth, said she had no intention of opposing his selection as one of the "Big Four" delegates to go to Chicago from this State. Senator Wadsworth's supporters are all prepared, however, to make a fight on Miss Hay should she declare hostilities. It was reported that they have selected Mrs. Florence C. Knapp, of Syracuse, a member of the Republican Executive Committee, to make a fight against Miss Hay in the event she attacks Senator Wadsworth in the convention and seeks to be selected herself as one of the delegates at large.

The present line-up is for United States Senators Wadsworth and Calder, Elihu Root and William Boyce Thompson. Either Mr. Root or Mr. Thompson will have to step aside if a woman is selected, Republican leaders said yesterday, but they would not speculate as to which of the two men would be eliminated.

Preparations for the testimonial dinner to Senator Wadsworth, which is intended to harmonize former antagonists in the suffrage movement, were completed last night with the announcement that 1,200 reservations had been applied for and that nearly all the delegates to the unofficial Republican State Convention would be present. The dinner will follow the first session of the convention, on Thursday, at the Astor.

The speakers will include ex-State Senator Ogden L. Mills, toastmaster; James R. Sheffield, U. S. Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, Nathan L. Miller of Syracuse, former Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, and Miss Mary Wood. Additional members of the dinner committee are Miss Laura A. Skinner, Mrs. Stanley L. Otis, Mrs. John T. Pratt, Mrs. John F. Yawger, Mrs. Albert H. Gleason, Mrs. Dexter Rumsey and William L. Ward.

OSCAR II. STRANDED 3 HOURS BY GALE

GERMANS FEAR RED RAID

Returning Steel Importer Predicts Army Will Rout Bolsheviki After Invasion.

When the Scandinavian-American liner Oscar II., with 400 passengers from Copenhagen and Christiania, was nearing the western end of the Ambrose Channel at 10 A. M. yesterday something went wrong with the telamotor steering gear and she refused to answer her helm, causing the vessel to go aground in the mud on the east bank of the waterway. The liner remained fast until 1:30 P. M., when she was hauled off at high water by three tugs and proceeded to her pier at the foot of Seventeenth Street, Hoboken. Captain Axel Schmidt, the commander, said the northwest gale had blown the water out of the Ambrose Channel and the Oscar II. had only twenty-three feet under her keel at the time, which was partly the cause of the vessel not answering her helm. The Oscar II. only rested her bow lightly on the mud, he added, and no damage was done to the hull or the steering gear.

Captain Schmidt is making his first voyage in command of the Oscar II. after being chief officer of the ship for twelve years.

John H. Brewster, a steel importer, of 30 East Forty-second Street, returned on the liner after spending a month in Germany with millions of dollars to invest in contracts, but was unable to place any because of the unsettled labor conditions in that country.

"German business men," he said, "informed me that they could not make any foreign contracts because the laboring men will only engage for three weeks ahead at 30 marks a day owing to the constant fluctuation of the mark and the increase in the cost of living. Germany generally is waiting to see what the Interallied Commission intends to do with her before the Government decides upon any definite financial policy. If she is to be strangled and every mark taken from the nation by the Interallied Commission then Germany will go to pieces, the business men and financiers told me, and the Bolsheviki will walk in as they did in Hungary and give the whole of Europe nervous prostration for a few months. After the nations have been frightened sufficiently, the army officers say they will rally the army in Germany and proceed to remove the Bolsheviki from the face of the earth. The German Bankers' Association has decided, with the sanction of the Government, that in order to prevent being flooded with millions of paper marks which have been bought cheap and held for a rise in Sweden, Norway, Denmark and other neutral countries, they will call them all in and give bonds in exchange, which will be taken up as Germany recovers her position financially.

Nathan Chabraw, an American of Polish birth, was placed on the Oscar II. at Christiania by the United States Consul at the request of the Norwegian Government, which considered him to be an undesirable alien in their country. He will be examined today by the immigration authorities.

The Fabre liner Patria with 1,587 passengers from Marseilles and Naples arrived in Quarantine yesterday morning with several cases of smallpox in the steerage.

The United States transport Kilpatrick arrived from Antwerp yesterday with forty-two passengers, of whom sixteen were United States Army officers.

CUMMINGS APPOINTS WOMEN

Eleven Are Named on the Democratic Executive Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Appointment of eleven women as members of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee was announced today by Chairman Homer S. Cummings.

Six additional women members will be appointed soon to make the woman membership correspond to that of the men.

Those appointed were: Miss Elizabeth Marbury, New York; Miss Caroline Ruuts-Rees, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Kellog Fairbanks, Chicago; Mrs. Stiles W. Burr, St. Paul; Mrs. Helen Grenfell, Denver; Mrs. Overton G. Ellis, Tacoma; Mrs. John B. Castleman, Louisville; Mrs. Tittie Huffner Jacobs, Birmingham; Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C.; Mrs. John K. Ottley, Atlanta; and Mrs. Beverley B. Mulford, Richmond, Va.

JOHNSON DEMANDS CUT IN LIVING COST

WILL FIGHT IN DISTRICTS

W. M. Bennett to Start Contest for Delegates After Unofficial Republican Convention.

An outline of part of the platform of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, on which he bases his candidacy for the nomination for President, was announced yesterday at his campaign headquarters here. The planks, it was said, may be subject to refitting to meet circumstances, but in the main they put forth the doctrine that there must be no "entangling alliances" with foreign countries, warn against a repetition of the Progressive Party split in 1912, suggest that the first step in reducing high cost of living and taxes should begin with the abolishment of "250,000 useless war jobs," and declare that the country should follow the example of California and develop agricultural production. The platform reads in part:

"He is the man who has stood between this country and the entangling alliances of Europe. He stands for the doctrine that, now that hostilities have ceased, it is time that the Government cease enforcing war regulations. He stands for the doctrine that the way to solve the question of the high cost of living is to increase production, reduce taxation and abolish the 250,000 useless jobs created at Washington during the war.

"Senator Johnson comes from a State where the people are devoting their entire energies to the one thing which will decrease the high cost of living, namely, increasing production. Here in the East all of the solutions suggested for reducing the high cost of living are based on the idea of regulating and restricting and interfering with business and reducing production.

Record in Agriculture.

"He represents the State of California, where devotion to the idea of increased agricultural production has been encouraged to the limit. It is a State that produces eleven crops of alfalfa a year; whose land is so intensively cultivated that it sells for $1,000 to $10,000 an acre in the agricultural districts; which produced Luther Burbank, who has devoted his life to helping to increase production. Under Hiram Johnson's administration as Governor of the State agriculture has been fostered while in the State of New York the Department of Agriculture has practically been abolished by making it a minor bureau in an entirely dissimilar department.

"Senator Johnson's administration has been sane, safe and sound. As a candidate for the Presidency he can win the election, and the time has come for the Republicans to take to heart the disastrous experiments of 1912 and 1916, and nominate a man who can win."

William M. Bennett, ex-State Senator, who is managing the New York part of the Johnson campaign, has given up hope of getting approval from the unofficial Republican State Convention, which meets at Carnegie Hall on Thursday and Friday, of his candidacy for delegate at large to the Republican National Convention, but he will seek it at the primaries.

"The petition designating me as a candidate for delegate at large was completed on Saturday night," said Mr. Bennett. "Twice the number of signatures required by law have been obtained and the petition will be filed on March 2, which is the first day on which the Secretary of State's office will open for the receipt of nominating petitions."

Mr. Bennett declared that soon after the adjournment of the unofficial convention, candidates would be put forth in several Congress districts for district delegates and alternates, to be backed by "a straight-out Johnson-for-President fight, without indulging in personalties," and that it was expected to elect every candidate pu for delegate.

"Manager McSween and myself expect to request sixty-three district leaders in New York City to open their clubhouses and permit us to address the members at their club meetings in behalf of Senator Johnson," Mr. Bennett announced. "We also expect to carry the effort into the State campaign." Mr. Bennett said reports from all sources indicated that political sentiment here had narrowed down to Senator Johnson and Major Gen. Leonard Wood, with Johnson gaining and Wood losing some support. Mr. Bennett said there was no sentiment for Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in any of the districts canvassed by the Johnson managers.

Judge John R. Davies, executive head of the Butler Campaign Committee, disagreed with the report of the Johnson men and asserted that the President of Columbia University was not only rapidly increasing his support here but was growing stronger daily in the nationwide movement for his nomination. Judge Davies said very encouraging reports had come from the West regarding Dr. Butler's candidacy.

OUSTED SOCIALISTS ASSAIL PROSECUTION

DEFENSE OPENS TOMORROW

Hillquit Expects to Present Their Case—Hopes to Prove Party Is Rid of Extremists.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—Denial that there is anything in the record of the investigation by the Assembly Judiciary Committee of the five suspended New York Socialist members of the State Assembly to show that the Socialists sought to effect the realization of their doctrines through force or violence is made by the suspended men through a statement issued here tonight by Assemblymen Louis Waldman and Charles Solomon.

"All of the evidence has been put in by the prosecution," says the statement, "and their brief which is to be the final word on the question has been submitted. Now it is noteworthy that not a single witness who has appeared for Sweet has stated that his testimony was known to any one prior to Jan. 7, 1920.

"Whatever may be the weight of this evidence submitted against us by these witnesses it is not uncontrovertible that Speaker Sweet and his associates were not in possession of this evidence before our suspension. There is also nothing in the record to show that the Socialists sought to effect the realization of their doctrines through force or violence.

The Socialists claim that the "prosecution" failed to go through with their program as originally outlined in the resolution suspending the Socialists, which stated that they belonged to a party which obstructed the war and the production of munitions for the purpose of war. They contend that the elimination of this testimony was "because they obviously had no evidence."

Assails Former Speaker Brown.

The Socialists' statement also condemns former Senator Elon R. Brown, who, it is understood, wrote the brief summarizing the evidence adduced by the State. The brief, they say, "is what might be expected from one whose professional and political career has been given over substantially to the service of vested interests."

"He presumed to browbeat the members of the Assembly by characterizing their possible votes against Sweet as disloyal. This is unlawyerlike and un-American," the statement continues. "His conception of loyalty is not the one held by the great masses of the people of this State."

"We know Mr. Brown's standards of loyalty are highly acceptable to the profiteers of men, women and children. We know that in his eyes any one insisting upon human rights and traditional American liberties would be disloyal.

"Who ever heard of a lawyer coming into a case and saying to the court, 'If you do not sustain my side you are disloyal.' This is a clear confession that they have no case upon the merits. They began with wholesale slander and misrepresentation of the five Assemblymen, and wind up by attempting to bulldoze the 145 members of the Assembly who are to be the judges in this case."

Preparations were being made tonight for the resumption of the investigation Tuesday morning, when the Socialists are expected to really begin their defense by putting on the witness stand Assemblymen Solomon and Waldman.

Morris Hillquit, chief of the Socialist counsel, who was obliged to retire temporarily from the case because of his ill-health, is expected back Tuesday.

Defense Opens Tomorrow.

ALBANY, Feb. 5 (Associated Press).—When the Assembly Judiciary Committee resumes on Tuesday its hearings in the investigation of the five suspended Socialist members of the Lower House on charges of disloyalty, it is expected that Morris Hillquit or Seymour Stedman of counsel for the unseated Assemblymen, will make a formal opening for the defense.

Before the Judiciary Committee sits, however, it will meet in executive session, probably on Tuesday morning, called at the suggestion of Assemblyman William W. Pellet, Republican, of New York, one of the members. Mr. Pellet proposed to the committee dismissal of all charges against the suspended Assemblymen on the ground of insufficient evidence. Chairman Martin said that no formal motion was made by Mr. Pellet and that no vote was taken. The proposal, Mr. Martin said, was tabled until Tuesday.

A score or more witnesses will be called by the defense, including the five suspended Assemblymen. "True conditions in Russia" will be brought out by the defense, counsel has said, while Mr. Hillquit is expected to take the stand and qualify as an expert on Socialism. Evidence, it is reported, also is to be introduced to show that the Socialist Party has within the last year rid itself of radical elements, and that the facts and utterances of these factions are being charged against the defense.

Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, who initiated the ouster movement, may be called as a witness by the defense. While none of the counsel for the defense has admitted that the speaker would be subpoenaed, it has been reported such action would be taken, and the defense has not denied it.

It is expected the investigation will continue two more weeks at least. The defense, through Seymour Stedman, has announced it will require four full days to complete its case. Some members of the Judiciary Committee are known to oppose sitting on Fridays.

EULOGIZE SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Mrs. Charlotte P. Gilman Addresses Meeting in Honor of Her Centenary.

Happy in the belief that the woman suffrage amendment will soon be ratified, one hundred suffragists observed the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony yesterday by a memorial meeting in the Metropolitan Mesum of Art before the one bust of the pioneer suffrage leader in existence. Among those present were not only the suffrage workers of the present generation, but women who had been associated with Miss Anthony in suffrage work for many years.

Miss Lucy Branham, of Baltimore placed a wreath on the pedestal upon which the bust stands. Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Miss Anthony's biographer, gave a short eulogy.

"We are here to give expression to our love," said Mrs. Gilman. "Miss Anthony's work for woman suffrage was at a time when that work meant the sacrifice of all else in life. She cheerfully paid the price. Here in her native State we gather to commemorate her centenary."

Mrs. John Rogers read extracts from Miss Anthony's speeches and writings, showing that the latter had not only been an advocate of woman suffrage but had been a leader in the general feminist movement. Mrs. Ida Husted Harper introduced Mrs. Adelaide Johnson, sculptor of the bust, and Mrs. M. W. Ferris, who gave it to the Museum.

CARDINAL LOGUE MOURNS FOR IRELAND

In Lenten Pastoral, Primate Says Calamities Are Greater Than in Living Memory.

CRITICISES BOTH SIDES

Drastic Repression by England Is Met by Unjustifiable Crime—It Cannot Last, He Says.

BELFAST, Feb. 15 (Associated Press).—Cardinal Logue, in his Lenten pastoral to the Archdiocese of Armagh, says:

"Not within living memory can we find in Ireland such calamitous conditions as exist at present—drastic repression on one side and retaliation on the other, a military régime rivalling in severity even that of countries under the most pitiless autocratic government, vindictive sentences out of all proportion to aleged transgressions, letters cachet for arbitrary arrests more frequent than in pre-revolutionary France, deportations such as raised a wild cry of reprobation against Germany when it was in military occupation of Belgium.

"These and similar acts of power cannot fail to create exasperation, recklessness, despair and general disorder.

"On the other side there is retaliation, lawlessness and crime such as any man guided by God's law must regret and reprobate. Crime can never aid us in the assertion of our rights. On the contrary we find it our greatest obstacle. It alienates sympathy, creates prejudice, mars the fair fame of our country, discourages our friends and strengthens the hands of our enemies, and furnishes still greater oppression and tends to justify the wrongs we suffer from.

"However we may suffer for the present, we may console ourselves by the conviction that this state of things cannot last. It cannot stand in the light of public opinion. Force cannot be a substitute for good government. It has failed more than once, even in the memory of the present generation, involving in its failure the political doom of its advocates.

"If the prediction of General Smuts is not to be verified, England shall sooner or later find it to her interest to commit hte destinies of this country to some enlightened statesman who will rely more on justice and good government than on political strategy."

Lieut.-Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of South Africa, a former member of the British War Council and of the British Peace Delegation, in a farewell message issued at London last July prior to his return to South Africa, said that the most pressing of all the questions concerning the British Empire and the dominions was the Irish question.

"It has become a chronic wound," he declared, "whose septic effects are spreading through our whole system, and through its influence in America is beginning to poison our most vital foreign relations.

"Unless it is settled on the great principles which form the basis of this Empire, this Empire must cease to exist.

"Our statesmen in Paris dealt with racial problems resembling that of Ireland, and in every way as difficult as the Irish problem, and they may not shirk from applying to Ireland the same medicine they applied to Bohemia and many another part of Europe."

DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—A train conveying a military guard and arms was held up outside of Dublin Friday night by a large band of armed men, who shot and seriously wounded a signalman and threw bombs into the train, wounding a corporal and doing much damage. The guard did not reply to the fire, owing to the darkness.

The wife of a farmer at Ballagh, County Wexford, resisting masked armed raiders, was shot dead.

BELFAST, Feb. 15.—A large body of Sinn Feiners attacked the police barracks at Bellatrain, County Monaghan, today, employing explosives. The Sinn Feiners overcame the small garrison, four of whom were wounded, and then removed the arms and ammunition. This is the first attack on barracks in Ulster.

CORK, Feb. 15.—A well-known veterinery surgeon, Dr. McSweeney, was shot and wounded by a party of armed raiders in his residence last night. McSweeney mortally wounded one of the raiders.

ROOT, 75, CELEBRATES AT DR. BUTLER'S HOME

Political Leaders and Others of National Prominence Attend Informal Dinner.

Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, who celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday yesterday, was entertained last evening by Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University at an informal dinner at his home, 60 Morningside Drive, which was attended by a group of Mr. Root's personal, professional and political friends.

Senator Warren G. Harding, Senator Frederick Hale of Maine and Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, all of whom were invited to be present, were prevented by public engagements elsewhere, but sent messages testifying to their admiration of Mr. Root's public service. Mr. Hays, from his home in Sullivan, Ind., telegraphed as follows:

"Regret deeply impossibility reaching New York tonight. I congratulate you and the others on the privilege which is your on being with Senator Root on this occasion. I congratulate him on this day and on the career of greatest usefulness and unexcelled honor which is his, and I congratulate the country on Elihu Root, its first citizen, who has done so much to reflect glory on the nation and preserve the ideals making for the real welfare of the people. My best wishes to all there."

Among those present were: Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Charles R. Miller, Henry S. Pritchett, James R. Sheffield, William D. Guth[illegible], Charles D. Hilles, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Henry W. Taft, William Barnes, Charles H. Sherrill, Herbert Parsons, Republican National Committeeman; Dwight W. Morrow, Job E. Hedges, Charles D. Norton, and Prince Cantacuzene, whose wife is the granddaughter of President Grant.

There were no formal speeches. Dr. Butler spoke briefly of the love and high regard of those present for Mr. Root, and the latter made an informal response.

RAIL UNIONS START LIVING COST FIGHT

Hold Government Has Not 'Held Together' in Its Drives on the Profiteers.

WILL ASK CONGRESS TO ACT

Officials Would Appease Workers Who Do Not Approve Entirely of Wilson's Proposition.

TO BACK POLITICAL DRIVE

Brotherhoods Want Wage Revision to Place Trainmen on a Par with Other Trades.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Formulation of a definite program as a basis on which to continue its campaign against high living costs has been initiated by railroad labor, it was disclosed tonight by union officials. While the wage demands of the 2,000,000 railroad workers, which have held official attention since Feb. 3, will be held in temporary abeyance at the request of the President, there is no disposition on the part of union leaders to regard their work as complete or to await a final decision on the whole wage controversy to be given by the general conference of union committeemen to be held here Feb. 23.

The attitude of the union officials, while they expressed gratification at the recognition of certain of their principles by President Wilson, is predicated on an apparently general belief among their membership that the Government has "not held together in any of its drives on the high cost of living spectre." Much criticism was directed at Congress and the heads of executive departments during the recent wage negotiations, leaders said.

The general feeling of railroad labor was expressed in this question, asked by a union official who has carried its grievances through the entire negotiations:

"Are we, as Americans, to admit that we cannot control the profiteer?"

The program under consideration will in no way run counter to the plan of the American Federation of Labor, which has announced its intention of engaging aggressively in the coming political campaign. With this railroad union leaders said they were in complete accord. They propose, however, an amplification of and an addition to the policies outlined by Samuel Gompers, Federation President, with the purpose of "benefiting all of the people while helping labor."

Plan Recommendations to Congress.

There was no indication of the exact form which the program will take. It can be stated, however, that it will contain recommendations to Congress, which all of organized labor will be counted on to support. Union heads said they desired to have their ideas worked out comprehensively for submission to the general conference next week.

Intimation was also given that a plea was to be made to the more determined of the railroad union members who have relentlessly demanded "action and relief." Some of the conservative leaders seem to feel that the President's proposition to create a wage commission of wage experts and then, either by his own action or by law, to constitute a wage tribunal for dealing with the union claims, might not entirely meet approval of their membership. The program they have taken up, therefore, would fortify the union heads against the pressing of demands which some declared would be unwise at this time.

B. F. Jewell, Acting President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, expressed satisfaction today with the progress made thus far. He said he believed the unions' membership would acquiesce in the request of their representatives here to await developments. Local leaders have been assured that they would be made acquainted with all details of the negotiations and have been urged to await the receipt of the correspondence between the union officials and Director General Hines and the President.

Want a Final Solution.

Reference was made today to the statement of the union heads, supplementing their reply to Mr. Wilson, in that it had set forth an indication of what the unions would accept as a minimum. This statement, taken with the reply to the President, was interpreted by leaders themselves as portending the exertion of union power more than has hitherto been known in its demands for a "final and definite" solution of the problems arising from the wage claims. Officials declared that whatever decision is reached must include a revision of the present relationship of railroad labor wages to that of other industries. Without that change—which means an increase in pay, they said—railroad labor will not be entirely satisfied, it was declared.

Various elements in the railroad unions tried throughout the war to force a revision, but the leaders said they stayed their demands because "we wanted to keep ourselves out of the class of profiteers, we wanted to be free to say we did not take advantage of our Government." Leaders are now said to feel that the emergency has passed and that therefore they are prepared to combine in a campaign against living costs, to demand higher wages, and to request the establishment of a policy which will place all labor on an equal plane with other trades in order to "bring industrial peace."

All union officials who are to attend the general conference here have been asked to study the principles outlined in the letter to the President with the thought that if additions should be made they would be prepared to submit them without delay. The leaders hope to make the general discussion brief and lay their case before the country before the roads are restored to the owners March 1.

LEE WILL NOT CALL A STRIKE.

President of Trainmen Denies That He Will Act Independently.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15.—W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, returned here today from Washington, accompanied by several Grand Lodge officers. Referring to last week's meeting in Washington, Mr. Lee said he would lead no independent strike of the trainmen.

"I told the Executive Committee of sixteen and the other five Grand Lodge officers that I had spent a quarter of a century building up the organization and that I would not jeopardize its existence now," Mr. Lee said. "Our brotherhood has won the confidence of labor, business and the public by careful and conservative policies, and for the sake of the few militants in the organization we will not sacrifice it all in an impossible attempt."

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Growth of Depression Over Business Outlook Halted by Rise of Stocks.

The recovery which occurred in the stock, commodity, and foreign exchange markets toward the end of last week was welcomed by many persons who had no personal interest in the course of prices. The fall of stocks and the exchanges had been so swift and so completely lacking in supporting influences that apprehension began to grow here and there lest a business collapse loom up as a possibility. The influence of Wall Street's gloom began to reach further and further into the interior of the country, a reflection of the situation being found in the persistent liquidation of securities from Western and Middle Western and Southern cities. Dispatches from European centres of finance and trade worked to heighten the uncertainty of business men on this side in regard to the outlook, for it was evident that the slump of exchange rates was proving highly disturbing in quarters where American producers hope to market much of their surplus goods. At the same time the low position of sterling and franc quotations was stimulating sales of American securities at New York, aiding in pressing prices lower. Happily, the end of the week was quite different from the beginning. If the liquidation of European holdings of our stocks and bonds really was as extensive as reported, the subsequent purchase of exchange in process of remitting the proceeds to the sellers helped to lift sterling rates to a degree. Buying of the sort supplemented the larger influence of sane reaction from a rather hysterical position brought about the week before when London exchange was driven down from 3.49¼ to 3.19. Undoubtedly short selling, originating on both sides of the water, played an important part in that extraordinary decline, and once sentiment grew better the short account was rapidly reduced. When the foolish thought of a lengthy embargo of cotton imports into England was dissipated by a little sound cogitation of the matter, cotton quotations rose with vigor. The Chicago markets began to realize early in the week that even though events in many fields seemed to forecast a letdown in the rapid business pace and a slackening of exports, there was not going to be any destructive processes nor any slashing stroke at shipments abroad. In other words, common sense succeeded a panicky state of mind, with followers of the stock market apparently somewhat slower than those of the other markets in catching their equilibrium. Neither in the decline nor in the recovery were sufficient facts developed to show whether the liquidating movement had spent its force. It was enough that the markets got back their balance, converting a headlong retreat into a rally which should permit calmer estimates of business and trade prospects than were possible before, with gradual instead of quick readjustments of quotations to conditions.

At the week's lowest point, the average quotation of railroad and industrial stocks stood about 15½ points below their highest level of the year, established Jan. 5. The average price decline from the maximum of 1919 was more than 24 points. When it is considered that some of the more speculative issues have fallen much further than the average decline since the first week of November last year, it is evident that the market has been subjected to severe liquidation. One may take the balance sheet of the Steel Corporation, the United States Rubber Company, Baldwin Locomotive, and many other corporations, and prepare calculations showing that assets and earning power justify higher prices than those now current. The prices being paid for crude and refined petroleum products may be used to supplement property accounts of oil concerns to show that the stocks of many of them ought, on values, to be considerably higher than they are. It is not necessary to state that the rank and file of manufacturing companies are stronger in facilities, in working capital and reserves than they were before war business brought prosperity. These matters are evident, or may be made so by reference to the proper statistics, but it happens that market phenomena are not shaped altogether by figures and facts. On the contrary, it frequently is the case that figures, good or bad, play a part secondary to that intangible something called sentiment, and this is what primarily affected stocks both in the recent decline and last week's late recovery.

More than likely many Wall Street observers of the year's decline of stocks, also corporation and Government bonds, would challenge the suggestion that the movement reflected a change of sentiment over the business future; at least, this factor would be put secondary. By them the tightness of credit and the cold visage Federal Reserve Bank officials turn to speculation are considered as the leading forces in causing holders of stocks to sell out. So long as time money lends at rates fluctuating between 8 and 10 per cent., say they, and call money carries the threat of being scarce at 14 per cent. or higher, there is nothing else for holders of stocks on margin to do except lighten their loads. It must be admitted that a great deal of force lies behind this opinion, and all signs point toward the persistent influence of high costs of money and credit against an extended speculative campaign for some time to come. Until the Federal Reserve system begins to show real improvement in its combined ratio of reserve to deposit and note liabilities—which it has not been able to do in six weeks of effort to improve its position—it is difficult to see how any genuine ease of fixed-period loans will occur. It is to be noted, however, that call money so far exceeded last week's demand in the stock market that the rate moved downward from 14 per cent. to 6 per cent., which may or may not have been a forerunner of an adequate supply of this form of accommodation for moderate operations in stocks. A decline of call money quotations is wont to cheer the casual trader, but his broker wants to see free time money before he can grow enthusiastic over the credit situation.

In the absence of copies of the conference report on railway legislation local bankers and railroad managers have been chary of comment on the bill. Considerable encouragement was drawn last week, nevertheless, from news from Washington that the bill would be reported out in a few days and would probably be pushed in both houses of Congress, to the end that the carriers might be returned to their owners on March 1 with reasonable measures provided for their operation. The point of chief interest for which the public waits is the method of calculating the investment or property account of the several roads upon which a return of 5½ per cent. is to be made through adequate rates. Security owners would find it a comparatively simple matter to learn how much their road would earn if it were known that the book value, calculated by railroad accountants, was to be the basis of figuring the return, but at the end of last week information had not become available on this point.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA OIL FIELDS

Southern California now has the following nine oil fields, all showing a great deal of activity: Ventura, Los Angeles, Salt Lake, Montebello, Whitier, Fullerton, Coyote Hills, Newhall, and the Placentia-Richfield. The Montebello field, famous a year ago and still the scene of a great deal of development work, shows about 25 wells drilling and 75 wells producing, the daily output being close to 40,000 barrels.

California oil operators, however, have had to curb the big development plans formulated early in the year, owing to the steel strike and difficulty in securing supplies and drilling materials.

BANKER SAYS WORK TO REDUCE PRICES

W. A. Law Certain a 56-Hour Week Until 1923 Would Force Them Down.

A HINT TO ORGANIZED LABOR

Further "Heavy Personal Sacrifices for the General Good" Forecast by Financier.

"While the strain of the war period is over, the situation, though different, demands constant study and care on the part of those engaged in banking and general business," says William A. Law, President of the First National Bank of Philadelphia and former President of the American Bankers' Association. "The people of America may yet be called upon to make heavy personal sacrifices for the general good, just as they were during 1917 and 1918.

"This nation never faced more complicated problems in business and finance than those confronting the American people today," Mr. Law continues. "Important changes are imminent, and there are definite indications that the process of deflation has set in and that the country is headed towards other things than record commodity prices, furious speculative activity and easy money rates. This does not mean that we are approaching a severe financial disturbance. The chances of that, fortunately, have been materially lessened by the action of the Federal Reserve banks in advancing rediscount rates to 6 per cent. That has done more than anything else to make the country appreciate the complications that have grown out of a 68 per cent. inflation of our currency since the war began and the expanded loans reported by the thirty thousand national and State banks of the United States.

Proposes a 56-Hour Week.

"So long as men spend more than they produce, the cost of living will not only stay high, but it will go higher. Were it possible to get organized labor to consent to a fifty-six-hour week until 1923, with proportionate additional compensation, production would so increase as to force a general lowering of prices. This supports Charles M. Schwab's contention that the 'only way to reduce the high cost of living is to get together and get to work.'

"Good, old-fashioned work and plenty of it would do more than anything else to increase our national wealth and put us in the front rank of producing nations at the very time when 100 per cent. efficiency would yield richer rewards than ever before in the world's history. No man ever became a captain of industry working only eight hours a day and looking constantly at the clock.

"Some economists see more lower commodity prices by next Autumn, but empty shelves in this country and restoration of the war-wrecked industries abroad present an argument to the contrary. A veritable famine exists in some branches of merchandise, and many manufacturers can testify to the increased difficulty of obtaining an adequate supply of raw materials. The situation calls for intelligent handling, however, as conditions differ in different industries. In several instances, to my knowledge, manufacturers have had to purchase plants, factories, and install enormously expensive equipment so as to insure themselves a sufficient supply of raw material and semi-finished products which they could not be sure of obtaining from the usual channels within six months, one year, or at all.

Heavy Demand for Manufactures.

"This situation reflects an altogether extraordinary potential demand for certain classes of manufactured goods which must be reckoned with in considering the probable developments of this most unusual year. It adds an unknown quantity of immense importance in dealing with the requirements of both domestic and foreign purchasers, and shows how different the problems of 1920 are likely to be from those of 1907, another year when commodity speculation was an immensely important factor in the financial situation.

"The steady advance in the premium of the American dollar over sterling, franc, lira and mark exchange has reached an unprecedented figure. It has caused the most serious complications in the foreign exchange market and if continued uninterruptedly will result in utter demoralization of our foreign trade. When London exchange sells at a depreciation of more than 31 per cent. from the normal par of exchange, and when gold bullion at London commands a premium of 42 per cent. above the Mint price it becomes a very serious problem how to continue to do business with Great Britain. India has been getting the Transvaal gold which British bankers last September, at the time that export restrictions were removed, thought would flow to the United States, and thus assist in the rehabilitation of the sterling quotation here. It is obvious that in a situation where the price of British exchange can depreciate 10 per cent. within three days—the total decline being much the most severe in history—it becomes well-nigh impossible for the producers and manufacturers of the United States to do business with Great Britain. The same is true of all Europe, for the depreciation in Continental exchange has put dollar credits beyond the reach of almost every foreign purchaser of American supplies."

EX-GERMAN SHIP HELD UP.

Argentina Postpones Voyage of Vessel Whose Purchase Allies Control.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 14.—The sailing of the former German steamship Bahia Blanca for New York, scheduled for Sunday, has been indefinitely postponed.

It is reported that the Foreign Office has received word that the new British Minister to Argentina, James W. R. Macleay, who is now on the way to Buenos Aires, is bringing a communication concernng the attitude of the Allies toward the status of the steamer, whose purchase by Argentina during the war has never been recognized, the question being submitted to the Reparations Commission of the Peace Conference for decision. At any rate, it is known positively that the sailing of the Bahia Blanca has been held up for reasons connected with the arrival of the British Minister, who is due early next week.

The Bahia Blanca has a cargo consigned to ten North American concerns, who are said to have notified the shippers that they are willing to assume the risk of possible capture of the vessel by a British or French warship. It is learned that local insurance companies have demanded a 10 per cent. premium for insurance against its capture.

It was admitted at the Foreign Office today that Mr. Macleay was expected to bring a communication regarding the British or Allied viewpoint respecting the Bahia Blanca, which it was indicated, the Foreign Minister would be willing to examine. The Foreign Office professed to be unaware of the nature of the communication, asserting that the Bahia Blanca would be sent on her voyage, no interference being contemplated.

It is understood, however, that in case Great Britain or the Allies jointly should take action to secure possession of the vessel, including the initiation by them of prize court proceedings in the United States courts after the Bahia Blanca's arrival there, as has been hinted, Argentina will appeal to the High Court of the League of Nations.

MAY BREW REAL BEER.

Amsterdam Company Gets Federal Permit to Make It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The Bowler Brewing Company, of Amsterdam, has been granted a federal permit to make beer, the good old fashioned kind, which may be sold to druggists and by them dispensed to those who are ill. But it will only be sold on prescription.

At the plant of the brewing company in Amsterdam it is stated that until the manufacturers are positive of their ground they will not begin the manufacture of beer. Regulation 60 of the Internal Revenue Law permits the making of beer without regard to its alcoholic content for medicinal purposes, it is said at the office of Roscoe Irwin, Internal Revenue Collector for this district. It cannot be disposed of over the bar, however, but must be handed out by druggists on the prescription of a duly licensed physician.

The National Plate Glass Company will assume a closed issue of $750,000 Federal Plate Glass Co. First Mortgage 7% Bonds due 1938, secured on the Ottawa, Illinois, plant.

National Plate Glass Company proposes to acquire three plate glass factories having a capacity of 11,000,000 square feet of plate glass annually.

Fisher Body Corporation (60% of whose common stock is owned by General Motors Corporation) will make a cash investment of over $4,000,000 in the Preferred and all of the Common Stock of the National Plate Glass Company and will enter into a ten-year contract to pay annually to the National Company sufficient compensation to provide minimum net earnings, after Federal Taxes, equal to maturing installments of and accruing interest on these Notes and in addition accruing dividend and sinking fund requirements of the Preferred Stock.

Consolidated Earnings, before depreciation, of companies to be acquired, are reported by Day & Zimmermann, Inc., as averaging for the past four years 3⅞ times total interest requirements, and for 1919 over 5¼ times. Day & Zimmermann estimate that net earnings before depreciation, available for interest in 1920, will exceed $3,000,000.

The Trust Agreement will provide, among other things, that as long as any of these Notes are outstanding: (1) No mortgage shall be created on any of the property now being acquired; (2) No obligations maturing one year or more from date of issue may be created; (3) No dividends shall be declared or paid on the Common Stock.

Secured Convertible Notes

offer absolute security with excellent opportunities for income and market appreciation.

Through the operation of a Sinking Fund 1% of these Notes are drawn each month. This feature will result in the majority being retired before maturity.

The yield, over 8½%, at present price, is exceptionally high for this class of security.

In addition, we believe there is the certainty of at least 10 points profit in not much more than four years—possibly much sooner.

MILK EXPORTS GAIN FIFTYFOLD IN 5 YEARS

ORIENT NOW A BIG BUYER

The Tropics Also Coming to Find Canned Milk a Valuable Addition to the Diet.

The American cow is invading foreign markets to an extent unthought of before the war, a statement prepared by the National City Bank showing that exports of condensed milk alone from the United States in 1919 were fifty times as great as in the year preceding the war. The statement says:

"This tremendous increase in the exportation of condensed milk now represents an export trade of $125,000,000 a year, against a little more than $1,000,000 at the beginning of the war. The phenomenal growth in exportation of this class of merchandise is apparently due in some degree to the taste which Europe acquired for American condensed milk during the war, for the quantity sent to Europe has advanced from 8,362 pounds, in 1914, to 99,541,000 in 1916; 384,588,000 in the fiscal year 1918, and more than 600,000,000 pounds in the calendar year 1919. To France, which made an intimate acquaintance with this product during the war period, the quantity sent in 1919 is 112,000,000 pounds, against 41,000,000 in 1918, and to the United Kingdom, whose supplies of dairy products formerly drawn from Northern Europe have been greatly minimized by recent events, the quantity sent in 1919 is 425,000,000 pounds, against 270,000,000 in 1918; 157,000,000 in 1917, and 106,000,000 in 1916.

"The tropical world and the Orient have meantime developed a closer acquaintance with the American product, which had been consumed in those sections in limited quantities in the past. To Asia as a whole the quantity sent in 1919 is approximately 60,000,000 pounds, against 3,000,000 the year before the war; to Oceania approximately 20,000,000 pounds, against about 2,000,000 in the year preceding the war; to Africa 15,000,000, as against 500,000 in the pre-war period, and to South America approximately 15,000,000 pounds, against a little less than 1,000,000 in 1914.

"This product, condensed milk, of which the present output of the factories of the United States is now probably 2,500,000,000 pounds, with a market value of nearly $500,000,000, is a product of the line of Northern States stretching from New York westward to the Pacific Coast, and including especially New York, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Oregon and Washington. The value of the product exported was not considered by the Government at Washington of sufficient importance to make a record prior to 1910, when the total value of the export was $1,000,000, advancing to $3,000,000 in 1915; $13,000,000 in 1916; $25,000,000 in 1917; $68,000,000 in the fiscal year 1918, and approximately $120,000,000 in the calendar year 1919."

CLINTON HALL
Home of the Mercantile Library Association, 1830-1854

One of the strongest characteristics of the American business man all through history, has been his far-sighted contributions to the cause of general education. Much that is best in New York mercantile life can be traced to 1820, when merchants' clerks and apprentices met by invitation at the Tontine Coffee House to form the Mercantile Library Association. By 1828, new quarters became absolutely necessary. The merchants subscribed $335,000 for building and endowing Clinton Hall as a permanent home for the Mercantile Library. The President and leading patron of the Association for many years was Philip Hone, the younger brother and junior partner of John Hone, one of the founders of the Merchants' Bank.

SHOWS GAS PROFITS REACH $70,482,892

Consolidated Company's 1919 Earnings Set Against 80-Cent Plea by Mr. Burr.

$19,950,000 LOANED OUT

Corporation Counsel Quotes Sworn Statement of Funds Due from Various Subsidiaries.

Corporation Counsel Burr said yesterday that while the Consolidated Gas Company was seeking to induce the courts to set aside the eighty-cent gas law because it was confiscatory, the company was seeking to induce the public to buy its bonds on statements saying that the gross earnings of the Consolidated system for the calendar year 1919 amounted to $70,482,892. Mr. Burr then prepared the following statement, partly to show why he appealed to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of the Federal Court refusing him permission to intervene in the company's suit and partly to show that the eighty-cent rate was not confiscatory and therefore it was not unconstitutional:

"On Jan. 9, 1920, the Consolidated Company secured the permission of the Public Service Commission to issue $25,000,000 of five-year bonds to provide funds for the payment at maturity on Feb. 1, 1922, of $24,275,240.50 debentures which are outstanding for other purposes.

"While the company, in its pending suit, was reiterating its claim that it was suffering daily the loss of large amounts of money owing to the high cost of labor and materials, the bonds referred to were being offered to the public with a statement by George B. Cortelyou, the President of the company, setting forth in glowing terms the prosperity of the company.

"He announced that the gross earnings of the Consolidated system for the calendar year 1919, after eliminating intercompany items, were $70,482,892, which after deducting operating expenses, taxes, &c. (including $3,058,609 for renewal and replacements reserve) amounting in all to $56,839,341 left net earnings for the calendar year 1919 of $13,643,549.

"These figures are startling to those who have been led to believe that the company was staggering under the statutory requirement that it sell gas at 80 cents per thousand cubic feet."

Mr. Burr stated that the shock the figures of the Consolidated Company's earning would cause those who thought the company was in a bad financial way would probably be slight in comparison with the surprise occasioned by the application of the company to the Public Service Commission for permission to issue $15,000,000 of stock, bonds, notes, or any other form of indebtedness the company might select.

"Among the statements set forth in the petition, which is sworn to by C. G. M. Thomas, Vice President of the company," said Mr. Burr, "is the announcement that the Consolidated Company has out on loans to various of its subsidiaries funds which were not secured or obtained from the issue of stock, bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness amounting to $19,950,000. It should be borne in mind that these funds were in addition to the investment of the Consolidated Gas Company in the stocks and bonds of these subsidiaries, and further that these moneys out on loan to the subsidiaries do not include the contingency account and other funds of the Consolidated Company."

Mr. Burr says that the sworn statement of Mr. Thomas of the amount of loans to the subsidiary companies was as follows:

|---|---|
| New York Edison Company | $3,500,000 |
| New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company | 3,400,000 |
| United Electric Light and Power Company | 8,825,000 |
| New York and Queens Gas Company | 385,000 |
| Westchester Lighting Company | 3,390,000 |
| Central Union Gas Company | 450,000 |

"The petition further states," continued Mr. Burr, "that the money derived from the $15,000,000 which will be issued if the commission consents will be applied as follows:

"For the reimbursement, in part, of moneys actually expended from income or from other moneys in the treasury, not secured or obtained from the issue of stocks, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness for the following purposes:

"'For the acquisition at par out of the total authorized issue of the capital stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness of the New York Edison Company, New York Queens Electric Light & Power Company, the United Electric Light & Power Company, New York & Queens Gas Company, the Westchester Lighting Company, and the Central Union Gas Company, as and when issued, $15,000,000.'"

Mr. Burr shows in the following table the extent of the ownership of the Consolidated Company in the subsidiaries to which the loans were made:

| Company. | Total No. Shares. | Owned by Con. Gas Co. |
|---|---|---|
| New York Edison Company | 6,559,454 | 6,559,434 |
| New York and Queen Electric Light and Power Company | 25,000 | 19,156 |
| United Electric Light and Power Company | 52,996 6374-10000 | 52,960 3374-10000 |
| New York and Queens Gas Company | 6,000 | 6,000 |
| Westchester Lighting Company | 125,000 | 125,000 |
| Central Union Gas Company | 35,000 | * |

*All of the 30,000 are owned by the New Amsterdam Gas Company and out of a total of 211,650 shares of the latter company the Consolidated Gas Company owns 211,460 675-1000.

In concluding his statement Mr. Burr said:

"Consumers are wondering why they should be asked to pay more than 80 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas when the Consolidated Company has such a large amount of available funds derived from income and other moneys in the treasury."

TALK OF VANDERLIP AS CORNELL'S HEAD

But Former Banker Says There Is Nothing In Report That He May Succeed Schurman.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Since the announcement yesterday of the resignation of Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman as President of Cornell University talk of a possible successor has been active.

Although William Howard Taft is mentioned as a possible successor, there is an unmistakable sentiment among officers of the university and some of the more influential alumni that is expressed in the phrase "a business man for President," and Frank A. Vanderlip, until recently President of the National City Bank of New York, is frequently mentioned as a successor to Dr. Schurman.

Mr. Vanderlip's address at the university yesterday on economic conditions in this country and Europe and his emphasis on the public necessity and opportunity for large capital investment in the educational system of the United States, together with President Schurman's introduction of him as having no superior as an authority on financial questions, is regarded as not without significance.

Since the New York banker retired from the bank Presidency, it is said, he has not made any announcement of his plans for the future, but has done a great deal of public speaking and writing in advocacy of the advancement of popular knowledge of economic principles. He is said to be in a position to make free choice as to how he shall occupy his time, and close personal friends say he feels a heavy responsibility on his own shoulders to do everything in his power to spread education among the people.

Those who have considered the banker from this point of view also point to the fact that he is a university man, holding degrees for scholarship from the Universities of Illinois and Chicago and honorary degrees from Illinois and Colgate.

"Nothing in it," was all that Frank A. Vanderlip would say yesterday concerning the talk of his being the possible successor to President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell, and he refused to discuss the matter further.

PLASTERERS, BUILDERS, ATTENTION!

LATH. LATH. LATH.

We acquired from the Government a quantity of new composite metal lath—"Briklath." This is a steel wire mesh upon which brick clay has been baked under high pressure. The plaster or stucco goes into the mesh openings and spreads over the edges on the other side, giving a lasting grip.

We are prepared to sell this material at 40 per cent. below manufacturers' price.

Immediate or March and April deliveries. Condition guaranteed.

Contractors, Hampered by Bare Sand Markets, Use Ballast from Europe.

BRICK SHORTAGE ACUTE

Hope for Much-Needed Housing Relief This Year Wanes as Mortgage Money Flits.

Building contractors emerged from the traffic mire last week to face a positive sand famine, rumors of the $30 brick market, an actual advance to $51 a load of 3,000 second hand brick delivered below 110th Street, and a threatened shrinkage of discount in window glass under 5 square feet from 65 to 60 per cent.

The only available supply of building sand in this market today is that brought over to this country as ballast from Europe in ships returning light. No one remembers when there was a greater demand for this building commodity, gravel, grit and crushed stone, and no one seems to be able to recall when the supply has been so low. The pits are frozen, the quarries are unworkable, and the waterways are impassable with ice, and the only hope for [illegible] seems to lie in the prospe[illegible] weather mild enough to permit reopening of the plants at pits and quarries or the prompt arrival of a large fleet of ships in ballast, or both.

Storm stress has set back building work of all kinds. Alteration work is about all that has been moving for the last ten days, although the strike of certain of the trades now in the recent wage-scale agreement had helped to retard new work. There was some talk of common brick moving up to $30 a thousand, wholesale, as the week drew to a close, but the effect upon an already disturbed financial market with relation to prospective building construction served to deter any hasty action along this line. The tenseness of the brick market is due almost entirely to the scarcity of cars, the ice-barred rivers and the reserves held under cover here for speculation or for special jobs.

The fact was developed, however, that any talk of common Hudson brick dropping below $25 with the usual additional charges for handling, cartage and 15 per cent. for deliveries, a thousand, wholesale, upon the immediate resumption of navigation is without foundation. There is only a limited supply burned and ready for shipment up the river and it now seems certain that 1920 brick will not begin to come into this market much before July or August unless there is a wholly unexpected influx of labor into that district this Spring.

Financial interests say they see little expectation of general housing relief this year for two reasons. One is that there appears to be a constantly increasing price noted in estimates for new construction work, the disposition of a growing number of contractors to accept only "cost-plus" construction operations (with a glaring uncertainty as to the ultimate cost of the operation in the present market for building materials and services) and the effect upon mortgage money of present systems of Federal taxation which prohibits mortgages from competing with Government-tax-free securities.

The clearest prospect of the present year is that many firms who are oversold now on materials and equipment will be actively following the market for new business before the year ends, unless prices of materials and equipment become immediately stabilized, delivery conditions improve speedily and some change is effected whereby mortgage money may have more active interest in realty investment.

In this connection considerable interest is being evoked with reference to the forthcoming report of the Lockwood Committee of the New York State Senate, which has been investigating the housing situation here with reference to relieving the shortage of space accommodation, for business and family habitation.

It is believed that the committee report will contain some reference to a proposal to exempt mortgage holdings in this State from taxation.

Various sections of the building market approve and condemn this proposal, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports today. The fact remains, however, that the highest authorities aver that mortgage money is being driven away from building enterprises at the very time when the greatest need is the supplying of additional rentable space of all kinds. There is plenty of money available, but because it is being taxed out of the mortgage market at the time when building construction is a national need—almost the greatest general need of the day—there is a grave danger that unless something is done to make mortgage loans attractive the dearth of building space will not be greatly relieved for several years.

Building material and equipment interests in this city and vicinity have sensed the possible pricking of the building prosperity bubble that loomed so largely as the year closed. As far as potential building construction is concerned, there is no question whatever that there can be a great building era of many years' duration. Building prosperity rests upon an attractive mortgage market. If mortgage money is being weaned away from the building market by tax-free securities at a time when the people, who made wartime sacrifices to help the country, need Federal help to meet the Government-made housing shortage, any recommendation toward this end that the Lockwood Committee may make will be sure to have the hearty indorsement of building material and equipment men of New York, who doubtless will make known their wishes in the matter at Washington.

Here is where the attention of the building industry for the moment has been focused, as it is the greatest menace to a free building market that there is today in the opinion of many persons.

PLANS TO TRAIN ALIENS.

Security League Asks Judges to Aid Naturalization.

The National Security League yesterday made public the details of an Americanization plan for reaching the adult foreign born. The league proposes committees of citizens to be appointed by judges presiding over naturalization courts to get in touch with and train applicants for citizenship.

The plan has been worked out by a committee composed of S. Stanwood Menken, President of the league; ex-President William Howard Taft, Alton B. Parker, former Senator George Sutherland of Utah, William D. Guthrie, Guy Murchie and Morefield Storey of Boston, Walter George Smith and George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia and Judge Peter W. Meldrim of the Georgia Circuit Court.

The league has sent out letters to 2,500 judges asking them to appoint committees of citizens to make inquiries about and personally interview prospective citizens. The league will maintain a bureau, which will send out helpful literature to jurists and citizens who favor the plan.

Mr. Menken said the Federal and State authorities had been handicapped with forces ridiculously inadequate to carry out the task of investigating applicants for citizenship. The County Clerk in this city has only three men to make inquiries regarding 50,000 applicants yearly, he said.

Former Ambassador to Germany Initiated Into Lodge No. 1.

James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany and candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, was initiated into the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks last night, becoming a member of Lodge No. 1 at 108 West Forty-third Street. The ceremony took place at 10 o'clock and there was an unusually large attendance. an unusually irage attendance.

The annual dinner of the lodge will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the Hotel Commodore, and Mr. Gerard will be one of the guests. Others will include General Pershing and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, it was announced.

EXPORTERS OPPOSE TRADE WITH SOVIET

Association Warns Manufacturers Against Relations with Bolshevist Russia.

CAUTION TO AMERICANS

Resumption of Commerce Favored When Russian Assembly Establishes Rule.

The Board of Directors of the American Manufacturers' Export Association has adopted a resolution warning its members of the danger of the movement to revive trade relations with Russia while under the Soviet Government and asserting that such trade could, under any circumstances, be only very small because of the demoralization of Russian transportation systems. The resolutions read:

> Whereas, there are many exaggerated reports in regard to the amount of trading transactions which can be carried on between Russia and the outside world; and,
> Whereas, under any circumstances due to the breakdown of the Russian transportation system there can be only a relatively small amount of business transactions on the basis of an exchange of raw materials for manufactured goods; and,
> Whereas, in view of the published statement of the so-called Soviet Government in Russia it is evident that trade with Russia is practically impossible except under the direct supervision and control of this Government; and,
> Whereas, trade intercourse with Russia would involve a recognition of the present Soviet Government, which is a government directly opposed to the American conception of political, social and economic affairs; therefore, be it
> Resolved, That the American Manufacturers Export Association warns its members and other manufacturers to exercise the greatest care and caution against impending trade relations with a Russia under the present Soviet Government; and be it further
> Resolved, That the members of the American Manufacturers' Export Association are eager and desirous of resuming commercial intercourse with Russia and the Russian people when that country is under some form of government of its own selection which has been chosen by a properly elected assembly.

Conditions among the Russian refugees at Novorossyk are described in a cable dispatch to the American Central Committee, which quotes Mme. Harald Scavenius, wife of the former Danish Minister to Russia, as follows:

"I leave for Reval to help the refugees from Gatchina and Tsarskoe Selo. There are about 50,000 camping in villages in the forests. There are 10,000 more who were refused permission to enter Esthonia. These are camping out along the railroad line, a camp four kilometers long, living on railway sleepers, with a thin litter of straw, surrounded by dead children and dead horses."

The American Central Committee forwarded $1,000 to the Red Cross for the relief of refugees at Novorossyks.

NYCNA SOCIETY DINES.

Employes of City News Association Hold First Annual Entertainment.

The first annual dinner of the Nycna Society, an organization of the employes of the New York City News Association, was held yesterday morning at Reisenweber's. Former reporters of the association volunteered their services for the night at the association's offices in order to enable all the members of the staff to dine together.

Insurance policies obtained for the members by the society were distributed at the dinner. Gold fountain pens were presented to James E. Hardenbergh, Secretary and General Manager, and William G. Henderson, Treasurer. Vaudeville acts and boxing bouts furnished the entertainment features. The "Nycna Ticker," a miniature newspaper, was published for the occasion. Joseph A. Larkin, President of the society, presided. The arrangements were in charge of Christie E. Bohnsack.

WINCHESTER EARNINGS.

1919 Report Shows Balance of $2,089,688 for Dividends.

The Winchester Company and its subsidiary, the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, in their consolidated statement of earnings for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1919, show a gross business of $24,910,903. After expenses, depreciation and Federal taxes, the balance available for dividends was $2,089,688. The surplus for the period beginning April 26, when the Winchester Company was organized, to Dec. 31 was $1,748,273. The strong cash position of the company is shown in the balance sheet. The amount on hand and in the banks at the close of last year was $1,545,404, and working capital was shown to be more than $16,000,000.

The company is planning to engage in the manufacture of a number of new products. Concerning this the report says:

In order to utilize that portion of the plant left idle by the cessation of war work, the company has undertaken the manufacture of a number of new lines of hardware and sporting goods specialties. To facilitate the production of these items, the company has acquired the entire capital stock and assets of Eagle Pocket Knife Company, Barney & Berry, Inc., the pocket knife plant and business of Napanoch Knife Company, the auger bit business of Lebanon Machine Company, the wrench business of Page-Storms Drop Forge Company, the clay pigeon business and plant of the Morrill Target Company, the fishing rod business of E. W. Edwards, and the fishing reel and artificial bait business of the Andrew B. Hendryx Company. All of these activities, with the exception of Barney & Berry, Inc., and the Morrill Target Company, have been moved into the New Haven plant of the company.

Thomas G. Bennett, formerly President of the Winchester Company, has been elected Chairman of the Board of Directors, and John E. Otterson, formerly Vice President, has been elected President.

REPORTS ON OVERSEA WORK

Y. W. C. A. Council Describes Activities in Ten European Countries.

The report of the War Work Council of the Young Women's Christian Association, made public yesterday, tells of the promotion of international friendship by hundreds of American girls who are aiding their sisters in ten European countries.

Classes have been opened for girls in Russia and for former inmates of Turkish harems. Aid has been given to 3,071 women of six nationalities who became the wives of American soldiers. Recreation, education and housing facilities were made available for hundreds of girls engaged in work for the allied troops in France and for girl workers in French factories. The work in France has since the war been placed under French leadership and many of the American Y. W. C. A. girls who were in France have been transferred to other parts of Europe.

Despite revolution, lack of food and personal danger, five Secretaries were sent to Russia from the United States. Gymnasium work, English, French, Russian, bookkeeping, stenography and music were taught to 150 girls in Petrograd and 165 in Moscow. Canteens were opened for Russian girls, who otherwise would have been near starvation.

When, late in 1918, the Bolsheviki forced the association's workers to leave Soviet Russia, they went to Archangel and Vladivostok and established hostess houses for American troops and clubs for Russian girls. The girls' clubs at Archangel had more than 500 members, largely refugees.

Twelve Secretaries are now serving in the Near East. Clubs and classes have enlisted the interest of more than 500 Constantinople girls. Other centres also are maintained. Girls released from harems are learning domestic science and lacemaking and gymnastics.

In Italy the association maintained ten centres and fifteen American Secretaries to aid American women war workers and thousands of Italian girls.

SANCTION WESTERN FLIGHTS

Race from Seattle to Alaska and Return to Take Place May 22.

The Aero Club of America announced yesterday that it had sanctioned the application of the Aero Club of the Northwest to hold an air race on May 22 from Seattle to Juneau, Alaska, and return, 870 miles. The cash prizes aggregate $35,000. The contest is limited to seaplanes, as the route is over water.

The club has also given permission to the Aero Club of Southern California to hold an air race at Los Angeles this Spring. Sportsmen have raised $25,000 for prizes, it is announced.

BRONX COUNTY BAR AGAINST SOCIALISTS

PARTY PLEDGES BAR THEM

Ineligible by Reason of Their Inability to Vote Military Funds and Promise to Obey or Resign.

Expulsion from the Assembly of the five Socialist members is warranted, according to a report of the Bronx County Bar Association, made public yesterday. The report, made by a special committee appointed to study the Socialist platforms and constitutions, holds that the pledges required of Socialist candidates make them ineligible for public office.

Although the report states that the inquiry of the committee was not concerned with "the merits or demerits of any pending proceedings against any individual, group or party," the discussion is confined to the Socialist Party, and the conclusions arrived at relate to conditions similar to those in the case of the five suspended Assemblymen. The report is more general in its scope than the action of the New York State and County Bar Association, which opposed the ousting of the Socialists.

The discussion is divided into consideration of, first, the conceded facts; second, the law applicable; third, the conclusions arrived at. Under the first heading the report reprints the national Socialist platform, the national Socialist constitution, the State Socialist constitution, the 1919 manifesto, the 1916 antiwar proclamation and the majority war report adopted at St. Louis in 1917 after our declaration of war.

In conclusion the report holds:

> 1. That the section of the Socialist constitution providing that any one who votes to appropriate money for military purposes shall be expelled from the party is in conflict with the express terms and underlying principles of our State and national constitutions.
> 2. That the pledge required of Socialist candidates that they will resign for failure to carry out the instructions of the dues-paying members of the party is in conflict with our State and national constitutions and any one who is proved to have acted in pursuance of that pledge may be removed or expelled from office. It is within the power of the Legislature to make ineligible for office one who signs such a pledge.
> 3. That the opinions and sentiments expressed in the manifesto, proclamations and platform of the Socialist Party are "most vicious and unpatriotic."

The report is signed by Alexander A. Mayper, as Chairman; Franz Sigel, George F. Stiebling, Howard C. Kelley, Edward R. Koch and Herbert A. Knox.

AWED BY AMERIKANSKYS.

Russian Peasant Amazed at Their Clean Clothing and Hard Hitting.

Many reports have been received here telling of the impressions created on the peasants of Russia by our troops, but the first description of Americans by a Russian peasant is given in a letter found in a Siberian railway coach and brought here by Lieutenant Charles T. Olcott, who arrived recently.

"The Amerikanskys," the one peasant wrote to the other, "are taller and stronger than the Japanskys or the Angleskys or the Czechoslovaks. It is understood that they are very clean, washing their bodies every two or three days and changing their uniforms frequently. They laugh always and are kind to every one and take nothing that does not belong to them and pay in full for everything. When angry they strike out with their hands, inflicting great damage in some strange manner. They do not fear their officers, but obey them implicitly, and are said to be even better fighters than the Czechoslovaks."

Mining Engineers to Install Hoover.

Mining engineers from every section of the country will meet today at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, for the 121st meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, when Herbert C. Hoover will be inaugurated as President of the association, succeeding Horace V. Winchell. Both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Winchell will present a definite program for the better working of the bituminous coal industry. Other topics to be discussed will be mine taxation and the dwindling oil supply.

The Period of Adjustment

A few years ago you loaned a man $100.00. That $100.00 would have bought you food, clothing and lodging for four weeks.

He has just paid you back that $100.00. That $100.00 today will only buy you food, clothing and lodging for two weeks.

That $100.00 now only buys $50.00 worth. In other words, the purchasing power of the dollar today is only fifty cents.

This is true of everything but Real Estate.

The dollar today is worth 100 cents in buying Real Estate.

This is because Real Estate is selling at the old Standard of value.

Experience shows that Real Estate is always the last to rise in value.

It has not commenced to rise in proportion to other commodities.

That is why far sighted Corporations have been buying properties for their own use.

That is why other large Corporations have been taking 21 year leases.

They are practically buying the property for 21 years at the old values.

That is why Real Estate speculators have in the last few months been picking up Real Estate at the old prices.

They see the opportunity for sure profit.

THAT IS WHY AN ABSOLUTE UNRESTRICTED AND UNRESERVED AUCTION SALE, ORDERED BY THE SUPREME COURT, OF PROPERTIES IN THE HEART OF THE CITY SHOULD INTEREST INVESTORS, BUSINESS MEN DESIRING TO OWN THEIR OWN PROPERTY, BUILDERS, SPECULATORS AND ALL INTERESTED IN REAL ESTATE.

Send for catalogue of the properties.

Business Buildings—
A Profitable Investment

Business buildings of downtown New York offer one of the best forms of investment known. Practically all are filled to capacity and at very high rentals. By proper management they can be made to show a very good return on the money invested in them.

Pease & Elliman have on their list a number of office and loft buildings which can be purchased at very low figures. In many cases about one-third of their leases expire this Spring, which will naturally be renewed at a higher rental than is now being paid, or you could use this space for your own business.

Most of these buildings carry large mortgages and for that reason require but little cash in buying them. If you have money to invest, you cannot find a safer way. At your request, Pease & Elliman will furnish you with a special list of properties giving you full particulars and what you may expect.

The Spring Styles are Here for You in McCALL PATTERNS

SKIRTS of the new widths, bodices with Spring silhouettes, sleeves that are most favored—all these await you in the new McCALL PATTERNS now ready.

With them, the Spring displays of silks, woolens, and dainty cotton weaves take on a special importance.

Some women who never before made their clothes have found in the simple, clear directions provided with every McCALL PATTERN all the instruction in dressmaking they require.

Certainly there is a great pleasure in wearing a frock or blouse or skirt you have made yourself —getting just the most becoming colors, the preferred fabrics—not to mention the delightful economy of it!

A clothes allowance stretches to most surprising proportions when you make the clothes yourself

MANY women have a dressmaker spend a day or two in their homes in order to commence the work, and McCALL PATTERNS—

—are at their service to help complete the sewing. But there has been quite a general revival in home sewing during the past few years, and many enthusiastic converts have mastered all the details of cutting and sewing for themselves.
